

ILLUSTRATIONS FOR CROWLEY'S "LIBER CHANOKH"

IN the Celephaïs Press e-text of Crowley's Liber Chanokh (a.k.a. "A Brief Abstract of the Symbolic Representation of the Universe as derived by Dr. John Dee from the skrying of Sir Edward Kelly"), several of the plates of magical diagrams were included as comparatively low-resolution bitmaps, largely in order to avoid massively bloating the file size (it was originally created for posting on a Geocities site back in 2002 or so). The present document contains high-quality vector art renditions of the Holy Table (so with sufficient magnification the seven Ensigns of Creation are actually readable), Sigillum Æmeth (the text caption here is reproduced from Secundus) and the Watchtowers (the pyramid faces coloured in accordance with the Golden Dawn scheme).

There is one minor graphical error in the following images which is not readily correctable; in the process of importing the vector art into MS Word, one of the gradient fills in a corner square of the table of practice was turned into a dull yellow-brown. This is not easily correctable as I long ago lost the files from which it was created.

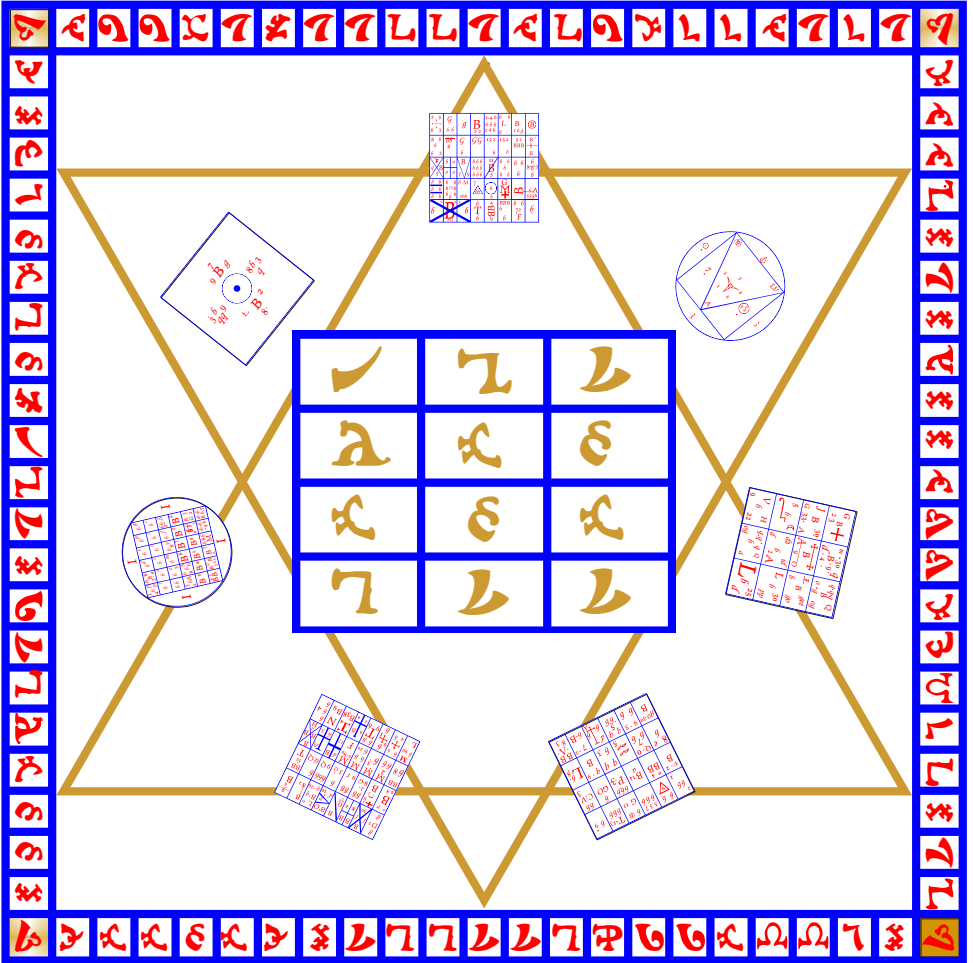

Lettering on the Watchtower diagrams has been (barring transcription errors which I cannot guarantee to be completely lacking) conformed with the general view of the Great Table which, as discussed in my notes to Chanokh, is not quite identical with any version that can be found in the Dee MSS.
