Character
HellOnEarthIII
Pripyatory
Jim
Gallery 4
Library
Worlds
Links
Comments
Favorite
Ownership
Report
Block

Jim

HellOnEarthIII

Created	1 month, 1 day ago ()
Creator	HellOnEarthIII
Favorites	0

Profile

Canadian Marxist Intellectual

Jim is a Canadian resident for Pripyatory

He is a resident in Pripyat Purgatory. Jim Joseph is a politically astute, sharp-tongued Canadian revolutionary-minded youth, defined by his deep cynicism, fierce intellect, and unshakable sense of justice. Known for his militant leftist stance and unyielding moral compass, Jim was often seen as a voice of ideological resistance openly ignored by his community.Always accompanied by his twin brother Jason.

PERSONALITY

- Stern
- Intellectual
- Bitter
- Loner
- Extremist
- Cynical

Jim is a highly intelligent and deeply introspective individual, yet one weighed down by an unrelenting pessimism about society's trajectory. He is acutely aware of political, cultural, and historical contexts, often drawing parallels between the struggles of the past and the flaws of the present. Jim rarely smiles and sees humor as an indulgence in a world too broken to deserve it, though on rare occasions, he might show a dry, cutting wit. He is obstinate, fiercely opinionated, and unwilling to compromise on matters of principle.

Jim's defining traits are his intellectual rigor, his moral stubbornness, and his inability to suffer fools. He approaches conversations like debates, dissecting arguments with surgical precision, often to the irritation of those around him. Rarely smiling, he sees humor mostly in irony or absurdity. Beneath the frown, however, Jim is not without empathy he genuinely wants the world to improve, but despairs at humanity's consistent

JIM (RIGHT)

GENERAL

FULL NAME	James Joseph
NICKNAMES	Jim, Jimmy, Four Eyes
GENDER	Male
AGE	21

LIFE

failure to live up to its ideals. He values discipline, honesty, and ideological consistency, holding himself to the same high standards he demands from others. His interests stretch from revolutionary theory to pop culture; he can seamlessly go from critiquing corporate imperialism to analyzing Star Wars lore with near-academic seriousness. With Jason, he acts more like a parent than a sibling, guiding him away from what he sees as cultural decay. While he fiercely disapproves of Jason's values, Jim's loyalty to his brother is unshakable.

BACKGROUND

Growing up in Toronto, Jim and Jason were raised in a middle-class neighborhood but surrounded by stark contrasts in wealth and opportunity. Jim's early exposure to political theory came through online forums, historical literature, and local activist groups. By his teens, he was already attending rallies and speaking at small community events, quickly developing a reputation for his articulate, if confrontational, style.

School life was turbulent — while academically gifted, Jim had little patience for what he saw as an outdated education system and often clashed with teachers. Outside of politics, his personal life was narrow, revolving mainly around books, niche internet communities, and occasional debates with anyone willing to challenge him. He kept few friends, partly due to his blunt nature, which many found alienating.

DEATH

Jim and Jason attended a high-stakes hockey match in Toronto. After the game, Jason insulted the opposing team's beloved goalie in the heat of a post-match argument. This drew the attention — and the fury — of a crowd of passionate fans. Both brothers were caught in the mob outside the stadium. Despite Jim's attempts to de-escalate the situation, the confrontation turned violent, leading to their deaths before emergency services could intervene.

AFTERLIFE

In Pripyat's purgatory, Jim lives with Jason in a cramped Soviet-era apartment, their arguments echoing down the halls. He works in the local library, surrounded by books and pamphlets that he obsessively annotates. Jim spends much of his time studying the afterlife's strange politics, often launching into long-winded critiques of how even in death, bureaucracy and corruption seem to thrive.

His greatest point of friction in Pripyat is Katya, a Russian neo-Nazi skinhead whose every word and gesture sparks a verbal war between them. Their exchanges are openly hostile, with Jim delivering scathing rebuttals to her rhetoric while she hurls insults in return. Other residents often gather just to watch their confrontations.

BIRTHPLACE	Toronto, Ontario, Canada
DEATH	Muder, Beaten
ETHNICITY	African American (Bahamian roots)
JOB	College student (formerly) Library assitant
RESIDENCE STATUS	Eligible for Heaven – Case pending

PLAYLIST

Nas - I Can

?</>

Despite his abrasive manner, Jim occasionally offers genuine advice to those who seek it—though they'll likely have to endure a lengthy political lecture in the process.

Trivia

- Both Twins are a homage of boondocks protagonists: Huey and Riley Freeman
- Both Twins where firstly designed for a completely different project.
- While very intelligent, Jim is sometimes caught in hypocresy and rebooted by other residents
- His side of the room is neetly organized and has a giant Malcom X poster above his bedframe
- Jim had a childhood crush on a girl from his neighborhood called Camila Taddich, that Jason constantly teases him
- Both Twins are a mirror on Buryat and Katya, a loudmouth hostile gangster (Katya) and a cold, stern intellectual (Buryat)

SHOW/HIDE RELATIONSHIPS

APPEARANCE

- Height: 178 cm (5'10")
- Hair: Dark
- Eyes: Dark
- Build: Athletic

Jim wears a black turtleneck sweater, Dark navy jeans and polished dress shoes. He only difference with Jason are his Square-framed glasses.

Recent Images

