JUST USING A VACUUM PUMP IS NOT ENOUGH!

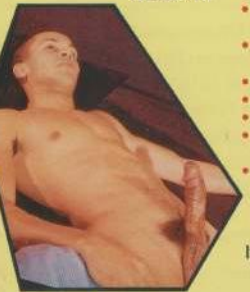

Yes, a vacuum pump is essential to increasing penis size. But pumping up is only one-fourth of the secret to success. Dear FQ,

Just received F.Q. issue #14, which I read with fascination. I have missed F.Q. very much and just wanted to say its great seeing Foreskin Quarterly back in publication. Keep up the great work. I look forward to every forthcoming issue.

Bud
Sacramento, CA

Dear FQ

How refreshing to see your magazine back in publication again. I have thoroughly missed the void for several years. It's so refreshing to see photos of men that are not of Puerto Rican or black heritage. I have nothing against them, it's just that I think any publication should have a good mixture of all races and not put too much emphasis on certain ones like another magazine does.

I am glad that Bud Berkeley is still around, I had not heard of him for several years.

Keep up the good work. What a great looking publication. It's better than I have ever seen FQ before.

Paul
Wilmington, DE

Dear Paul,

Thanks for your comments. You ain't seen nothing yet...

Ed.

Dear FQ,

When I opened up my envelope and found FQ I was really surprised at the quality and content from the previous issues. (I have all of them.) You guys have really done a superior job.

I like the fact that you had photos from Europe along with the "cheese log" section.

Please try to get more photos of guys that are blond. I really get turned on to those Scandinavian dicks. Stay away from too many Latinos and Blacks. There are other dicks out there, you know.

Paul
Littleton, CO

Dear Paul,

Many letters have voiced the same concern as yours. We have no intention of discriminating against any one's ethnic heritage. We will bring you a well balanced selection of all guys with natural dicks. After all, that is what this magazine is all about.

Ed.

Dear FQ,

Thank God my prayers have been answered. FQ is back. Hallelulla!

And praise be to you...

Dear FQ,

I need some clarification on the following. When you join Bud Berkeley's USA club, do you automatically get a subscription to FQ along with the free want ads?

No. USA is a separate entity from FQ. We, however, support them and offer their members an additional subscription extension when they join USA. To join USA, you must send in to them their dues of $25.00 for the year. This is in addition to the $21.00 subscription amount that is sent to us for your 4 issue subscription. In this magazine you will find all the information about USA, with the address for correspondence.

Dear FQ,

When I started subscribing to FQ many years ago I did it because I wanted to explore the natural man and his beauty. As time went by, the articles became more and more S/M oriented emphasizing pain and mutilation.

That becomes a turn off to me.

I realize that there is some S/M play that involves foreskin and I do not mind some of that, but it was getting to be regular. I now understand that you also publish a leather oriented magazine and that most of your editorial staff is into S/M.

Are we going to get the same stuff that we got when Desmondus was the publisher? I hope not. By the way I really like the format of issue #14. I hope it remains the same.

Ralph
Providence, RI

Dear Ralph,

We have heard this concern from many of our readers. Some of our staff are into S/M — some are not. For those readers that want a leather oriented magazine we offer "Leather-Man". We intend to keep the two quite separate, although occasionally articles or art may appear that some may question.

As with any publication, it is not possible to make everyone happy all of the time. However, we're listening to our readership and are trying to give you what you want. Thanks!

Ed.

Dear FQ,

I believe there is a long needed change in terminology. For several years, I have been irritated and sometimes genuinely annoyed at the words used to describe penises which have been circumcised and those which have not. I refer to the use of cut vs. uncut and circumcised vs. uncircumcised. Such usage of the prefix "un" carries with it an atmosphere of something incomplete, negative and possibly undesirable.

I am well aware, of course that the opposite and often quite positive atmosphere can also be indicated by the use of such words as uninterrupted, uninterrupted, unquestioned and undamaged.

JUST OUT! A NEW BOOK!

FORESKIN: A CLOSER LOOK

by BUD BERKELEY

Over the centuries, circumcision has been forced on unwilling subjects for myriad reasons: as a mark of conquest; as a sign of religious conversion; for health reasons; and to prevent masturbation. In this sometimes humorous, often erotic, and always fascinating book, the founder of the Uncircumcised Society of America takes us on a romp through these little-charted waters of history. He then addresses contemporary concerns of health, hygiene, sexuality, and social mores.

Generally, however, the use of the "un" prefix seems to carry with it a somewhat negative aura of intent. Consider the words unjust, unclean, undone, unpardonable, unpatriotic, unjust, untruth, and above all, unfinished. All of these words, plus scores of others, carry with them the feeling of negation. And to apply such a feeling to a penis that has been spared circumcision can and often does lead to a negative feeling about such a man so lucky as to remain intact with all of the pleasures that his foreskin brings him.

Uncut and uncircumcised seem to suggest that something is needed and I for one hold that such is definitely not the case. If anything, it is the circumcised penis that is much more undesirable. (There is one of those "un" words again.)

I have no objection to the use of circumcised or cut when referring to a penis that has undergone this kind of surgery. Indeed, I would have no objection to making this condition the one that carries a negative atmosphere by using a word like "mutilated".

I do, however, propose that reference to uncut and uncircumcised penises be abandoned in favor of more positive terminology.

A word like "intact" carries with it a much more positive connotation and one suggesting desirability. It suggests that damage has not been done or something desirable has been maintained. In another context, Italian culture refers to a desirable trait of a virgin bride as being intacto.

I hope that my fellow members of USA will see my point and that future literature will start sounding more positive about the fact that many of us cherish our precious intact condition.

Dear FQ,

I am bowled over by Gareth MacKenzie in FQ #14. I am cut, but I find the foreskin exciting. More importantly, I find your erotic, irreverent, virile magazine a genuine turn on. Just today I saw Gareth's handsome face peering over the metal magazine holder in the corner store. I flinched when I pulled up an issue to find him beautifully bare-assed on the cover. (The Pakistani news dealer really blushed when I thumped Gareth's bare ass down!)

I have jerked off to Gareth three times since purchasing the magazine this morning. His dangling balls, seen between his legs, make you want to kiss them. And his man meat is dazzling. What makes the spread so electrifying is Gareth's obvious and unabashed exhibitionism — his love of posing in the nude. The situations — Gareth on the boat and Gareth showing what a Scot really wears under the kilt — emphasize his buck-nakedness.

That penetrating gaze and level smile indicate to me that he is not just a pretty boy who is

By the way, I wore a kilt with a short top coat and pulled my shirt up at the coat's waist to attend a friend's party. On a cue from me, the friend bumped into me and undid the Velcro closing on the kilt and it fell away to reveal my cock and balls. I was butt naked to all. I pretended not to notice for a second and then acted shocked and em-bare-assed. I ran from the room. Several guests followed and soon I was being jerked off. So I know what a thrill Gareth is having — seeing his nakedness paraded before tens of thousands.

Hey Bud!

Old English Lessons with Bud Berkely

Hey Bud!

I am a 21 year old college student with an uncircumcised penis. My foreskin still comes to a long point which makes me shy in front of other fellows. I am also afraid that a woman would laugh if she saw my boyish-looking genitals. Because of my shyness I have not been able to move on with my sex life. I am still a virgin.

I think one reason my foreskin still comes to a point is that I have seldom retracted it behind the glans. When my skin is stretched back as far as it can go, it hurts. It feels as if it is going to split open. That is the reason I avoid women because I am sure my foreskin will split while inserting my penis into the vagina.

The question I have for you is that I have gotten into the bad habit of masturbating with my hands. I can't ejaculate without my hands. I have tried pelvic thrusting as if I was performing fornication: sticking my penis between mattresses, inserting it into a vacuum cleaner, looking at nude photos and other means of stimulation. Nothing works but pounding my fist over my foreskin. Using my hands on my penis is not possible when it is inserted inside a vagina is it? I fear that if I continue to use my hands I shall remain a virgin. Is there a cure for my hands?

Dear Virgin,

Keep pounding! At this time in your life your hands are your best friend. Masturbation is a sure way of keeping the foreskin loose, healthy and pointed. It's safe too! There is nothing wrong with you, your foreskin, or your hands. You might be a bit of a late bloomer, and your slightly tight foreskin indicates that you probably didn't start using your hands early in your puberty. A pointed foreskin is not always a tight one — some of the floppiest foreskins around come to a nice long wonderfully redundant wad of pointed flesh. Pointed or tight foreskin is certainly no indication of sexual immaturity — neither is using your hands, unless you insist on pushing them into the vagina (etc.) along with your penis.

Many youths feel guilty about masturbating and conjure up all sorts of phobias about it. Will it stunt my growth? Will it sap my energy and make me a weakling? Will it ruin my cock so that I can't have sex without my fist wrapped around my dick? Despite these very common fears, most boys continue to manage a daily pounding. These fears often last well into manhood, and the pounding goes on and on and...!

An uncircumcised penis needs its foreskin pumped up and down the shaft and over the cockhead to receive its ultimate sensitivity. Fucking the air by merely thrusting your pelvis will never bring you over the top, my friend. One of these days you will fall in love and forget all about your hands and your dick. Your attention will suddenly turn to pleasing your lover instead of your cock. You will be amazed at how fucking stretches and loosens your foreskin — naturally! Look ma'am (or man), no hands! That's love.

In the meantime, you should concentrate on loosening-up your tight foreskin. Foreskin is extremely stretchable skin. See the next letter, or refer to stretching methods in my book: Foreskin A Closer Look. There might be a physical cause for the pain in your foreskin.

Tight foreskins can be the result of a short frenum or a heavily weighted foreskin tip, etc. These problems are usually not serious and can be remedied by a physician. Look in the phone book for an urologist. Shop around for an urologist who is not prepucephobic (wants to trim off every foreskin he sees) and he might have an easy therapy for your aching sex-skin. Anyway, if you still feel guilty about using your hands, find a friend with strong biceps and willing hands and let him pound your foreskin until it loosens up. You are definitely a friend in need.

The West German Army surveyed the penises of its recruits in a 1960's report. It found that 40% of them had long pointed foreskins of various looseness. A slightly higher percentage had short foreskins (didn't cover the entire cock-head) and a very small percentage had completely unretractable foreskins. One theory has it that these different foreskin types are caused by the age of first retraction. A foreskin first retracted during infancy or pre-adolescence (for washing, etc.) will end up being a short one on the mature man. (Forcing back the foreskin of an infant before the embryonic development of his penis has completed can result in phimosis — unretractable foreskin.)

The foreskin not retracted until puberty (or the first jack-off) when the penis is nearly mature in its development, will be a long one. Later first retraction (after masturbation has been performed many times) might produce very long but often tight foreskin. Then there are all the "first retractions" at ages in between — a veritable kaleidoscope of lengths and shapes to the foreskin connoisseur's delight!

Pal, long after you have ceased being a virgin, forgotten about your hands and your foreskin has been well loosened, you will occasionally find things getting boring around the house and once again bring hand to foreskin and pound like hell! You'll probably feel guilty... but who'll give a damn?

Hey Bud!

I am uncut, with a big fat wad of skin hanging a good two inches over my dick. When I first joined the Uncircumcised Society of America I had barely a 1/2" overhang. I started comparing notes with other USA members and decided I needed more skin... for chewing. So I got into foreskin stretching and it really works!

My favorite stretching method is using some "barrel" or "Keg" shaped wooden napkin rings. The diameter is slightly wider than my cockhead. I roll my foreskin back off my cock-head and shove my skinned dick into a napkin ring. Then I push the ring down over the steak until it fits snugly in place behind the corona. Lastly, I bring the foreskin forward again and let it roll right over the wooden ring.

Bud Berkely, founder and director of the Uncircumcised Society of America (USA), draws from his extensive files of correspondence to give us some insight into the art and practice of living with the uncircumcised penis, the pros and cons of circumcision, its history, and the possibilities of reconstructing foreskin on a circumcised penis.

It's a tight fit and a little uncomfortable at first, but in a couple of minutes it feels good. I wear the ring under my foreskin for about a week, taking it off for showers and sex. My first ring measured 1 1/2" in diameter.

My favorite stretching method is using some "barrel" or "keg" shaped wooden napkin rings

My next step was to find a ring slightly wider and my skin was placed in a tight fit once again. My goal was a 2 1/4 inch. In just a matter of weeks I went from a 1 1/2" ring to a comfortable but tight 2 1/4". The extra bulk of foreskin was beginning to show on my basket and it got some stares. I wanted even more foreskin after that! So I slid the ring down over my shaft and pulled all the foreskin forward. Then I rolled the skin back over the ring which completely uncovered the head. After about a week of this I found a new meaning for the word flare. Man, my basket was stopping traffic! I am now a confirmed 2 1/4 inch. Lots of chewing gum for gentle teeth!

Dear Chewing Gum,

Thanks for sharing your ingenuity. You have a healthy wad of skin, Gum. You've also got a strong and long frenulum under your cockhead to allow the back-roll of your foreskin that far down your shaft. Your frenulum must have benefited from all that foreskin stretching. It all goes to illustrate that the more attention a cock gets, the happier and healthier it is!

While I can't wait to find some wooden napkin rings, I must point out a couple of considerations for my more adventurous readers. Make sure you start your stretching regime slowly: step by step. Don't try to become a 2 1/4 inch over night! You could break blood vessels or cause tiny splits in your foreskin if you rush it. You certainly don't want to split your frenulum — it hurts like hell! Going by the rule of thumb that foreskin stretching should not hurt, you be the judge of your progress. In any case, you'll be amazed at how fast you develop a fat wad of chewing gum — for gentle teeth.

Hey Bud!

I am a clipcock, but I dig pillcocks. I tease my uncut friends by calling them pillcock. They think I am insulting their uncircumcised dicks by calling them something ugly... like a bitter pill. For me, swallowing a long slithery foreskin is like slurping on a candy cane.

I first read the word pillcock in your book Foreskin. I was amazed that the term cock has been used in the English Language for centuries. I always thought it was just a dirty word that the nasty kids at my school thought up. Where did cock come from? When did the English start using cock instead of the word penis? How about prick, peter and dick? Are there also words the English have long used to describe the penis? By the way, how did the phallus get the name penis? I guess my high school English teacher didn't tell us everything. How about completing my education, Bud?

Dear Clipcock.

So, you need an English lesson? OK readers, let's have a class on word origins. Note pads ready? Who knows where such vulgar words as cock, prick and peter come from? No, not from the shit-house wall! They came from the same source as such words as fuck, piss, whore and, yes, shit. They are all words used by the early Anglo-Saxons in the British Isles....and, they were very respectable words until old William the Conqueror crossed the English Channel. He said, "Let them eat penis" (instead of cock)!

"With the conquest of England in 1066 by William of Normandy, the Anglo-Saxon language of the British Isles underwent several alterations," writes Charles Panati in his book Extraordinary Origins of Everyday Things (Perennial Library 1987). "As the French speaking Normans established themselves as the ruling caste, they treated the native Saxons and their language as inferior. Many Saxon words were regarded as crude simply because they were spoken by Saxons. Some of these words, once inoffensive, survived and passed eventually into English as coarse, impolite, or foul expressions. Thus, the Saxon word cock became the Norman penis, Saxon fuck became Norman fornicate, piss became urine. Shit became excrement, whore became prostitute, sweat became perspiration, and so on."

Now, lesson number three:
penis.
The word William brought to England actually comes from Latin and it means tail.

OK, students, lesson number one: cock. This word describing the male organ of copulation, comes from the English verb to cock (definition: to set erect). What does a fellow spend most of his life "setting erect"? Right! His cock, of course. Lesson number two: prick comes from the verb to peter (def: to diminish energy). And class, what diminishes a fellow's energy faster than anything else? Shooting off his peter, of course. Now, lesson number three: penis. The word William brought to England actually comes from Latin and it means tail. According to the early Romans, you guys have a tail between your legs. Actually, there is a great deal of classical literature referring to your cocks as "tails." Take, for instance, the nursery rhyme about "what little boys are made of." "Puppy-dog Tails" — of course!

"Puppy-dog Tails?" Well, let's face it, it wasn't too long ago (before socialized medicine stopped paying for circumcisions in 1949) that the English were docking the tails of their dogs as well as the "tails" of their boys. Which brings this lesson to the origins of the words clipcock and pillcock. It was slightly over three hundred years ago when British soldiers and public servants were building The Empire and — meeting up the sword swinging Moslem Moghuls in India — they started returning home with their foreskins shackled off. Circumcised penises began showing up in the barracks and the boys' schools and eventually became the favored penis style among the British upper class.

The British working class, not having the opportunity to serve The Throne abroad, remained uncircumcised. For many generations, British males were divided between the two types of cocks. Thus evolved the words clipcock (circumcised) and pillcock (uncircumcised). Now class, can anyone tell me why an uncut dick was called a pillcock? No, an uncircumcised penis is certainly not a bitter pill! Anyone else? Yes, a penis with a foreskin can be pulled. A healthy, long, loose foreskin can be pulled up and down over the entire penis and far beyond the cock-head. Yeah! Oh, pardon me class, back to the lesson. A cock which could be "pulled" became, of course, pullcock. Pullcock somehow became pillcock. (You know those English accents!) It was very important to be able to pull your cock if you were a British cadet in India. If you could not "Strip ye yard" (according to Allen Eduardes in his book The Rape of India), the company surgeon was "obliged to clip ye skin entire." Yikes!

To illustrate how a nice word can get fucked-up, let's take fuck. The Saxon word fuck came from the Old English verb fokken (according to Panati) which meant "to beat against." The word fornicate came from the Latin verb fornix, which meant "to frequent a brothel" — naughty, naughty! Today, however, to fornicate is polite, but to fuck is perfectly terrible.

Class, one last word and you can go home: dick. No, dick didn't come to us from the Saxons. It came from modern English slang. Once, dick was an affectionate nickname for a friend, or a nice guy, and was used interchangeably with the word chap. Now, class, who's the best friend you'll every have in your life? Right! That nice chap hanging between your legs, your own dick. Yeah! Go home!

Clipcock, it's a shame your high school English teacher neglected to complete your education . I'm glad I was able to help. Happy pulling.

P.S. While we are on the subject of words, let's set the record straight on the word gay, once and for all! We have heard homophobes say, "The homosexual community stole the word gay, which means happy. They use it in error to describe their lifestyle, which is not happy." That's bullshit... historically speaking!

"The term 'gay,' synonymous today with 'homosexual,' dates back to thirteenth-century France, when gai referred to the 'cult of courtly love' — that is, homosexual love — and a 'lover' was a gaiol," writes Charles Panati. It seems that Eleanor of Aquitaine — daughter of the Duke of Aquitaine, wife of King Louis VII of France, late the wife of King Henry II of England, later the mother of two British monarchs, powerful lady and fag-hag — favored the company of gaiols. Her palace was famous for its "gay" courtiers. "The troubadour poetry of that period explicitly discussed this 'cult' love," continues Panati. All Europe became entranced by Eleanor's exotic court. I suppose most of my readers know Eleanor from the movie The Lion in Winter, in which she was played by Katharine Hepburn.

Critics of Eleanor considered her court to be "frivolous." After she passed into history, the word gay degenerated in use to mean any person who was "frivolous," or socially undesirable. For many centuries it was used to describe prostitutes. Then, during the nineteenth century, it became trendy for the gentleman (of "Gay Paree" or the "Gay Nineties") to be dangerously frivolous — as a fashion statement. Such frivolity became synonymous with "being happy." Thus, gay became "happy" — incorrectly.

Through the ages, gay continued to be used in its original meaning by certain intellectuals and a few private "gay" communities. According to Panati, "It's first public (correct) use in the United States was in the 1939 Hollywood comedy, Bringing Up Baby, when Cary Grant [costarring with Katharine Hepburn — again!], sporting a dress, exclaimed that he had 'gone gay'." If homophobes think gay means happy, then they are equating "the cult of courtly love" with happiness.

Oh fuck, why argue over words? I'd rather spend my time pulling on pillcocks.

Right, men?

CHEESE LOGS

If I hadn't woken up so early that morning, I would not have gotten myself into all that trouble.

On the other hand, had I slept longer, I might have missed out on one of the most important lessons in my life. Some noise in the street outside had jolted me back to full consciousness even though I was still not ready to get up.

The early morning sun, already well up in the sky, foretold another hot and humid day. The room was already stiflingly hot even with the windows wide open. These early September days were most often real scorchers—the final gasps of summer grinding slowly but mercilessly to a halt.

Homework

For an instant, I was caught off guard by the strange and unfamiliar furnishings. I knew that I was not waking up in my own room at home. Recognition of where I was sent a burst of excitement through my body. It made me quiver a bit when I remembered that this was my first day at college. At last, here I was away from home for the very first time in my life — on my own and ready to start a completely new phase of life. For nearly nineteen years, I had waited for this moment. A flood of new ideas raced through my mind, mostly tempered with the uncertainty of what my new life would be like.

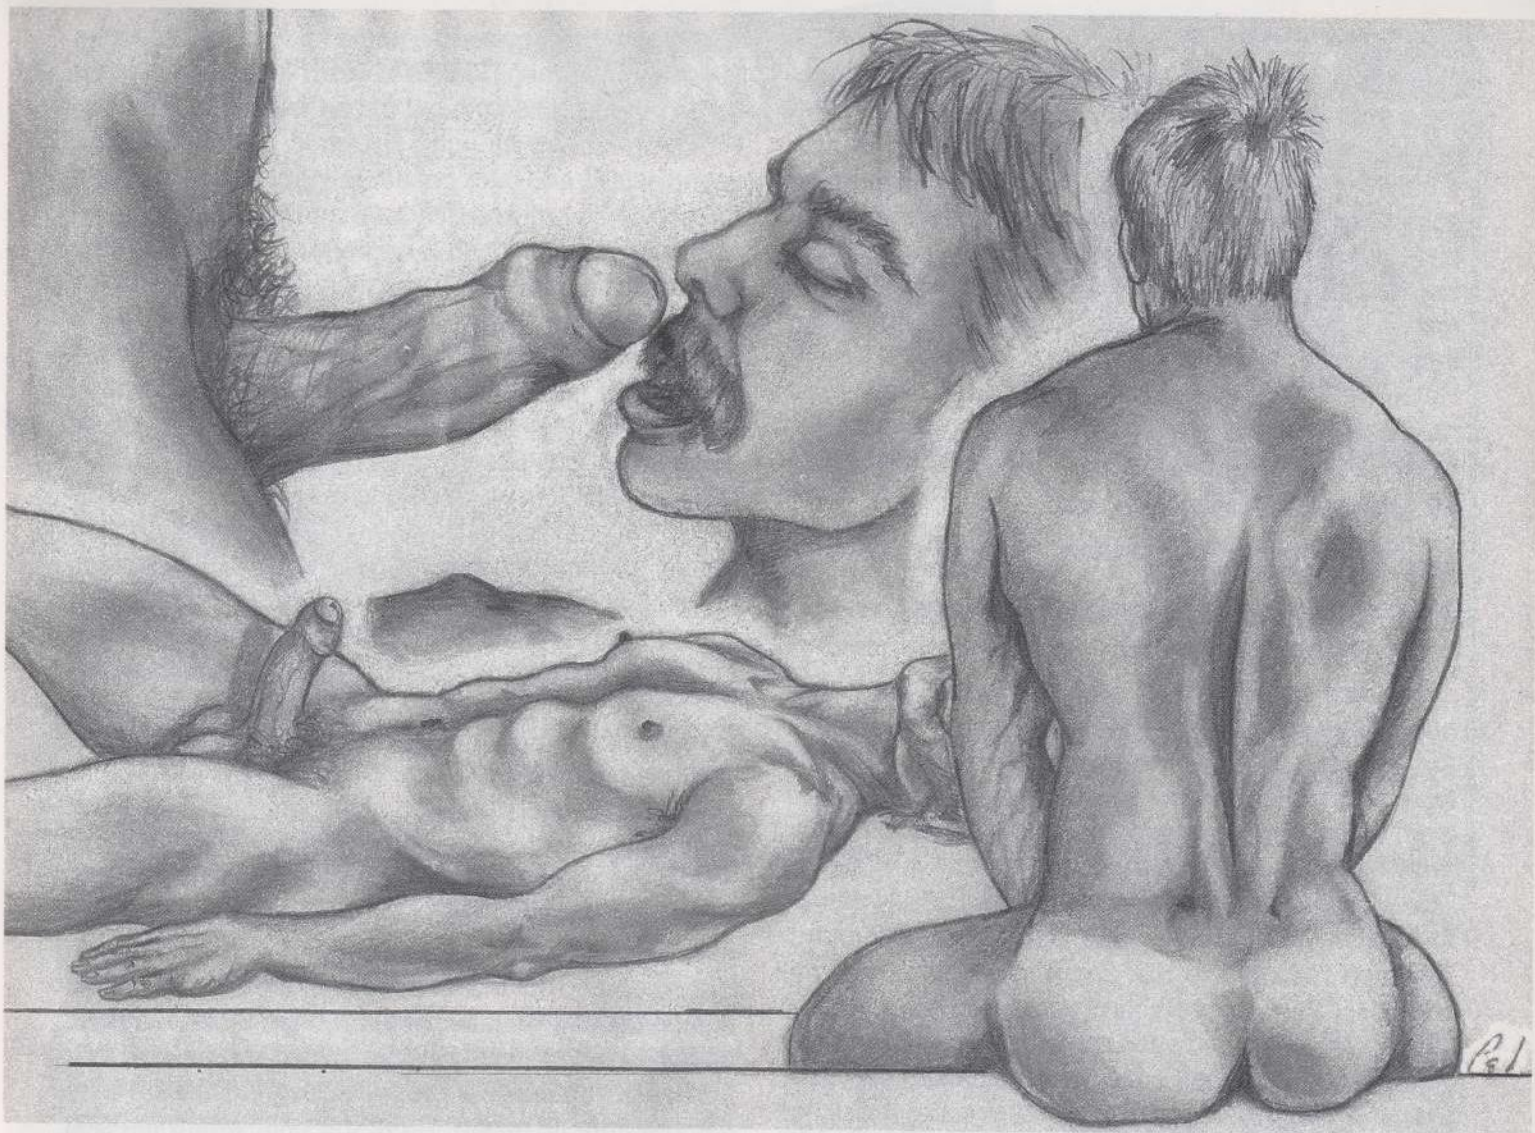

Still too early to get out of bed, although I knew that I would never be able to doze off again with all those thoughts running through my mind. Damn, it was hot! I had not needed the blankets or even a sheet for cover all night long. They lay in a crumpled mass, damp with perspiration at the foot of the bed. I had slept in my jockey shorts and they, too, were soggy with sweat.

Even though I was now in a completely new setting, almost automatically, I went for my usual morning activity — groping my body, ending with a frolic with my crotch as I dawdled in bed. I had been doing this for as long as I could remember and enjoyed my explorations as an assuring beginning for each new day. It had always been a time of day when I could be certain of privacy and not being caught doing something that I had been cajoled into believing was dead wrong for a man even to think about.

My right hand edged under the elastic band of my briefs and I ran my fingers through the thick kinks and curls of my pubic hair. A bit wiry and totally undisciplined, but it always felt so good to let my fingers wander through it like a big comb. It must have been because the room was so hot that I did not have my usual morning hard on. My cock was showing no signs of life whatsoever. It lay in a sluggish and totally indifferent pose on my left leg.

My hand moved down to my balls. Their sack, usually a bit tight and wrinkled most of the time, had expanded with the heat and hung down in a big fold of flaccid skin between my legs. It was damp with sweat and very loose, giving my balls plenty of room to slip and slide over each other and back again. I enjoyed fondling those precious nuts, especially when they hung low like this. I kept giving them affectionate little squeezes.

Even with all this handling of my balls, there was still no sign I was going to have a hard-on that morning. My hand moved along to that spot in my pubic hair where my cock is rooted to my body. Then, my fingers crept slowly along the limp and totally disinterested shaft, checking out the blood vessels and piss tube underneath. My fingers reached that narrow ring of rough and super-sensitive scar tissue that circles my shaft a half inch or so behind the head and then I caressed it all the way around several times before moving further along on my flaccid dick.

Now my fingers were gliding over that section of smooth, delicate skin just behind the rim of my cockhead. Playing with this part of my dick was always especially rewarding since the flesh there is so tender to the touch.

Even now, with a totally limp dick, gently rubbing the corona all the way around and over the frenum felt so good it made my body tingle with little goose bumps. This provided me with the hope that I might yet be rewarded with an erection.

My index finger probed the piss slit and gave it a few teasing rubs before going all the way around the rim again. I finished my morning grope by grasping the whole of my limp member just behind the head, pulled down on what little skin was left, and gave it an affectionate little squeeze. I enjoyed playing with myself this way almost every morning and it was nearly always climaxed with a raging hard-on and an explosive jack-off session. But my uncooperative cock, steaming in the stifling heat, was indifferent to action of that kind this morning. Perhaps it was just as well. I probably would not have been able to do a very good job of it with those thoughts about college running through my mind. A good hand job needs and deserves a guy's full and undivided attention. After all, a man owes that to himself.

Jack-off, hell! Why was I even thinking such a thing? I couldn't jack-off like that any more! I suddenly remembered that I was not alone as I had always been back home. I now had a roommate. What would he think if he woke up and caught me the very first day doing something like that? For as long as I could remember, I had been warned, threatened, cajoled about letting anyone catch me playing with myself. That was the main reason I used these morning groping sessions when there was no one around to catch me in the act. In fact, I also had hang-ups about anyone even seeing my naked crotch under most conditions.

A good hand job needs and deserves a guy's full and undivided attention.

I was so shy about such things that I scarcely handled myself at all when taking a piss or washing in the shower when anyone else was present. I usually wore a towel around my waist in the locker room and even turned sideways when sharing a urinal with other guys — whether they were strangers or even friends. Touching — or even giving more than a passing glance at another guy's dick — was also forbidden ground. Although I wanted to talk about such things with my buddies, I always got embarrassed when the subject of sex, cocks, balls, and such came up. I wanted to know whether my friends jacked off, how they did it, how often. I wanted to compare my dick with theirs. But it was not to be. Thoughts like these unfulfilled wishes left nothing but frustration, disappointment and, I must say, ignorance and naivete in their place.

In spite of such inhibitions, I always managed to check out all of my buddies, teammates, teachers and even strangers whenever I had a chance. Most of the time I took advantage of such situations by feigning disinterest. I kept telling myself not to do it, but, strain as hard as I could, I just could not manage to stop getting the best look I could. I kept trying to convince myself that I was doing it solely for research interest and nothing else. I think such attitudes turned me into some kind of closet voyeur.

But now, coming to the awareness that my roommate was in bed just a few feet from my own, I rose up on my elbow to look over and see whether he had caught me in the act of playing with myself. Up to now I had never been caught and I prayed that my luck would continue. That seemed to be especially important in this case, since I had just met my roommate the day before. We were basically still strangers.

But my groggy state of mind had not prepared me for what I saw when I looked toward his bed. What I saw damn near knocked me out of bed and on to the floor. Randy was there all right, stretched out on his back, sound asleep and buck naked. But that wasn't the main thing. He had one hell of a hard-on that stood up at an angle of some seventy-five degrees or so from his body. It was so stiff and erect that it literally leaped out of his blond pubic hair to what looked like an altitude of eight inches. But that still was not the main thing that excited me so much. He had a foreskin that covered his cockhead nearly all the way to the tip, where it had slipped back just enough to expose a small bit of his naked, purple-colored glans that was peeking out.

I had never seen another man with a hard-on before, let alone one that still had its foreskin. The piece of skin that nearly covered the end of his cock sported some large veins that took an irregular course as they moved upward along the shaft. I was especially enthralled with the point on his skin where it widened out, marking the distinct ridge that showed where his cockhead began.

It didn't stop there — that piece of satin skin continued almost to the end of his dick, where it opened just enough to show a little bit of what was hiding inside. I was astonished that his dick looked downright beautiful and inviting to me, covered with that white fold of skin that smoothed out the sharpness of the contours of the corona against the lower shaft. Nevertheless, the head underneath was clearly visible, even pronounced, as it pushed out against his foreskin appearing to want to be set free from its prison. Up at the end, where the skin folded neatly back and under again, it was retracted just enough to reveal that tempting bit of cockhead and the piss slit — peeking out like a Cyclops eye.

My whole attention was riveted on this new spectacle of masculine display. I couldn't take my eyes off that gorgeous cock and those balls that hung so loosely in their sack. Randy's legs were spread apart just enough to allow those big testicles to slip down between them. I felt a strong jolt of excitement run all through my body, the likes of which I had never experienced before. At the same time, I could also feel that something was happening down there in my briefs. In no time, I, too, had a relentless hard-on that was straining against my fly. I could feel my balls tighten up and I began to tremble all over.

Despite my nervous hesitation, I crept silently out of my bed so I could have a closer look at my roommate's gorgeous pecker.

I had met my roommate Randy the day before when we had both moved into the men's dormitory. We had spent the afternoon and evening getting to know one another and arranging the room to our liking. I was immediately impressed that he was a very nice guy, extremely considerate and had a cute smile. He had a good build, a muscular body and a mind that was quick and strong. His eyes were an incredible shade of blue that seemed to change with his moods. When he was trying to understand something, those eyes were both penetrating and probing. They were, I am certain, an important asset of his uncanny skills for detecting and understanding what I was thinking.

He enjoyed talking about art, science, music and especially philosophy. His mood alternated between scholastic seriousness and periods of boyish fun that could best be described as mischievous. His laugh was contagious.

Several times, as we were moving furniture, Randy brushed against me and I thought it felt good — possibly even reassuring. At the same time Randy's eyes showed no sign of apology and I had a feeling that it might have been deliberate. I thought about this for a while, but soon got caught up again in re-arranging our furniture.

But, for the moment, I had a good look at the eight-inch tool poking up from his groin. That piece of skin started sliding back over his cockhead. I knew for sure that I really wanted him to be a friend. In fact, right then, despite all those admonitions that were welling up from my unconscious mind, I wanted more than that. I wanted to take hold of that big dick with my own hands and pull back on that foreskin. I wanted to skin it back all the way as far as it would go — and see what was inside.

At the same time, I was totally confused, even dumbfounded about these feelings that had come over me so strongly. I was really shaken. For the first time in my life I actually found myself wanting to feel another man's cock. And something even more startling — perhaps bordering on panic — I actually wondered what it would be like to take that hard piece of meat in my mouth: taste it, run my tongue all over the head and gradually push that foreskin back with my lips. I had been told what were supposed to be horror stories of guys doing things like that with each other, but had never even considered doing anything like that myself.

More confusion flooded my mind. I recalled how I always made those sly efforts to peek at other guys in the showers, at the urinals or when we stopped to take a leak along a hiking trail in the woods. I had always assumed that this kind of curiosity was much the same as comparing other statistics like height, weight, muscularity and other body parts. However, to learn about other males sexual equipment required extra vigilance on my part. In only a few permissible situations was it possible for us to be naked together for more than a very short period. Even then, anything more than a fleeting glance at another man's crotch was frowned on severely. It had to be done in secret. And it seemed I was always in a defensive mood and ready to make denial if caught.

Not much doubt about it. I must have repressed the idea that this constant and secret voyeurism excited me sexually. But I certainly was excited now, here in my dorm room, on the first day of college. For the first time in my life, another man's hard-on turned his whole body into a genuine sexual treasure that totally engulfed my attention.

Man, I really had something going that I just could not understand. In confusion, I just stood there hovering over Randy's naked body, still not able to take my eyes off his beautiful big cock. Much bigger than my own, it was at least a full inch longer and a bit bigger around. But then I noted that right now my own cock felt bigger than ever before and it seemed to be struggling to wrestle its way out of my briefs.

The night before, when Randy and I were preparing to go to bed, both of us got ready to go down the hall to the shower room. I am certain that showering together would have lessened the shock I was feeling this morning. Maybe my usual curiosity would have been satisfied and that would have been the end of it.

We had stripped down to our briefs and had towels over our shoulders when I received a long-winded phone call from home. Everyone in my family wanted to talk, especially my father who went on-and-on about finances, study and sexual matters. After a long wait that seemed to be endless, Randy gave up and showered alone. When he returned I was still on the phone and when I finally hung up, he was sound asleep. He lay there in his briefs and his well-filled basket revealed that he was a very well hung young man. Even with my keen imagination, that sight the night before had not prepared me for the explosive revelation I was having this morning.

Some time in the night Randy had apparently gotten so warm that he had slipped off his briefs. Sure enough, there they were tossed to the end of the bed, all damp and soggy like mine. As far as my own briefs were concerned, I think 'wet' would be a better word to use. A big wet, sticky spot appeared on the front of my shorts and it was growing rapidly in size. That clear, sticky stuff that oozes out of my dick whenever I play with it or jack-off was coming in big sticky drops. I ran my hand down inside my briefs and found that my cock was drenched in its own juice.

The instant I touched my swollen tool, I came near to exploding with a flood of hot semen. I quickly jerked my hand away since I didn't want Randy to wake up finding me shooting a big load of jism all over his bed and his naked body. I pulled my sticky fingers out of my briefs and tried to wipe them off on a towel.

All this time, which seemed to me like hours, I could not take my eyes off that enormous dick Randy was offering in his sleep. I was captivated, truly entranced by his foreskin, the end of which had now slipped back even further revealing more of his cockhead treasure. I had seen many guys with foreskins before, mostly in the showers after gym class, but never one that was trying its best to shield a hard-on. This one was different in another way. I wanted to touch it with my hand and even with my tongue. I couldn't believe what I was thinking.

I stretched out the elastic on the front of my jockey shorts to take another look at my own cock to make comparisons. I tried to imagine what it would be like if it had been allowed to grow up still sporting its foreskin. I had tried to find out several times before by pulling my shaft skin as far forward as I could over my cockhead. That proved futile since I didn't even have enough skin left to make it go half way when it was soft. When I beat off, I scarcely had enough skin to bump up against my glans on the upstrokes.

Now, with my hard-on stretching the skin on my shaft to its maximum, that tell-tale scar had moved down the shaft at least another full inch or more. Where the foreskin had been attached, the scar now stood out in colorful, bold relief against the ivory-white of my pecker shaft and the throbbing, blushing pink of my cockhead. By contrast, that little bit of glans that was tormenting me so viciously on Randy's cock was a deeper color and showed a nice, smooth sheen. It appeared to be a much brighter shade of pink, bordering on purple. I had no idea there could be this much difference in coloration and wondered what shade the whole head would show when it was skinned all the way back.

A dull ache had developed in my balls which were now pulled up tight against my body. My own cock was competing with Randy's for attention. Man, I just had to get some relief. I wanted to jack-off. No! I wanted to jack Randy off. No again! I wanted to take that cock of his and push it all the way down my throat! I was now shaking so violently that it seemed I had lost all control over my body and my mind.

Something just had to be done — and quickly too. Maybe I should just get out of that room and head for the showers. For sure, that would calm me down and get me out of this fix. No, that would not work either. Walking down the hallway with a dripping hard-on like mine would lead to cat calls from any of the other guys I met — and a hell of a lot of embarrassment

Maybe I should, after all, give myself a good jerking off. That, at least would give me some relief from all this explosive sexual tension and take care of that hard-on that was starting to take on menacing proportions. Certainly that would make me no more noticeable than any other guy that I might encounter in the showers. Unless of course if I rubbed it too hard and made it turn bright red as I sometimes did.

I tried to convince myself that beating off would take care of my problem. But that was no use. I had to face up to it. What I really wanted was to take hold of Randy's cock instead of my own.

"All right," I thought, "this is it. I'm just going to have to take care of this matter once and for all before it completely gets the best of me."

I decided that I could probably get away with merely touching Randy's cock. Just a feather touch. I would grasp it, oh, so gently, and he would go on sleeping and never know what had happened. At the same time, with my left hand, I would give my own slippery cock those few strokes that I knew would make me shoot my load right there in my briefs. That would take care of the mess and Randy wouldn't know what had happened even if he did wake up.

With one hand holding on to my cock down inside my briefs and getting ready to give it a quick work-out, my other hand stretched cautiously out toward the prize Randy was offering in his sleep. Somehow, I managed to get better control over my trembling, although sweat was now pouring all down my body. My hand was now within inches of touching another guy's dick for the first time. But — I was paralyzed with fear. Fear of getting caught here on my first day at college.

I was caught red-handed in the act of making a blatant sexual advance...

By now, I was so distraught that all sorts of silly schemes to get out of this situation raced through my mind. At the same time, I knew that none of them would work. My skills at solving thorny problems had completely abandoned me. And this inability to think rationally compounded my fear even further. I think I must have just frozen there, crouching over Randy's bed, my hand outstretched toward his erection and my eyes fixed in a steady stare at the thing I was too terrified to touch.

Just as I seemed to have reached the very pinnacle of despair, the absolute worst thing happened. Randy sighed, his body twitched and he opened his eyes. He was now fully awake.

And there, poised with my hand ready to take hold of his cock, I was crouching over his bed and his naked body. I was caught red-handed in the act of making a blatant sexual advance on my roommate. Clearly, I was guilty. Now I was in real trouble.

Randy saw me crouching there. I could not move. The next few seconds seemed like hours and I felt they were going to reach on eternally. Then Randy's captivating smile flashed across his face and he asked sleepily, "What's going on, Ted?"

I tried to answer, to grasp for some excuse — any excuse — for my most unusual posture beside his bed. And for the fact that I was obviously reaching for his erect cock.

No words would come out. My tongue went dry and my mouth felt parched. I could only make fuzzy noises that resembled a gurgle ending in a gasp. Randy just couldn't help knowing what I was getting ready to do, and any excuse I might come up with would be futile. I was trapped like a rat.

Randy sat up in bed and somehow I managed to get to my feet. Now, Randy's face was in a position directly opposite my crotch where he could look straight at the fly of my briefs only a few inches away.

"Now I think I know what's going on," Randy said as he noted the big wet spot on my shorts. He glanced down at his own erect cock and then back at my face which was now bright red and burning hot with embarrassment. His smile was now replaced by a frown or what might better be described as a scowl.

I couldn't move; I couldn't speak. I tried secretly to pull my hand out of my briefs and away from my own cock, but Randy's nearby eyes couldn't miss the movement.

"Well, now, just what is going on, Teddy?" Randy asked again as he rose off his bed and stood directly in front of me. When I did not reply, he reached down, took hold of the elastic band on both sides of my briefs and pulled them down over my ass and let them fall to the floor. As he did so, my hard member sprang out and swung heavily from side to side. Still more incriminating evidence. The "smoking gun", so to speak.

"Wow! Man, just look at that." Randy exclaimed as he bent down to have a better look at what he had discovered hiding in my briefs. "Looks like you've got one hell of a nice peter there, Teddy-boy. And ready for action too, I would say."

More drops of crystal clear pre-cum were oozing out of the end of my dick and a big drop of it hung on a long and sticky gossamer thread it had spun almost down to my knees. No mistaking what that was all about, or what had caused it.

I started trembling uncontrollably again. This time it hurt. Randy's piercing blue eyes were looking into mine and I was certain I could see accusation burning in them. Those eyes! Those deep, blue, penetrating eyes! Now, I imagined even more retribution. I was being victimized by a pair of accusing eyes.

Those eyes. I was on trial by those eyes, by Randy's fearsome gaze. Any minute now, I expected him to assume the role of judge and pronounce sentence.

What dreadful punishment would be handed down? Punishment was certain and I awaited judgment!

Randy's eyes were burning deep into the core of my existence. I tried to meet his deep and steady gaze like a man — although in my shame, I wanted in the worst way to divert my eyes from his. I knew I had been caught transgressing against the old and unwritten, but often-stated law, that had survived to become a barrier against male sexual intimacy.

Now Randy's eyes were in the process of enforcing this old law. The evidence was there; it was uncompromising. My hard-on, wet with pre-cum was conclusive.

Then, all at once and without warning, Randy again flashed that enchanting smile. He put his arms around me and nearly smothered me with a warm embrace. He kissed me on the cheek. I went limp, collapsed in his arms and pressed my body weakly against his in order to remain standing.

"Take it easy, Teddy-Bear," he said. "Try to calm down and stop trembling." His voice was tender and reassuring. He hugged me close once again. Tears welled up in my eyes and I started to cry.

Randy reached out with his right hand and snapped the lock on the door that led into the hallway. Then his soft hands moved lovingly down my back, caressing it gently all the way. When they reached my hips, he pulled me close to him, my crotch pressed tightly against his own.

Now, at last, I could feel his cock, harder than ever, rubbing against mine. It probed upward, caught between our two bodies. I could feel it sliding across the sweaty skin of my stomach. That beautiful tool was now wedged tightly between us as it inched upward toward my navel. All at once I was aware that his cockhead had started to slide out of its sheath and push its warm and naked presence against my body.

What my hand had been denied for so long, I was now feeling on my naked stomach. I could feel the ridge that marked the underside of his corona and frenum which was now moving sensuously above my pubic hair. The two lobes on the underside of his cockhead came together at the frenum and I could feel the cleavage distinctly. His foreskin had retracted completely.

His cock felt warm and, oh, so sensuous. At last, I was getting my first chance to feel action with his foreskin. My whole body tingled with excitement. My balls came in contact with Randy's almost as though they had been seeking each other out. His cockhead was now moving with more ease than before and I was suddenly hit by the fact that the end of it was wet! Randy's fountain of pre-cum had started to flow. His morning erection was now gearing up for another purpose.

My head collapsed on Randy's shoulder. My cock, now dripping copiously with pre-cum buried itself in Randy's crotch, its head pushing against Randy's ball sac. As it did so, I found myself losing control over everything. At that moment, I knew that all effort and attempt to hold back was futile. Furthermore, I didn't want to hold back. I couldn't.

My whole body became engulfed with violent convulsions and intoxicating sensations that began in my groin as I shot a fusillade of hot steamy semen into the tangled mass of Randy's pubic hair. Volcanic spurts of thick, white juices erupted over and over again with a violence that was truly electric. When they finally stopped, my balls felt sudden relief from their ordeal. They collapsed, totally spent, into their flaccid sack. They now hung low, once again, dormant and immobile. I was completely exhausted and had no power to stop my tears which were now flowing freely.

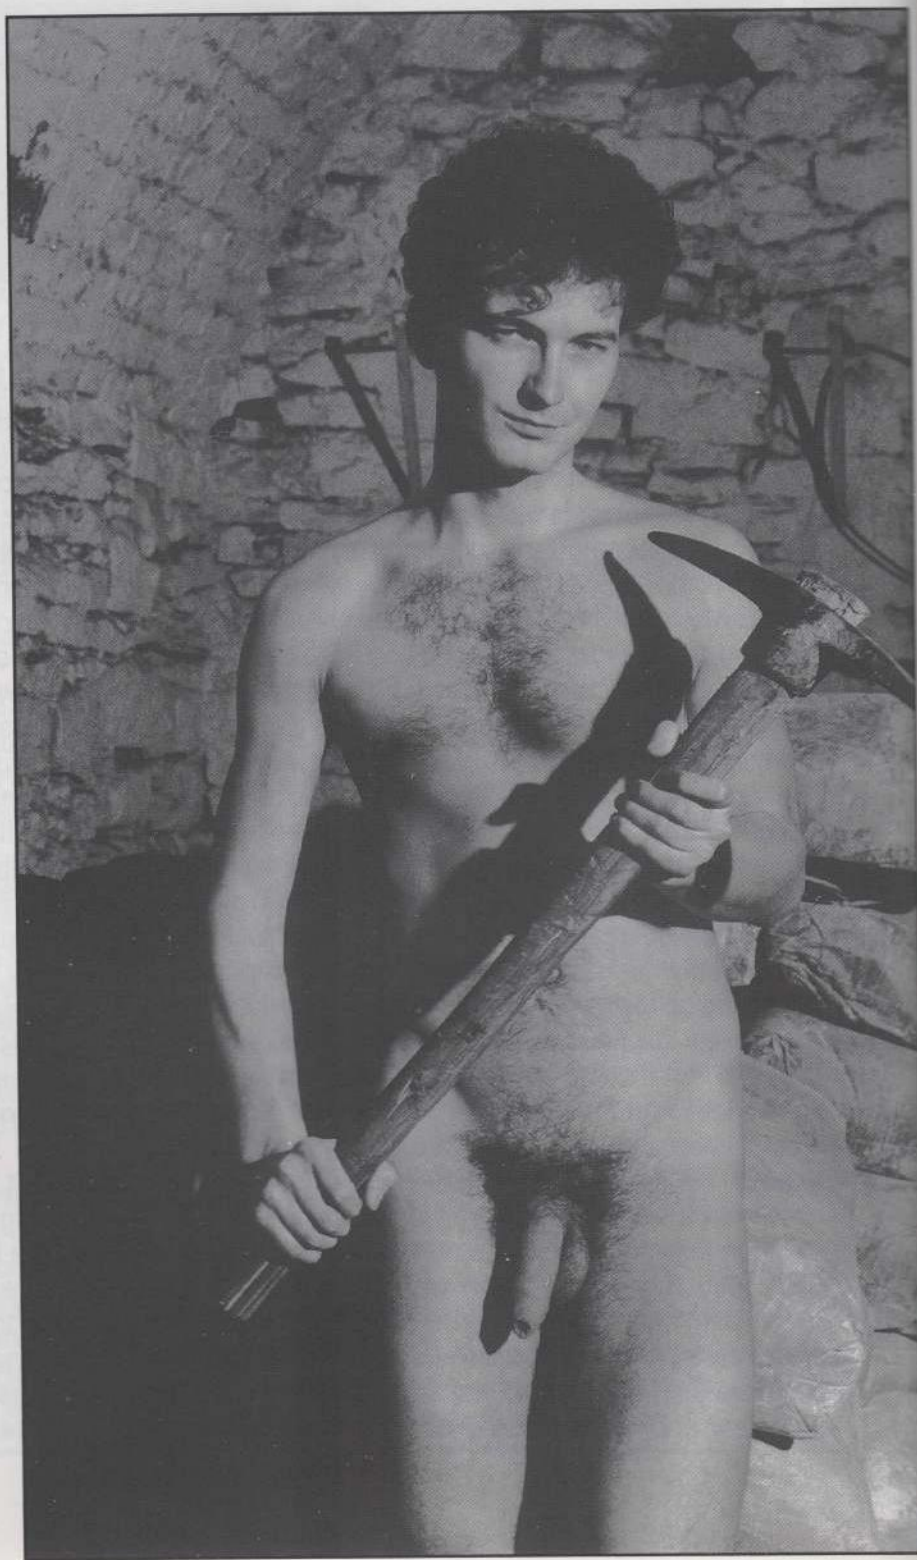

"Please don't cry, Teddy-Bear," Randy comforted me, his voice laden with understanding and affection. "I think we have managed to start doing some pretty important homework before we have even been given any assignments." Randy's eyes found mine again. This time I was certain that I saw compassion in them and I think more than a little bit of love. As our eyes met, his hand took mine and slowly moved it down across his chest and lower stomach stopping at his groin.

I was now no longer afraid to take that prize into my eager hand.

The PUMP Community Finds Itself

by Walt Owen

ANOTHER CLOSET OPENS UP

A men-only event is in progress. As the men enter, they go to the coat check, but most of the men don't stop at their coats; coats are followed by sweaters, shirts, pants, sometimes even underwear. Some men are left wearing only their boots and socks. Some sport jocks or briefs. Some even stay fully clothed. What they don't check are the small satchels that they bring with them. Those they pick up—and enter.

To many of you this probably sounds like the entrance to the Mineshaft, the Sling, Prism Gallery and a host of other play spaces that have opened and closed in the past fifteen years. What makes this different is the activity that is bringing in the men. This is a Pump Party.

You've likely seen these things: large, sleek, clear cylinders that you are somehow supposed to fill; the red or black handles and attachments unique to each model, all promising to make you a dangerous thrill in the bedroom.

I succumbed to the lure of a John Holmes Penis Pump in my early 20's. I had never heard of these pumps before, and my mind filled with the image of myself having more cock to stuff into someone's face (find me a man who, in his heart, wouldn't like to enlarge his meat, no matter how big it already is). Fortunately, I was high enough at the time that I didn't feel any embarrassment as I walked up to the elevated counter at the Times Square sex shop to pay for my fantasy maker. When I got it home, I settled down to business. I read the directions, got the lube and went to work.

What a disappointment. For some reason, I thought it would be an erotic sensation — instead, it hurt. All I felt was a constant tugging that my hand was much better at. Worse, when I removed this instrument of torture (M's take notice) my cock wasn't any different. It wasn't any bigger, or thicker, or anything. All I got was a thinner wallet.

That was the end of my experience with pumping for years. I never even talked about it with any of my friends. We would discuss every other subject: intimate sex acts with our partners, painful childhood memories, job crises; but for some reason I found the subject of pumping taboo. To imply that I was in any way unhappy with what nature had gifted me was unthinkable (this was during the time of I'm O.K. — You're O.K., and we weren't allowed to think that anything wasn't O.K.).

During the 90s this attitude has changed dramatically. Now, we spend hours each week at the gym pushing nature's gifts to the limit, and if we don't like the nose that nature dealt us (or butt, pecs or chin) we call a surgeon. This same change in attitude has happened to the guys who use pumps. The past couple of years, I've gotten involved with the pump community, and the "up-front" manner many men have about their pump use is very different from my earlier experience.

Not all the men who purchased pumps back when I did stopped after one use. Many experimented with these "sold as novelty only; not intended for use" items and got real results.

Now I hear doctors on the radio talking about the use of pumps with total seriousness, and television talk shows — always hungry for the latest fads — have devoted shows to the topic of "penile enlargement" and have had pump users on the show share their experiences.

There are newsletters, videos, and even a magazine devoted to making "man's ultimate weapon" more formidable. Pump clubs are forming across the country, and the newly forming Pump Masters, New York City Chapter, has had requests from Europe for information on membership and pump parties, which brings us back to our men just entering the room.

As they enter the room, the men seek out others they know from earlier parties. Inside the bags are the cylinders, lube (Vaseline is to pumpers what Crisco is to handballers) and hand pumps that are the chalice and wafer for these men. It's a very mixed group; straight/gay, leather/sweater (I would estimate about 50% leather), young/old, gym studs/couch potatoes, cut/natural.

It is a community just discovering itself, and the sense of relief at not being alone is pervasive. Many of these men have been using pumps for years thinking that they were the only one (sound familiar?) and are thrilled to have other men with whom to discuss techniques and tricks. There is an intensity in the atmosphere — a tribalism that would make Robert Bly proud as these men strut their stuff. At the pump parties in public spaces there is usually very little body contact beyond some hand action, though a lot of phone numbers are passed back and forth for more private exploration later. Private parties make their own rules.

Cocks aren't the only thing that people pump. I know men who pump their nips (I tried it; I liked the effect), balls and asslips. I know transvestites and women who pump their breasts. I know women who pump their clits. All of these people are talking about it, and reading about it, and writing about it.

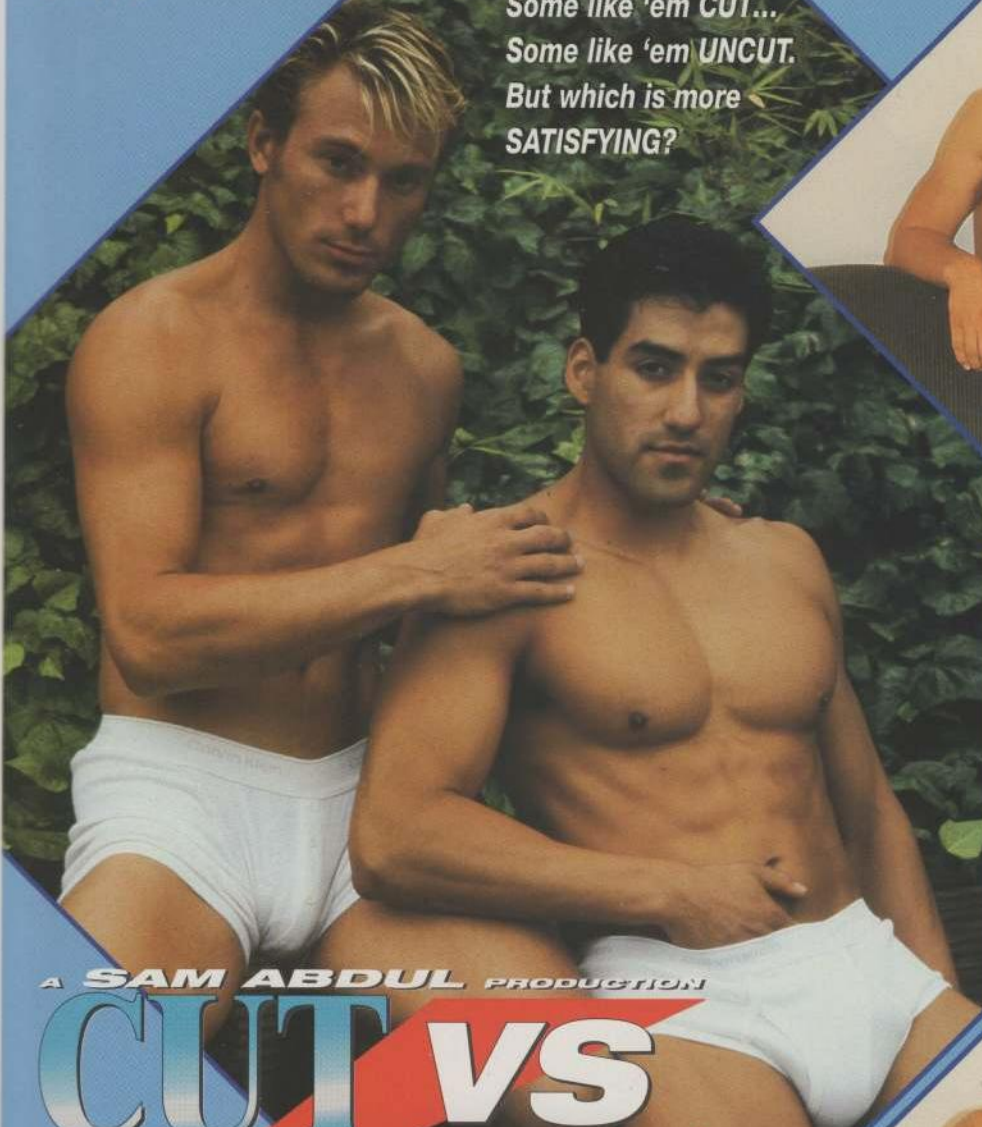

Pumping takes a patience that, I must admit, I have a hard time drumming up, but for those who do, the results can inspire. FQ

Ask DR. SKINNON

Dear Dr. Skinnon,

I am a 19 year old guy with a really nice dick. My only problem is that my skin is too tight. The skin will not pull back over the head of my dick when I am hard. Therefore I really try and not get hard too often. I want this corrected without losing all of my skin.

My doctor told me that I needed to be circumcised all the way. Is there another alternative with surgery to where I can still retain my natural look? Please help me. I am horny all the time and need to be able to release this feeling in my nuts.

*Paul,
University of Oklahoma*

Dear Paul,

Whatever you do... Do not let your doctor take the knife to your most prized possession. Most doctors do not have the faintest idea of the structure or function of the penis in its full and natural form. If he were to circumcise you, you would lose the most sensitive and erogenous part of your body. Stay as far away from him as possible.

One cannot imagine the pain and suffering that has come from adult circumcisions. Many men circumcised as adults have contacted me and are anxiously regaining glans coverage to compensate for what was unnecessarily taken from them. You would lose most all of your sensitivity and thousands of nerve endings that give you pleasure. Whether circumcised as a child or an adult, the result is a loss of 15 square inches of adult erogenous tissue.

If you are uncomfortably tight, you need to perform the following 'exercises' preferably after a warm shower, when the skin is relaxed. Using your thumbs or first fingers with a little oil or lotion of your choosing, work your fingers into the prepuce opening and gently pull sideways to open up the frenar band and stretch as far as you can without hurting but with tension on it. Hold it apart as long as you can and then repeat the procedure for about 20 minutes a day. In a few weeks with this daily regimen the skin should loosen up and start to become retractable during erection.

If you have a true case of phimosis, there are a number of non-circumcision surgical procedures that will release the frenar band. A Chinese technique is the use of a balloon inserted in the opening to do the same as above 'exercises' under medical supervision. (I have references if needed.) A Z- or Y-plasty surgical procedure can be performed without circumcising. There are some other procedures that are used in Europe and England, but I have not received the information on them at this writing.

Another stretching technique that is used to restore foreskins that has been quite successful is to pull the skin forward from the base of the penis and hold it forward and repeat it for at least 20 minutes a day. This procedure would lengthen the shaft skin and release the feelings in your nuts. (See The Joy of Uncircumcising for full instructions.)

Have fun stretching. It is a very pleasurable 'exercise.'

Dear Dr. Skinnon:

I have had this problem for several years. I am 25 and seem to be manufacturing more smegma as I get older. Sometimes within an hour after cleaning myself I can pull back my skin and there it is again. Now, I am not talking about a little bit. I mean, that by the end of the day it is already creeping over the head of my dick. My boyfriend likes cheese but thinks that this is really a little bit too much. He thinks that I am cleaning myself too much and that is the reason I keep making so much.

First of all, can you tell me what exactly is smegma? I know its purpose is to lubricate, but with me it's really getting to be too much. Several times during the day I pull back my skin and with my finger scrape the stuff off. Why am I getting so much as I get older? At this rate, by the time I am fifty it will be dripping down my pants. Please help and tell me what to do.

*Cheese Plant,
Omaha, NB*

Dear Cheese Plant,

The dictionary says that smegma is a 'detergent.' (from the Latin.) It also calls it foul smelling, but I am sure the writers of the dictionary do not appreciate some of the good things in life. Oh, well!

Sebum is a tallow like semi-liquid (soap) produced by the sebaceous glands located on the glans and inner lining of the foreskin. Sebum is produced and mixed with mucous and sloughed off skin cells to produce smegma to keep the glans penis clean by washing it from the body. It also lubricates, as you said. You will also notice sebum being exuded on the nose, and other places.

We are all unique and have an infinite variety of body styles and workings. From what you say, I would suppose that you have very productive sebaceous glands. It is also true that if you clean yourself too often the body may want to stabilize itself by overproducing to get rid of the man made detergents and return to a normal condition, which in your case is very lubricated.

I would use only water to rinse your glans and do it only when you shower to see if your body will quit trying to over compensate for your apparent cleanliness mania.

As we age, our body makes subtle changes. They say that when you reach 26 you have reached maturity and are on the downhill. (At more than twice that age, I still feel young!) Normally skin will get drier as you age, but we do not have any real predictors of that. A healthy diet with lots of veggies, fruit, chicken, fish and grains and exercise, with minimum amounts of red meat, alcohol or other deleterious substances will also help the body keep on its best course.

Just rinse yourself off far enough in advance so that your boyfriend will be able to lick your dick with just the right amount of the cheese on it.

May the foreskin be with you!

List Keeper

My first experience with a foreskin came at the age of about thirteen. My brother and I were both cut at birth as were most of my cousins. There was one cousin between us, age wise, who was adopted. That lucky fucker escaped the knife.

One occasion, while we were at his place, he invited us into the old barn to play doctor. When he dropped his shorts, I started my "career" of determining circumcision status of other guys. I just couldn't get over the beauty of that monster between his legs. His foreskin was quite tight. When he got a hardon he wouldn't let us skin it back because of the pain.

We wondered what that white stuff was (it was loaded). He urged me to lick it. I did get it in my mouth but was too dumb at the time to know what to do. There were a few other encounters after that but never a consummation of his desires.

When I got to high school and started showering with other boys for the first time I realized that my cousin wasn't the only guy with skin. Other guys were also natural. The variety was overwhelming.

I have still kept a list of the turn-ons.

A few years later in college, then ultimately in the Army, I was treated to an all new panorama of foreskins. The majority of guys at Fort Ord were with skin.

Today, finding foreskin is a challenge. Most guys in the shower at the gyms have that brown ring around their cocks. The rare exceptions make their way to my list.

Cheese Dick Protection Club

I was born with a cheesy dick. No matter how much I work it back and wash it off, the stuff is back right away.

I sure like having a foreskin, but I wish it wasn't so cheesy all the time.

I couldn't get my skin back when I was a little kid. It was too tight. But later on, I started pulling and twisting my skin, and before long I could pound the hell out of it.

My knob and skin were always covered with cheesy white stuff when I beat off. It sure felt great! I finally got the nerve to ask my dad about the white stuff on my dick one Saturday afternoon when we were working on his truck. I must have been 12 or 13. "That's just head cheese. It means you're starting to grow up."

I sure was listening! "All guys get cheese in there." Big-eyed I asked "You get white stuff there too, Dad?" See, I thought it was just me. "Yup, sure do. If you're like me, you'll get a lot in there, too."

I told him the white stuff was all over. He just grinned "Yes, that's how it is. Don't worry about it." I think he was telling me the truth, because a couple of years later I was loading the washing machine for mom and found a pair of his boxer shorts with a mess of dried cheese on the front. I sure would like to know how they got that way.

I got drafted into the Army after high school and caught hell about cheese. During the induction medical, I had to skin it back and show off a few days worth of cheese. My knob was covered with the stuff, too.

The medic said I better keep it clean or I'd be sorry. The short arm inspections in basic were shitty. You know the drill, cock and balls hanging out of fatigues.

"And skin it back, cheese dick!" I'd wash it out real good, but every time there'd be some cheese back in there again. I got really tired to listening to it.

So I pounded on the DI's door one morning and reported. I told him I was washing, "but the stuff is always in there. I can't do anything about it." It took a lot of courage.

He just smiled. "Well son, I understand your problem. I'm the same way. If you keep washing, I won't hassle you about it anymore." And he didn't. Short-arm inspections didn't have any "skin it backs" anymore.

Did you know there was a cheese dick protection club in the Army?

Italian Seeks Help From Buddies

Eight years ago my roommate and I lived in a large apartment complex. It was common knowledge we were gay.

We had an Italian neighbor, 33, married and handsome as hell. He would come over for a beer now and then. However, one day he came over, had a few beers, then stated his wife was on the rag and that he was horny as hell. "Can one of you guys help me out, maybe a blow job?"

We both had talked about what he'd be like and now we would know. I quickly agreed. He stated he had a piece of blind meat, then dropped his pants. He had no underwear, so his seven inch dick was standing at attention, for our inspection. His head was completely covered with foreskin. It tapered to a point, with an opening about as wide as a pencil. His overhang, even on hard, was about three quarters of an inch.

I started to take his whole dick into my mouth, but he stopped me. Then he instructed me to suck only on his foreskin nipple. He said "Suck it baby, like a woman's tit and it will reward you." I did as he asked.

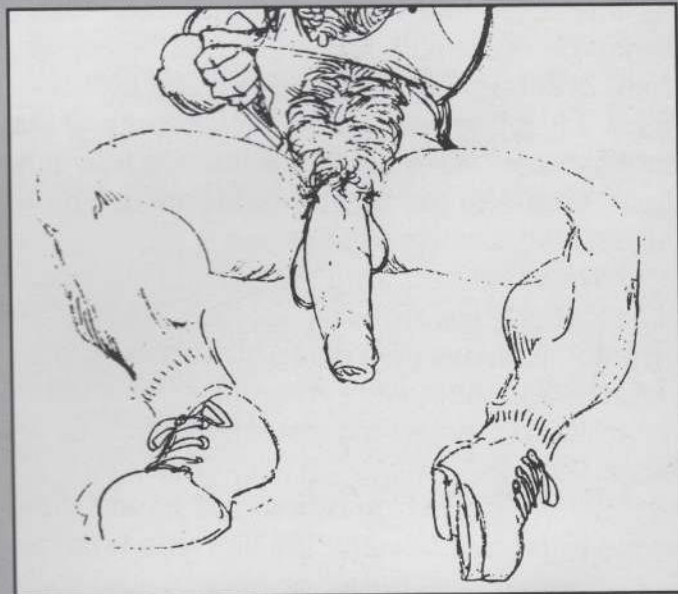

After about ten minutes he pulled away, saying he wasn't ready to shoot and would rest for a few minutes.

My roommate was amused to see his long white tapered foreskin was now cherry red, where I had drawn his blood to this nipple.

After only a few minutes, he offered me his skin again. It was only minutes later that he shot his load.

He was my first taste of blind meat. What a treat that was!

It was like drinking heavy cream through a straw. What a wonderful sensation! FQ

Cut VS Uncut

FROM
Forum Studios

Director: Sam Abdul

Cast: Johnny Rey, Tom West, Scott Hardman, Alex Carrington, Eric DiGiorgio, Scott Davis and Tony Brandon

Running Time: 85 minutes, approx.

Rating: FFF

Within one minute of watching the unique screen credits for this feature, I knew this was not going to be a ho-hum movie. The title background switches from an electronically enhanced uncut cock to an electronically enhanced cut cock. This is a clever device which immediately established the primes of the movie.

The story line concerns an established gay porn company called Cut Pix Inc. becoming aware of a small rival company which has copied their logo, box-art style and almost their name — Uncut Pix Inc. The sexual scenes are between members of the Cut Pix Co. and between members of the Uncut Pix Co. and between members of both companies.

Excellent editing from good coverage provided by director Abdul, thoroughly believable actors who can actually deliver lines and an intelligent script makes this endeavor an extremely entertaining video. The totally unrecognizable cast is a delight. Each actor is handsome, buffed up and hung.

Unfortunately there is no way to identify the actors in each scene. Pity. Two of these young men are going to be super stars.

A screening of the rival companies' new video by Cut Pix executives gives us our first scene. This video-in-a-video begins with an extended crotch groping build up between two hunky, handsome guys. The long wait is worth it. Both the blond and the brunette are super hung and uncut. They have firm, buffed up bodies and project a natural, laid back masculinity.

A highlight of the scene is the extreme close up shots of the brunette rimming the blond. As the brunette becomes more and more excited, he does an about face and has the muscular blond shove his super long, big-around dick into his ass. This entire scene flows with a smooth, fluid sensuality. The super hung blond is a bit lackluster in his performance, but — oh! — what a cock.

The 1930s-style transitions between the various angles within the scene are appropriate for the seamless, languid sexuality this scene presents.

Following scenes include sex between the owners of Cut Pix and their attorney; sex between the owners of Uncut Pix; and, as a foretaste of an inevitable merger, sex between executives of the two companies.

A highlight of this movie is being aware that the actors truly enjoy their sex scenes. Case in point is a torrid session between executives of Uncut Pix. We are treated to a lingering close up of a guy sucking this looong uncut cock. These fellows love to suck and get sucked and it shows. Director Abdul does an excellent job of having his actors present sex in an open, non-furtive manner. He is to be congratulated for emphasizing the wholesome naturalness of his attractive cast's sexuality.

Abdul also knows the tricks of his craft. Space here does not allow descriptions, but his knowledge of porn film making is seen throughout this production. Those of us who like mature, masculine, hairy chested, big cocked men will enjoy the actor who portrays the lawyer for Cut Pix. His dress shirt, tie and suit are a welcome relief from the obligatory white tee shirt and blue jeans. This masculine actor is sincerely aroused as he receives a loving, prolonged blowjob from his client. Then he gives his client a wildly passionate rim job followed by a long, sensual fuck. This is gay porn film making at its best.

Now, disappointment time. The final sequence is a text book example of having all the right elements for a dynamite scene and ending up with a bummer. It is obvious the so-so blond is not compatible with the stunningly handsome, well-built and well-hung brunette and vice versa. They do their best. The blond squeezes the base of his partner's cock to give the effect that it is hard as he sucks it. The cameraman is careful never to show the blonde's constantly soft cock.

There is an unfortunate 69 scene where the brunette's dislike for rimming the blond is painfully obvious. This embarrassment is followed by a fake fuck scene with the brunette simulating screwing the blond doggie style. All that is seen is back shot of balls flapping against the blond's ass. Both actors do give us a wet, jack-off scene at the end. This one embarrassing scene does not ruin the entire movie. Fortunately, it comes at the end of what is otherwise an excellent production.

The tag on the end of this movie presents several "bloopers" which occurred during the filming of the dialogue sequences. They were very funny and showed us how truly likable these handsome men are. The first thirty seconds of each blooper would have been more than enough, however. Director Abdul allowed these mistakes to run on and on and on. Mistakes which were refreshing and endearing to see once or twice became "Oh! Aren't we cute" the third and fourth time around.

The film makers of this modest to low budget movie have utilized originality and creativity to produce a film far more exciting, erotic and entertaining than some of their big budget competition. "Cut VS Uncut" is a battle royal. The winner is all who see it.

Cut VS Uncut is available through Forum Studios, 7985 Santa Monica Blvd., Suite 109-412, West Hollywood, CA 90046. Send $49.95 plus $3 postage. Include a statement that you are over 21, approve of sexual material, and your signature.

Foreskins

Lamented

by Bruce Ansley

Baby-boom men who left part of their future on the cutting-room floor can now recover their lost property.

Many New Zealand men scarcely noticed the loss of their foreskin. They were circumcised so young that the snip of scissors was only a black spot in their subconscious. Besides, it was very common in the postwar years, when 90 percent of male infants were circumcised. Numbers fell slowly until the 80s when a generation of parents preferring non-interference from birth onwards all but banished the operation.

Intact boys were the odd ones out in the big postwar classes. They were curiosities, often derided. "In schoolboy rugby, an uncircumcised person was an event in the changing room," says Athol Arthur, president of the Pediatric Society. "I grew up in an environment in which I was regarded as deformed," says Ken McGrath, saved from a trimming by a mother who stood guard in the maternity ward. McGrath, who lives in Auckland, is a member of NoCirc (a California-based anti-circumcision lobby headed by Marilyn Milos, a former nurse).

Now, circumcised boys are unusual. The NZ Medical Journal last year published a study done in the Waikato, showing that only seven percent of male infants were being circumcised there in 1989. Waikato and Christchurch are at the upper end of the scale. Elsewhere only 0-2 percent of boy babies are circumcised, often for religious and cultural reasons: Muslims, Jews and Samoans, for example.

Doctors have joined Dr. Benjamin Spock in changing their minds and now opposing the operation. In the Waikato survey, 80 percent of general practitioners did not perform circumcisions; 61 percent said they would try to dissuade parents from it. Clearly, as Arthur says, "Doctors are not in favour."

Even in the United States, where 60 per-cent of male infants are still circumcised (compared with one percent in Britain and 25 percent in Australia), opponents are gaining ground. "Routine newborn non-religious circumcision will soon pass from the scene to join bloodletting and cupping in medical history," Edward Wallerstein, a urologist campaigning against the practice, says in a journal article.

So droves of younger and middle-aged men are left to contemplate the fickle nature of penile fashion. Men, generally, are not very interested in their bodies, even in such an intimate matter as circumcision. The Christchurch public library, for example, lists only one book on circumcision; it concerns the circumcision of women.

Yet some started to wonder. Circumcision may be going the way of tonsillectomy, but need the results be as lasting? Their loss, after all, is savage. Exposed, the skin of the glans becomes much thicker without its protective covering. New evidence indicates that the prepuce is much more erogenous than the glans, and that the most friction-sensitive nerve endings are left on the cutting-room floor. So men are finding ways of replacing their lost foreskins.

Surgical and non-surgical methods are being developed in the US. No surgical remedy is yet available in New Zealand. But in Auckland a group of men has started using a technique pioneered in California by a group called Buff - Brothers United for Future Foreskins.

Why were they circumcised in the first place? The drive to curb masturbation and unruly sex drives by circumcision was disposed of by mid-century. As a cure for premature ejaculation, it has been found to be unreliable.

The notion that circumcision is cleaner has endured longer, evolving into modern forms. Did smegma, the cheesy substance found between the foreskin and the glans, carry carcinogenic substances?

Penile cancer is slightly more prevalent in uncircumcised men. Statistics vary between two cases and eight in every 100,000. "No foreskin, no cancer," says McGrath. "But if you don't have teeth they don't get rotten."

Both penile cancer and cervical cancer are usually associated with poor hygiene. "Cutting off the offending part is maybe not the answer to hygiene problems," says Wallerstein in his book Circumcision: An American Health Fallacy.

What about sexually transmitted diseases, even AIDS? No proper evidence, but evidence linking urinary-tract infection to uncircumcised men has been more reliable. It caused the American Academy of Pediatrics to qualify its stance. For 13 years the academy declared that there were no good medical reasons for circumcision. In March, 1989, it issued a new statement citing research suggesting that urinary-tract infection was 10 times more common in uncircumcised male infants. But the matter remains controversial. Says Athol Arthur in New Zealand: "Does the difference in infection rates justify circumcision? Most doctors here think it does not."

Pain and the risk of complications weigh on the other side. In the Waikato study 35 percent of doctors still believed that no anesthetic was required.

Rosemary Romberg wrote her book Circumcision: The Painful Dilemma after being tormented by her third baby's screams during the operation. Circumcision in New Zealand is only done at the parents' request and parents are increasingly loath to ask for it. Athol Arthur cites his experience at a large London teaching hospital in the 1960s. Circumcisions there were done by pediatric registrars at the parents' request. The registrars declared that they would only do the operation if both parents were present and held the baby while the doctor wielded the knife. The number of operations dropped by half.

My own parents' reasons were uncomplicated. "Uncircumcised ones are... dirty," my mother would say. My father was more picturesque. We lived near a beach. "You gets sand under your foreskin," he said, "and it can whittle you away to nothing."

"How severe is the damage? A Canadian researcher, John Taylor, took up a Mayo Clinic report, both developing the proposition of a preponderance of nerve-endings sensitive to heat and friction in the foreskin rather than the glans, which has more deeper, pressure-sensitive nerve endings.

Uninhibited men can check the theory by running a finger over the remnants of their foreskin, near the circumcision scar. Foreskin tissue is extremely sensitive, so delicate that Sir Archie McIndoe, the wartime plastic surgeon, was firmly against circumcision: foreskin tissue made the best eyelids for burned pilots.

It is hardly surprising that men are searching for ways to put their foreskin back again. Americans have pioneered the technique of foreskin restoration.

The leading surgeon seems to be a Texas doctor, Donald Greer. He takes a graft from the lower scrotal area, measuring about 15 cm by 5 cm. It is embedded in a complete circular incision over the original circumcision site, creating a foreskin with about 80 percent coverage of the glans. Patients report that while the new foreskin lacks the sensitivity of the original, the glans returns to its former delicate condition.

But the operation is expensive, and other techniques used by other doctors have shown the risk of a botched job to be high. Buff has developed another, non-surgical technique, which is now proving popular in the US. It simply takes the remaining foreskin and slowly stretches it over the glans, holding it in place with tape.

The stretching method appeared in Auckland following a letter in the medical column of the NZ Woman's Weekly in November last year. An 18-year-old wanted a better sex life and asked about foreskin reconstruction in New Zealand. The resident doctor told him not to be a silly boy.

The reply was disputed by a later correspondent signing himself Posthé. Posthé (the Greek word for foreskin) uses the pseudonym because this is a controversial business in an "area of underlying medical tension," outside his specialty.

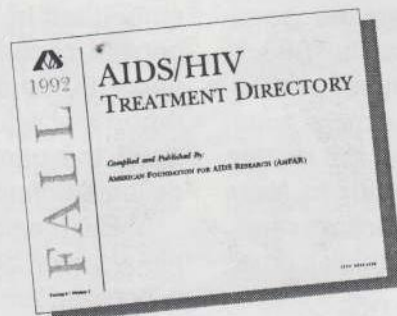

Posthé offered further information on foreskin reconstruction and received some 30 inquiries, some from Australia. As a result he conducted a workshop on foreskin restoration in Auckland last October.

Two men are now pioneering the Buff technique here under the interested gaze of a group of hopefuls. The method is not for the faint-hearted. The foreskin is stretched and held in place with tape while new cells grow. It is a very slow business if the change is to be permanent.

A foreskin may stretch 2 mm a month. Since it has some 50 mm to cover, it will be two years before we can report a happy end.

Filling Daddy's Shorts

Dear Daddy,

Thanks for sending me your Jockey shorts... I hope you don't mind my calling you Daddy. Calling you Daddy is just my way of paying tribute to your virility. I'm sure if you were straight, you would have fathered a lot of children. You're a masculine type of guy, Daddy. I like that!

Yeah, I really feel manly wearing your Jockey shorts. After I received them in the mail I sniffed them, inhaling your scent. Then, I put them right on. They were a little baggy, Daddy, 'cause you're bigger'n I am. It didn't matter though. When I wore them I felt as I imagined you must feel, masculine-like... kind'a like I was filling your shoes, only it was your shorts!

From the piss stains in them, I know you dress left. I let them cup my cock and balls, dressing left. I like the thought of my "stuff" lying where yours had been lying. Yeah, it's like our two cocks are being cradled together.

I had a boyfriend once, Daddy, who liked having me insert my cock in the fly of his underwear. He'd spit in his hand, reach inside his shorts and hold my cock on top of his. I'd slide my cock in and out of his underwear, rubbing against his cock until he came. Yeah, I'd like to have you fuck me like that sometime, Daddy... while I'm wearing your shorts!

I've worn your shorts day in and day out. I didn't take them off at night either. I wore them to bed. Gradually they lost the smell of your laundry detergent, the cologne you use and your uncircumcised cock... Wished mine still had its skin, Daddy... I've added my own piss stains to your shorts and some pecker tracks that have dried and stiffened. They're marked with my scent now!

I told you in my last letter I was gonna save myself for you. I promised. Wearing your Jockey shorts I wasn't going to jack-off until I couldn't stand it any longer. It hasn't been easy, Daddy. The stretch marks in your shorts where the cloth is thin and the bunch of pecker tracks were caused by my nearly constant hard-on.

Well, last night, when I got ready for bed, it got the best of me. I stripped down to my shorts - your shorts - and looked in the mirror. Yeah, I admit it; they do hang on me a little, but my perpetual erection keeps them up.

My cock oozed some pre-cum creating a wet spot. Another pecker track for you, Daddy, I thought. Then all of a sudden, the thought of you coursed through my pulsing cock... I turned away from the mirror, but I was so horny.

When I looked in the mirror again I saw you, Daddy, standin' there waitin' for me. Snuggling, filling your shorts, you had a roaring hard-on.

I clasped my hands over my cock as an orgasm consumed me. "Oh, no!", I groaned, "Not yet!" But it had gone too far. My cock exploded inside your shorts, in the same position that they always carry your stuff. Now they have the smell of my cum in them. Can you smell it?

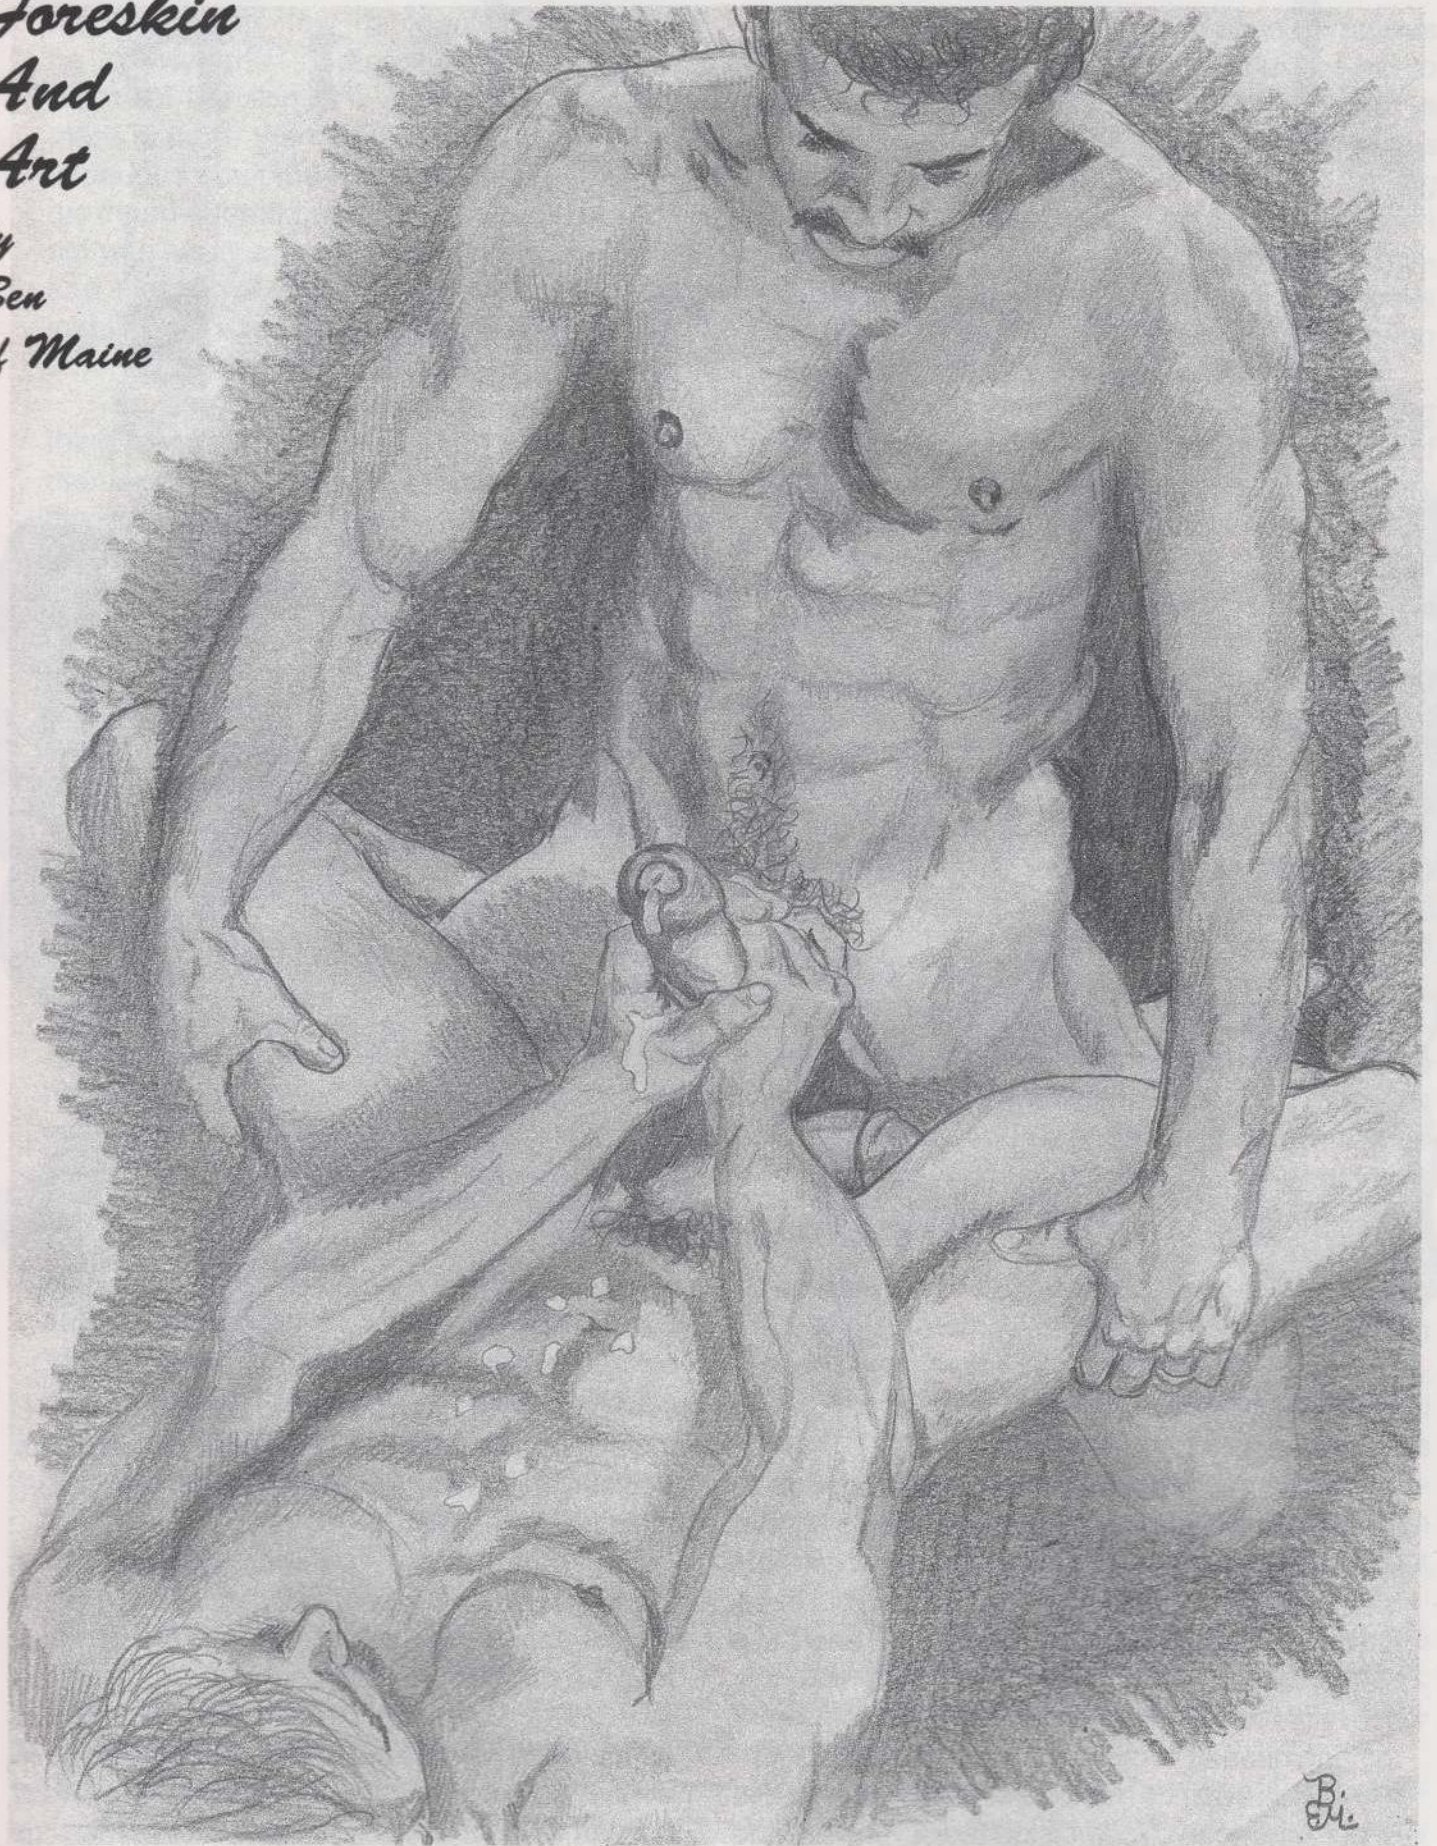

I'm returning your soiled shorts in the morning post. Please send another pair right back smelling of you... Will ya, Daddy?

Love,
Your "son"

Foreskin Festivals

by Ralph Mead

When just about any man lucky enough to have a foreskin skins it back and soaps it up in the shower to wash it on the inside, he probably feels a surge of gratitude that his dick has been left intact. Certainly when he jacks-off and pulls his foreskin up and down sliding it sensuously over his hard cockhead as a perfect instrument to bring himself to climax, he must be exceptionally grateful that he has been spared the ravages of the American circumcision fad. Even when he is simply in a pensive mood and casually reaches down inside his pants to "play with himself," his precious skin is there as a continuous reminder of his good fortune.

In more social situations, whether he is sharing a bank of urinals or is in a shower room and he encounters a man whose foreskin has been amputated, he is suddenly and dramatically made aware of his own fortuity and becomes especially cognizant of the serious loss which many of his brothers have sustained. And when in a more intimate encounter with such a man he notices how that man's hand lingers as he slowly and studiously pushes back his partner's foreskin. It is often quite obvious that there is more than a little envy of that piece of sensuous equipment. In still other situations, if his friend should push the skin back behind the rim with his lips, there is certainly an awareness and a feeling of empathy with the unlucky man's inability to experience such a similar set of ethereal sensations.

So, as intact men, we do indeed have something for which to rejoice and I think that most men engage in those brief little celebrations of their foreskins, possibly without even being aware that they are doing so. At other and possibly more reflective times, we probably dwell on our good fortune to an even greater extent and depth and perhaps that is what we are doing sometimes when our hand is down inside our pants playing with ourselves. But these situations are all individual and private and are generally of fleeting duration. It is my intention here to suggest that we need far more than that. We need to revel in our good fortune and celebrate it properly and more completely. It is for this reason that I propose an international holiday to celebrate our foreskins.

All over the world, the groups of people who ritually cut off foreskins always seem to make quite a special celebration out of this violent atrocity against man's natural endowment. Muslims celebrate the circumcision of a youth by catering a big party ending with a feast; Ethiopians and Jews put on an extensive religious ceremony accompanied by general rejoicing; African and Australian native peoples stage quite a gaudy festival along with the mutilation of their young men and count this as their transition and passage to manhood. At all of these orgies, everyone has an uproariously good time—except for the guest of honor.

Some Christian groups, even in modern times, have a feast day to celebrate Christ's circumcision on January 1 of each year. What a repugnant way to celebrate the joyous coming of the new year! Yet, there it is on religious calendars every year.

Why there are literally millions of people who celebrate a procedure with such barbarous and primitive connotations is difficult for me to comprehend let alone understand. If such a negative and permanently injurious event as this can be so joyously celebrated, I feel that leaving a man's penis intact should be celebrated even more exuberantly. So, why not designate a holiday dedicated to an event with far more positive and humane attributes—the fact of having been allowed to retain one's foreskin?

Some friends of mine make a week-long celebration following their birthdays as a kind of anniversary of having their penises spared. They are following the general belief that these atrocities of penis mutilation are usually carried out during the first few days of life and when parental consent is probably easier to obtain. Another friend has a special celebration commemorating the anniversary of when one of his friends showed him how to jack-off and to use his foreskin to stupendous advantage in that special and sensuous act of male hedonism. Still another celebrates the day that he and his new college roommate moved in together and that same day made the mutual discovery that they both had foreskins.

These are special and personal celebrations and do not apply generally to all of us males scattered over the world who still have foreskins to manipulate and enjoy when the urge comes on. I believe that the millions of us in that intact situation should devote a special day of joyous celebration of our wonderful natural equipment. Further, we should invite those who have lost their skins to join in with us since so many of them seem to envy our intact equipment.

After pondering such a holiday, no special date or time of year came to mind. It would be best, I believe, to avoid conflict with other holidays of ethnic or religious origins. This foreskin holiday should be exceptionally special and not have interference from other kinds of celebrations. The individual national holidays of the several countries such as independence days, leader's birthdays and the like also seem inappropriate.

Four days each year, having nothing whatsoever to do with mankind's cultural overlay come to mind, any one of which would be appropriate. I refer to those astronomical events that occur with the summer and winter solstices and the spring and fall equinoxes. That ancient man discovered the regularity of these events and commemorated them in monuments and temples attests to their historical as well as astronomical legitimacy. Indeed, this set of astronomical regularities was discovered in some unidentified era of pre-history, just as the practice of cutting off foreskins also has a pre-historic origin.

Each of these four days holds a different meaning for men in the northern and southern hemispheres. The warm and pleasant summer solstice in the north is coincidental with that which brings winter and cold to the south. In actuality, I think all of us would much prefer such a holiday to occur at one of the more pleasant times of the year. In the north, the equinox in March signals the coming of spring and warmer weather while the same equinox in the south foretells the coming of dormancy, cold weather and scrotums that shrivel up like prunes. A foreskin festival should be a time of opening up and rejoicing not one connected with the coming of bleak, cold weather. True, most of us live in the northern hemisphere but that is no reason to ignore or forsake all of our brothers, those fortunate sporters of foreskins south of the equator. One could argue that both September and December already have holidays while neither March nor June do. Again these already-existing holidays attest to their national and religious peculiarities. Many men adorned with foreskins celebrate neither America's September nor December holidays.

So, what is left? Well, since all of us escaped mutilation because of some caprice or other arbitrary situation, why not choose the holiday in the same way? Perhaps choosing the longest day of the year to commemorate the fact that our skins still hang long? A bit too arbitrary, I suspect. Recognizing that the above proposal does not seem feasible, here is another.

Since we are concerned with literally millions of men possessing such wide nationalistic and cultural diversity and since there are literally hundreds of millions of us, why not declare any one of these seasonal days to be the foreskin holiday? Better yet, why not make it all four of them? Celebrate four times a year! Since most of us have a mini-celebration just about every time we haul out our dicks to take a leak several times a day anyway, why not utilize all of that energy and create a coalescence that would provide a major blast four times a year?

Statistically, there can be little doubt that every day, three hundred sixty-five days in the year, some group or other is hosting a special kind of orgy celebrating the loss of still more foreskins. So, why should we who want to celebrate the retention of this important natural endowment not have more than one celebration each year? All of us rejoice and celebrate our skins in one way or another every day, usually individually and in private. Now let's go for a major international foreskin festival in which all of us share revelry together even if it is only four times each year!
