SOME 'SKIN ON YOUR MIND?

Dear FQ,

I have just managed to get my second copy of FQ (issue 21). I just love it to death. I am an English guy whose penis, when flaccid, is small and totally covered with foreskin. Even when hard, the head is still fully covered. I just love foreskins. The best sight for me is a guy with a long foreskin with precum dribbling from the tip. I also love to watch a foreskin when pissing.

I would love to stretch my foreskin so that I have an inch to spare. I have tried some methods without much success. If any of your readers have any suggestions, I would love to hear from them.

I have had many cut guys, and, while the sex was great, there was certainly something missing. I just love getting my tongue under the foreskin searching all around the cockhead for juice.

Keep up the good work.

Paul

London, UK

P.S. I love the artwork of Rex and Matt!

Glad you like the magazine, Paul. We do our best to keep the hottest, juiciest foreskins comin' your way. Yours, by the way, sounds pretty nice—how about a picture of that prepuce?

With regards to further stretching your skin: Hey, guys! Help this man out! Send us your suggestions and methods. What works for you? We're always interested in new ideas, techniques, results and fantasies, so drop us a line, and let's see if we can help Paul with his... situation.

Dear FQ:

I am (unfortunately) a cut man, but I love your magazine for all of the beautiful foreskin you feature in every issue. I especially like to read stories about docking and guys with big loose juicy foreskins.

I have to thank you personally, because your magazine actually initiated one of the hottest foreskin encounters I have ever had.

One day after work, Jim (my foreman) came over to pick up some paperwork at my place. I offered him a beer as I dug through my desk for the materials he needed.

I had completely forgotten that my issue of FQ was sitting prominently on my coffee table.

“I just love getting my tongue under the foreskin, searching all around the cockhead for juice.”

He picked it up and said, “I didn't know you were into this shit. My girlfriend wants me to have mine clipped off!”

“Into it? I'm nuts about it!” I said.

“Well, if you like that,” he said, holding out the center spread, “check this out.”

With that, he unbuttoned his dirty 50Is and flopped out a fat cock, hooded in the longest, most beautiful foreskin I have ever seen. I thought I would pass out from the sheer sight and smell of it.

To make a long story short, my place has become a regular “pit stop” for my favorite foreskinned foreman. He says he's happy that someone finally likes his hooded cock, after years of feeling like an outcast.

Oh yeah—he told his girlfriend that he's decided to keep it.

Roger

Spokane, WA

Roger, tell your buddy that we want to see that hooded tool too! Glad we were able to make your 'skin dream cum true. We're also glad your buddy didn't cave in to his girlfriend's ignorance.

Readers—how about more details from your “close 'skin-counters”?

Dear FQ,

I just had to write to you to tell you that FQ is hands-down the hottest magazine around!

The foreskin fiction is incredible. And the men (especially with their foreskins exposed for my delicious enjoyment) are so hot! Where do you find these guys?

Another thing I find really hot about FQ is the artists you feature. We don't see enough uncut meat in erotic art, and I'm glad you guys are watching out for this stuff. I've actually contacted a couple of the artists you have featured, and I have started a collection of uncut erotic art.

Anyway, keep up the great work, and keep those foreskins coming!

Eric

Chicago, IL

Dear Eric,

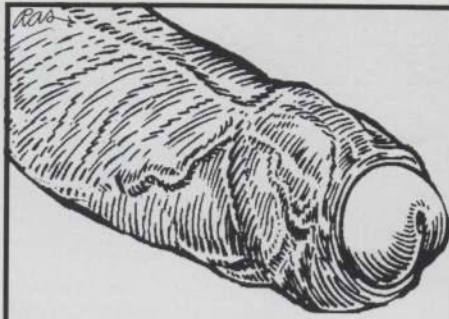

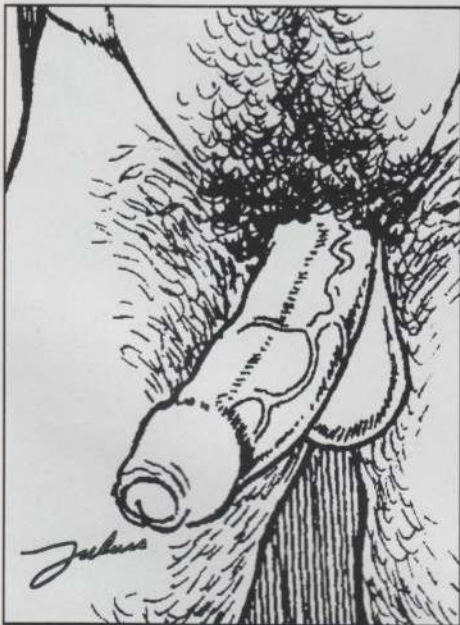

Thanks for the compliment! We're glad you're happy with FQ. After all, this is your magazine, and we want to give you the best in models, fiction and erotic art!

We're always on the lookout for new artistic and illustrative talent, so if you or your buddies have work to show off, let's see it!

Naturally, we prefer art featuring the intact penis.

Speaking of which, check out "The Incredible Art of Julius" in this issue. Julius' work is some of the hottest erotic art around, and many of the characters proudly display hefty intact dicks.

Here's a taste of what's to come. ■

John A. Erickson

Reviewed by Scott A. McGillivray

Deeper Into Circumcision: An Invitation To Awareness" is a fascinating example of the passion of the anti-circumcision/anti-genital mutilation movement. Author John A. Erickson's self-described "work in progress" is, above all, an impressive collage of resources, observations, testimonials, anecdotes and reference materials which collectively suggest a growing, arguably radical movement to virtually eliminate the practice of infant circumcision.

At first glance, this manual—an 8½-inch by 11-inch spiral-bound presentation—resembles little more than a mad journey through the hearts, minds and, one might assume, exposed glans of a group of skinless souls bent on justice against those who robbed them of their "birthright." (This "birthright," according to Erickson's studies, consists of "a piece of skin almost equivalent to a 3-inch by 5-inch index card..." which contains "...about 50 million cells, 250 feet of nerves, 750 nerve endings, and 50 feet of blood vessels.")

But there's more here than a vehement, rebel-rousing fist in the air.

The manual reveals a deep cynicism toward the medical community at large, painting an unflattering portrait of an industry littered with ignorant physicians ("None of us do it for medical reasons. We do it because we fear being cast out of the tribe."), spineless nurses ("Hands... shielded my ears from his screams..."), and more than a handful of fetish-friendly folks whose Hippocratic oath includes an allowance for exploration of any number of sexually sadistic "on-the-job" fantasies ("...a bunch of men nursing erections as they watched a shrieking baby having his foreskin cut away..."). The book even documents dissension within the medical community: One nurse—a member of the Conscientious Objectors to Circumcision Nurses at St. Vincent's Hospital in Santa Fe, New Mexico declares, "Nurses of America, I did not become a nurse to hurt babies, and neither did you... Wipe the blood from your hands and join me!"

Erickson's work also lists hundreds of resources for foreskin enthusiasts and anti-circumcision activists. An index of foreskin-related books, magazines and video transcripts from popular talk shows such as Donahue and Maury Povich is included, as well as foreskin/circumcision-related information excerpted from other popular media. These accounts can be quite telling. For example, a brief but seemingly verbatim transcript from shock-talk host Rush Limbaugh's show includes references to audience laughter throughout the commentator's banter, illustrating the ignorant banter between Limbaugh and his fans.

Perhaps the most fascinating aspect of this chronicle is the sheer volume of information Erickson has collected and assembled. Pandora's box has been opened. Numerous first-person accounts of circumcision trauma as well recollections by parents, physicians and nurses are chronicled with dramatic attention to detail. One Jewish woman who refused to circumcise her child tells her parents, "I would do anything not to hurt you, my parents, except hurt my child." Clubs, organizations, publications, Web sites and support services combine to make a veritable cornucopia of information for victims, supporters, foreskin lovers and human-rights activists who have chosen circumcision (or "genital mutilation") as their "cause du jour."

According to Erickson's tome, most boys are circumcised because parents feel compelled to comply with social customs or religious beliefs. In some cases, parents simply agree with their physician's recommendation to circumcise. In other cases, physicians assume responsibility for a child and circumcise without parental consent. Details of lawsuits resulting from unauthorized circumcisions are included in the book. All of this leads to Erickson's fundamental point: Circumcision is a social and religious practice with absolutely no medical basis. Testimonials from medical professionals, including several physicians, substantiate this claim: "Circumcision is a brutal ritual rooted in superstition and should be abandoned," one doctor states. "There is no medical reason for exposing the tip of the penis," says physician Robert Van Howe. "The penis functions perfectly well with the tip unexposed." Other doctors confirm that the foreskin performs very viable biological functions, not unlike the clitoral hood of female genitalia. Sexually, the foreskin heightens pleasure by stimulating the glans with a natural sheath and lubricant. Additionally, it serves as a shield for the sensitive glans, providing a protective barrier against clothing.

Erickson argues that a boy must be left intact until he reaches an age where he can make a rational, educated choice about his own body. This way, circumcision becomes an issue of personal choice, rather than a barbaric, undemocratic mandate randomly imposed upon boys. In this regard, Erickson seems grounded both in terms of logic and humanity.

The author is a bit misguided, however, in his efforts to portray circumcised penises as inherently handicapped. Granted, there are individuals who have had, shall we say, less-than-attractive clip jobs. And, there are many men who have experienced medical difficulties after the procedure—some with long-lasting effects. As with any surgical effort, this possibility exists. But to suggest that all men circumcised as infants will experience sexual dysfunction is a biased and illogical generalization. Many men live very fulfilling sex lives without a foreskin. Yet Erickson's work suggests that circumcised men experience pleasure on a lower level—since they never had a foreskin, they simply "don't know any better."

Erickson's extremely thorough approach, at times, serves to contradict his viewpoint while unintentionally revealing an almost fanatical, seemingly anarchic fringe of the anti-circumcision movement. Erickson includes an excerpt from American Medical News about a physician sentenced to a year's probation for masturbating during a rectal exam. Since this article has nothing to do with circumcision, its inclusion in the book is an obvious ploy to reinforce the "crooked physician" philosophy to which many activists give credence.

Despite its shortcomings, Deeper Into Circumcision is a fascinating read. Amid the chaos of the more radical aspects of the anti-

City Boy

"Eat up, Baby Brother, you may not get real farm cooking for another five years."

Mike just smiled at his sister and took another leg of chicken from the platter. He still couldn't get used to her calling him Baby Brother. After all, he was 25 years old and had the start of a successful law practice. But to Sue, 20 years his senior, he had always been Baby Brother.

"Uncle Mike, why don't you come to see us more often?" asked 10-year-old Bobby. "Dad," he said, turning to his father at the opposite end of the large dinner table, "why don't we go to see Uncle Mike in San Francisco next summer?"

"California is a long way from Indiana, Bobby, and I'm not going to waste what little vacation I get going to a city full of hippies." Mike looked at his brother-in-law with the same kind of distaste that contributed to the rarity of his visits to the only remnant of a family he'd had for the past many years. "Besides," the father of his beloved nieces and nephews continued, "Mat is going to Purdue next year, and that's going to take a lot of money. We won't be able to afford luxuries like long vacations."

Mike looked at 18-year-old Mat and saw anger register in his face too. Obviously, the father and son did not agree on the subject of Purdue.

"Daniel, now don't get started on that subject. We don't want to bore Baby Brother with our little problems. I'm just so glad that that conference brought you to Indianapolis so you could visit us for a while. But I really don't see why you have to rush off back to California tomorrow.

You've only been here two days, and there's still so much to talk about. How about you? You still haven't told us if you have a steady girl. When are you going to find one and settle down and raise a family? You aren't getting any younger and—"

"Oh, shut up and get the dessert," Dan said. "You won't be happy until every male in the world has been trapped by a woman."

"Dan," Mike thought to himself, "maybe you're not so bad after all."

As the last remnant of strawberry shortcake was disappearing from the table, Mike wasn't paying too much attention to the conversation about the next-door neighbor's new tractor and changes that Sue wanted to make in the layout of next year's garden. His attention was focused on Mat. Mike's visits to the farm were infrequent enough, but he and Sue had maintained a lively correspondence and he thought he knew his nieces and nephews as well as if he had been there. But Mat had been a surprise. The gangling adolescent he remembered with freckles, a cowlick, big ears and a cracking voice was gone. Now the boy who sat across the table from him was a handsome young man who would drive them nuts down on Castro Street. And as that thought entered his mind, Mat looked at him and smiled broadly.

"...but why should he want to go to a meeting with a bunch of kids..." Sue was saying.

"Why not let him decide for himself?" Mat said. "Uncle Mike, do you want to come to my FFA initiation with me?"

Mike coughed and sprayed his mouthful of coffee across the table where Bobby began to laugh, and his mother made frantic movements to wipe up the sprayed liquid. "Mat is president of the Future Farmers, and tonight they're initiating new members," Sue said as she cleaned up the coffee, "but I can't see why a grown man would want—"

Mike just returned Mat's grin and interrupted his sister, "Sis, you're always calling me Baby Brother, so don't tell me that I should behave like a grown man. I haven't seen nearly enough of my oldest nephew. I'd be delighted to join him at an FFA initiation."

After dinner, Mike knocked on the door to Mat's room, and the youth called for him to enter. Mat sat on the edge of the bed lacing up his work boots, and Mike silently admired the new growth of reddish blond hair that was sprouting on Mat's broad chest. "I stopped to ask what I should wear. But I guess I can see what's appropriate."

"Yeah," Mat said grabbing the checked flannel shirt hanging on the bedpost and putting it on. "Those worn Levi's, boots and flannel shirts you've been wearing since you got here will be just right." He tucked the tail of his shirt into his own tight Levi's and smiled at his uncle again. "I didn't know they wore these 'farm clothes' in the big city. How did you get your Levi's so worn?"

"We like to be comfortable there too," he said, avoiding a more complete answer. "I'll go shower and put on a fresh shirt and join you downstairs."

Mike was just pulling up his Levi's when Mat knocked at the door then burst into the room without waiting for an answer. "Mr. Gwinn just called. He is down at Bedford with a judging team. They were supposed to be back before dinner but the truck broke down, and they can't get it fixed for two more hours. There is no way he can make it back in time for the meeting. He said there can't be an initiation without an adult present, and he wants me to postpone it. But I told him that there would be an adult present, my uncle from California, who is a lawyer at that. It took a lot of convincing, but he said it would be all right with him if you're willing to be our chaperone. Please say it's OK. Dad's talking to him on the phone now; I'll holler down and let them know you said yes, OK?"

"OK," Mike said, "but..." But the "but" went unheard as Mat ran to the stairs and hollered down to his father.

"I don't know why he made such a big deal of it," Mat said, returning to Mike's room. "The meeting is over at Hank Ottery's farm, and whenever we meet there, Mr. Gwinn spends the whole evening in the house talking to Hank's granddad about the 'good old days.'" Mike was just slipping on a clean flannel shirt when Mat asked, "How did you get to be in such good shape? Your chest and arms look like you pitch manure for a living."

"I do," Mike said with a chuckle, "and the prosecuting attorney is usually pitching it faster than I do." Mat made a noise and Mike continued, "I try to work out with weights at least twice a week. And I jog every morning. What's the matter? You country kids think you have a monopoly on health and exercise?"

"Nope, Unk," Mat said, snatching Mike's red handkerchief off the bed. "Just tuck this in your right pocket and let's get going." It wasn't until Mike followed his nephew down the stairs and noticed the red bandanna barely sticking out of his left pocket that he began to wonder about all sorts of things.

The Ottery farm was just down the road, and the trip there took only minutes the way Mat drove the pickup. Once there, they entered the barn and joined several other boys ranging in age from about 15 to 18. All of the boys except four wore the same kind of blue corduroy jacket that Mat did. On the back, it bore a huge blue-and-gold emblem of the Future Farmers of America and the name of their town and state. On the front, over the left-hand breast pocket was the boy's name embroidered in gold thread. As Mat introduced him, Mike was pleased to hear the pride in his nephew's voice. Mat identified the four without jackets as the ones to be initiated and then motioned to a bale of hay and suggested that Mike sit and watch.

All the boys sat on bales of hay around the barn while Mat stood at the front and ran the meeting. They talked about the progress of the crops some of the boys had entered in a competition and they talked about the results of the last judging contest. Then they argued over who had been stuck doing the most work at their recent car wash. Finally, Mat announced that the formal business meeting was over, and the initiation could begin.

Mike had been studying the four initiates throughout the meeting. He was not into chicken, but if he had been, he would have liked these four. All were solidly built kids with pleasant faces and hair that ranged from brownish-blond to nearly black. The kids moved the bales of hay into a large circle and left the four new boys standing in the center with Mat. Mike sat further back out of the circle, almost in the shadows. He didn't want the kids to be intimidated by the presence of a stranger. Mat used strips of a feed sack to blindfold all four of the boys and then ordered them to strip off their shirts and pants.

The boys stripped down to their Jockeys, and Mat told them to stop and stand in a line. Since the boys couldn't see, they had to feel about for each other to get in a straight line—there were many giggles from the audience as they tried to do this. One of the fellows brought up a bowl, and Mat went into a long speech about how farmers are responsible for feeding the world and, therefore, must know all about all of the foods eaten everywhere in the world. He said that in much of the world, people were so hungry that they had to eat worms. So that these future farmers could appreciate how terrible this would be, they were now each going to eat six worms. Mat held the bowl in front of the first boy and ordered him to take a worm and eat it. The boy put his hand into the bowl and froze. Then he exclaimed that they were slimy and felt terrible, but he pulled one from the bowl and rapidly put it in his mouth. Even from where he sat, Mike could see the boy nearly turn green. The next boy shuddered as he reached into the bowl and waited a long time before popping the slimy strand he held in his hand into his mouth. The rest of the boys goaded him on, jeering him while he hesitated. The third initiate grabbed a worm and quickly popped it in his mouth and swallowed. He obviously thought it wiser to get the whole thing over with as soon as possible. The fourth boy stuck his fingers into the bowl then withdrew them and refused to take a worm. The rest of the boys flew into an uproar; they jeered and shouted and cursed him, but he stood with his arms folded and jaws clenched. Finally, three of the larger youths grabbed him. He struggled wildly as they forced his mouth open, and Mat dropped a strand in. They closed the initiate's mouth and tried to hold it shut, but when he started to vomit, they let him up to go off to a corner where he lost the worm and his dinner as well.

Mike wondered if he was shirking his duty as the adult chaperone to allow what he had just seen, but he knew that a few earthworms wouldn't hurt anyone.

When the fourth boy had regained his composure and agreed that he still wanted to go on with the initiation, Mat explained that farmers must know and understand animals well. To prove that they really understood animals, the four initiates had to demonstrate how various animals act. One by one, the boys had to act out a chicken scratching for feed, a pig wallowing in the muck, a dog scratching fleas, and a pig rooting in the dirt. Mat told the biggest of the four to get down on his hands and knees and be a cow. Mat talked about the cow, describing each of her attributes; he talked about her udder and looked under the boy then looked up with a puzzled look on his face.

"She doesn't have an udder," Mat pointed out. Then he pulled the boy's Jockey shorts down to his knees and looked again. Yes, sir, it was just as he had thought: The udder was there all right, but it had been covered when he looked before. But this was still a weird cow, because it had only one teat. He pulled down the Jockey shorts on the other three and announced to everyone that they had a whole herd of one-teated cows.

Mat then began a lecture on the history of farming. Mike wondered what was going on, but he was fascinated by the way his nephew was controlling the entire situation. He wondered how much was due to careful planning and rehearsal, and how much was improvisation. And he began to wonder how much of it was primarily for his benefit.

Mat explained that, in the past, farmers had to get up very early every morning to milk their cows by hand. He invited four volunteer farmers from the audience to come forward and demonstrate how hand-milking was done. Four of the older boys jumped up and came forward. They knelt beside the naked boys, and each took a cock in his hands and began to milk it. Mat continued with his lecture about farm modernization, and one of the boys brought out a milking machine. Mat made the four "cows" stand up, and everyone laughed at the sight of their now-hard cocks. The handjob had, as was obviously intended, aroused them all. Under Mat's direction, the four suction cups of the milking machine were attached to the four exposed hard cocks, then the machine was turned on. The four young boys groaned with pleasure, and the crowd around them urged them on. All eyes were fixed on the four transparent tubes leading from the sheaths over the boys' cocks as the spectators waited for the "milk" to come. When the first boy came, and a spurt of milky white fluid passed down the tube, a cheer went up from the group. After three more cheers, many yells, shouts and laughs, the four naked boys were disconnected from the machine and welcomed into the club.

As the party broke up, Mike could see that many of the guys had hard-ons under their Levi's—including Mat. Mike wondered what his nephew's cock looked like. In Mike's dictionary, 18 was no longer chicken. It was eligible meat. But not his own nephew!

Most of the guys left, but Mat stayed to help Hank clean the place up. When Mike mentioned the time, Hank said he had to go in the house to help his mother get his grandfather to bed.

"That was quite a show, Mat," Mike said when they were alone. "And I was really impressed by the way you handled it."

Mat took one last look around to make sure everything was cleaned up then turned off most of the lights in the barn. "Thanks, Unk," he said. "I had a feeling you might enjoy watching the 'kid stuff.'" Mat turned off the rest of the lights, so Mike started for the door—but Mat didn't follow. He just leaned lazily against a post, in the stream of moonlight that came through a loft window.

Mike looked at his nephew's lithe body and swallowed the lump in his throat. "I did," he said slowly as he walked back toward Mat. "I almost wish that I could join the FFA."

A broad grin spread across Mat's face. He reached out and gripped his uncle's shoulders and pulled him toward him. "Why, Unk," he said, reaching behind the older man's back and rubbing his hand down over the pocket that held the red handkerchief, and over the tight ass beneath. "I figured you were already a member of the FFA."

Mike shoved his hips forward, and the hard bulge in his Levi's rubbed against the similar bulge in his nephew's. "I am," he said. "But not the same FFA."

Mat pulled his uncle tightly against him. Their lips met, and Mike felt the youth's tongue probe into his mouth. At first he resisted, then he surrendered and let the boy do what he wanted. "I know perfectly well which FFA," Mat said when they broke from their kiss. "I may be a farm boy, but I'm not a hick." As he spoke, he unbuttoned Mike's shirt and pulled it free from his jeans. "I've been making it with guys for years and, last year, a cop over at the truck stop showed me how to get a lot of pleasure out of a fist." Mike sighed as Mat's fingers danced lightly across his hairy chest and came to rest on his erect nipples. The fingers pinched and kneaded at the willing flesh. Slightly painful, delightfully painful. "I've been to Indianapolis lots of times since then and have managed to turn a trick every time. I've even gotten to Chicago twice. Once for a judging trip and once for the livestock show. Both times, I slipped out at night and went to the Gold Coast. That was something else! I just wish I could get to the Mine Shaft."

Mike unbuttoned his nephew's shirt and began to play with his nipples as well. "Forgive me," he said. "You are definitely not a hick. But how in the hell do you know about the Mine Shaft?"

Mat stroked the length of his uncle's hard cock under the faded denim and began to work open the buttons to get that denim out of the way. "I read the Advocate, International Leatherman, Powerplay and everything else I can get my hands on at a friend's house. I also know why my big-city uncle always has a red handkerchief in his pocket. Beautiful!" he said, gripping Mike's long, thick cock in one hand and his huge balls in the other. "Unk, I'm proud to have this in the family."

Mike shoved Mat's Levi's down around his ankles and imitated his nephew's grip. "It looks like we've got similar genes," he said, running his fingers along the hard shaft of his nephew's cock. "I may be a little thicker, but you're longer. And you didn't get robbed," he said as he skinned the foreskin back from Mat's throbbing red cockhead.

Mat moaned as his uncle's fingers played with his hard rod; he put his head back against the post and closed his eyes. Mike leaned forward and began to lick at the firm nipples surrounded by newly grown chest hair. The boy's hands pushed his head lower and lower until he was lapping the tip of the long uncut cock.

Suddenly, Mat pushed Mike away and pulled up his pants. Mike was confused, but then Mat's fingers encircled the balls still protruding from Mike's fly and tugged none too gently. Mike allowed himself to be led up into the hayloft to an area where some blankets had been spread. And when he saw the carefully positioned Crisco can and towels, his jaw dropped in amazement. "You had this all planned!" he said.

"Unk," Mat said, as he stripped off his clothes, "I've been thinking of making it with you for two years. And when you got here the other day, I knew I was going to do it! Now shut up and get your clothes off."

Hours later, they dressed and drove back to Mat's. But they didn't go in. Instead, they sat on the old swing hanging from a limb of a huge oak in the front yard. They looked at the stars in the cloudless sky and they talked, savoring the warmth of each other's bodies, the smells of their sweat and the hay and the recent sex. They kissed long and deeply before they went in and each departed, reluctantly, to his own bedroom.

"My goodness, you fellows were late getting back last night!" Sue said. "I just can't get to sleep until I know the kids are home safe, so I stayed up until I heard the truck drive in. It must have been 12:30!"

"We got to talking," Mike said around a mouthful of pancake.

He was glad she had not noticed how long it was between the time the truck had pulled in and the time they had gone to their rooms. He was also glad that he had overslept and was eating alone after Dan, Mat and the other kids had gone out to do their chores. He wanted the opportunity to talk to his sister alone. "Mat told me about Purdue," he said.

"Daniel has always planned on him going to Purdue," she said. "There has never been any question of it in his mind since Mat was born."

"But Mat doesn't want to go to Purdue," Mike said. "He isn't even sure that he wants to go to college. He's a big boy now, Sis. You shouldn't make him go just because Dan wants his son to be a Purdue man."

The expression on her face was one of pure pain. "I know that," she said. "But what else is there to do? You know how Daniel is. If Mat stays here instead of going away to college, his father will never let up on him. Life will be miserable for all of us, not just Mat. Mat has got to go to college, just to get away from here for a while."

"I agree that he has to get away from Dan until he can decide for himself what he wants to do with his life. But he doesn't have to go to college. He could get a job for a year or two. And he could be earning money to help with the expenses if he does opt for higher education."

"But that's just it," she said, plopping wearily into the chair opposite her Mike. "I've been over it in my head a hundred times. I agree that Mat should get a job for a year or so until he makes up his mind what he wants to do. But how and where? He can't stay here, or Daniel will be riding him constantly. And he can't afford to go off on his own, and I'm not about to let a son of mine take off for some strange place without someone to keep tabs on him! So he's just going to have to go to Purdue next year and, I hope, decide that he likes it."

"He doesn't have to," Mike said. "He can come out to the Coast and live with me. I'd love to have him, and that would solve all of your problems. And you would have someone to keep tabs on him, your own flesh and blood instead of some college dean. What do you say? Will you talk to Dan and get him to agree to it?"

Sue didn't speak. She just hugged him and kissed him.

Mike was folding the last of his shirts into the suitcase when he heard the bedroom door latch behind him. He turned to find Mat leaning against the inside of the door and grinning like a Cheshire cat. "You did it!" he said. "I don't know how, but you did it! Dad just told me that if I wanted to, I could go live with you for a year until I make up my mind about college." Mat stepped forward and gave Mike a firm bear hug. "Thanks, Unk. Thanks a whole hell of a lot for a lot of things."

"I had to lie to your mother," Mike said, "I had to tell her that I would be keeping tabs on you. Looking after you. Keeping you in line." He hugged the youth to him and whispered into his ear. "I think I was lying. I think that it is going to be the country hick keeping tabs on the big-city lawyer."

Mat rubbed his fist hard into his uncle's crotch. "There, counselor, you are absolutely correct." He broke away quickly and turned around. "I ran into town this morning and bought something just for you," he said as he pointed at the black handkerchief hanging out of his left rear pocket. "Do you like it?"

Mike just stared and felt his cock throbbing. He pulled a similar handkerchief from his suitcase and stuck it into his right pocket. ■

FO&A

Dear Wayne,

What is head cheese or smegma? What's it made of? What's its function?

*Geoffrey
Madison, WI*

Dear Geoffrey,

There have not been many studies made of the contents or origin of smegma. A Canadian physician has indicated that the bulk of the fluid is simply ordinary sweat. We also know that the inside lining of the foreskin is mucosal tissue, so some part of the fluid is mucous. Then there are all of the skin cells that are sloughed off in the natural process of replacing cells. The next substance is sebum, a semi-liquid, greasy secretion. The amount of sebaceous glands varies, depending upon genetics, so far as we know. Some men don't have any. Others have been found to have two of them, starting on either side of the frenulum (that most exquisite nerve-laden tissue that starts at the underside of the glans and forms the web that is part of the foreskin). Some men will have more sets moving out in a line on both sides, around the shaft of the penis under the glans. Another part of smegma is precum, some men leak profusely and some don't at all. And the very last is a residue of urine. So, all of these ingredients make up smegma. Studies have shown that 1) it is not carcinogenic and 2) it is antibacterial.

The function of smegma is twofold. Like the foreskin, it is a protection for the glans. That is, the glans penis, like the glans clitoris, is an internal organ and needs to be kept moist. The glans is also mucosal tissue. Keeping it moist also provides help for the initial penetration into some other body. So don't use anything but fresh water to rinse under your foreskin for daily routine. Using soap or other cleansers is like soaping out your mouth because you've been bad. It changes the environment there from acid to alkali, and that is not good.

Smegma also helps the foreskin to glide back and forth over the corona of the glans. It is now known that the foreskin is the most heavily nerve-laden tissue of the penis, especially the frenulum. There are frenar bands in the inner lining of the foreskin that, when moved over the corona of the glans, stimulate and provide the wonderful sensations that trigger pleasure and orgasm.

The function of smegma is twofold. Like the foreskin, it is a protection for the glans. Smegma also helps the foreskin to glide back and forth over the corona of the glans.

The glans, according to Dr. John Taylor, is "a dumb organ, compared to the foreskin." Circumcision removes from 50 to 80 percent of the penile sheath and also removes about 10,000 nerve endings.

So all of you intact studs need to really enjoy what you have. It is your most precious possession. Keep moving it back and forth and keep producing smegma, it's good for you.

MORE FQ&A...

Dear Wayne,

I just heard about the new female Reality condom. What can you tell me about this and its use for anal sex?

John Courage

New Brunswick, NJ

Dear John,

I have only seen pictures of them. The vagina is of a different construction than the anus. It is an opening that has no tight sphincter muscle. The anus has a really tight sphincter muscle and wants to close down around anything it gets put through it. That's why asses are so much fun to fuck.

I would imagine that trying to get the female condom in would be a bit of a chore. Using a couple of fingers might work. The problem is tearing it in the process. I don't know if they have an applicator, but depending on its size, there might be a problem getting it out, so that something more interesting and warm could be put in. I would leave the large condoms to the larger holes and let your lover put on a condom.

A proper job of putting on a condom should give both of you a wonderful time. Put a small amount of lubricant on the inside of the tip of the condom. Unroll about 1-2 inches and leave that in front of the head. Roll the condom on the rest of the way. Work the lube around on the foreskin and glans so that when your lover is pumping you, he will be able to have his foreskin move back and forth to give him pleasure. Or, if he is cut, the rubber slipping back and forth over the corona of the glans will stimulate him.

Dear Wayne,

Is it safe to get fucked by someone who has a "Prince Albert" piercing? Or should they take it out?

Bruce Lock

San Antonio, TX

Dear Bruce,

The biggest problem with a PA is getting the ring past the sphincter muscle. Some men have tried it; a friend of mine has such a tight sphincter that he couldn't get his friend's head in, because it hurt him.

If you find someone who has a loose hole, maybe that would be OK, but you should nonetheless be very careful both penetrating and removing yourself.

If you prepare him well and get his hole open very wide and keep it there, it might work. However, until you can have all of these conditions present, I would recommend taking the PA off. It just isn't worth it to either damage your friend or tear your PA out! Although PAs are fun, it's better to be safe than sorry!

Dear Wayne,

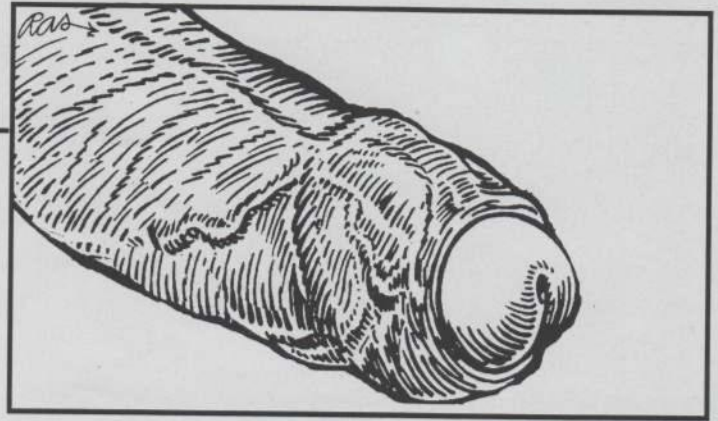

Why do some guys not like you to pull their foreskins back?

Phil J.

Daly City, CA

Dear Phil,

There are two things that can be painful. If the guy is very young, his foreskin may not yet have fully separated from the glans. However, usually it separates by the age of 5 or so. Some however do not have full separation until their teenage years. (And jacking off helps, if they do it carefully.) The other reason, which is the main reason for not liking the foreskin pulled back, is that the lips of the prepuce have not stretched or relaxed sufficiently to comfortably retract. This is called phimosis.

There is nothing wrong with not being able to retract the foreskin. Some men never do it. Others, however, have a very loose opening and the foreskin goes back and forth with great ease. Michael Beauge, a French andrologist wrote a paper entitled "Conservative Treatment of Primary Phimosis in Adolescents." (He got to play with a lot of young ones, I guess.) Simply put, you can stretch the prepuce lips sideways, helping them to open up. In a warm bath, rub some oil (vitamin E or aloe vera would be good) on the foreskin and then, with two fingers inside the foreskin, pull sideways to stretch the opening. About 10 to 15 minutes once or twice a day for a few weeks should help open the lips and let the foreskin slide back and forth. ■

my uncircumcision story

I was born in a remote cabin in Oregon. I guess that you could say that my parents were free spirits then, and, in their own way, they still are that way.

One of the reasons they lived in that cabin those years was because they were tired of society's rules, and they wanted to live a "natural life."

I was born in that cabin, and my parents say that a midwife assisted them with the birth. So, it makes sense that my parents went the natural way and didn't have me circumcised, unlike most men of my generation born in American hospitals.

Growing up, I had no idea that my extra bit of 'skin made me different from other boys. That changed when my parents and I moved to a conservative town in Minnesota. I discovered that my 'skin made me different while playing in the woods with my friends Jared and Sam. Jared was kind of curious and would try anything. He took his pecker out and started to pee in an empty Coke bottle that he had found. His pecker looked different from mine, but I didn't notice much. I decided that peeing in a bottle must be the thing to try, so I also pulled my pants down and peed in another empty bottle that I found nearby. Little did I know that the sight of my pecker would cause Jared and Sam to stare. After a little while Jared said, "Boy do you ever have a weird dick. What's that at the end?" Then Sam, who was kind of a know-it-all, added sarcastically, "I think your doctor forgot to do something when you were born." I felt funny about what those guys said that day. I would later learn about circumcision, foreskins and so on. That day, I started to learn that some 'skin on my penis made me different.

Seventh grade phys ed class really taught me that I was different. There were about 30 boys in that class, and being in the locker room and showers with them, it quickly became evident that I was the only one who was uncut. I was self-conscious, and I hated the teasing that I would get from the other boys: "Gee your dick's different than ours." "Couldn't your parents afford a doctor?" "I heard that they are dirty and smelly like that."

I tried to ignore what they said. My parents had always told me, "Be yourself and don't worry about what other people say, especially if they are saying stupid things." It still bothered me when they made those comments. Some days, I thought I'd rather stay home than go to school and be teased in the locker room. That wasn't an option, so I had to learn to ignore it. Still, it made me wonder a few times if I should get circumcised. Eventually their comments and stares lessened, but it still bothered me some.

A few years later, I was still a little self-conscious about being uncut in a "cut world." I was getting interested in sex, mainly just jerking off. Now and then I would get my hands on a sex book, and occasionally those books compared being circumcised versus uncircumcised. I didn't know what it felt like to have a cut dick, but I was starting to like the feeling of massaging my uncut dick. I read that there were advantages to having an intact foreskin. One of the articles said that nature intended for the glans to be covered most of the time so it would be sensitive for sex. Some articles even had negative things to say about circumcision. I was starting to wonder if some of the boys teased me out of jealousy.

In time, my self-confidence improved. In spite of my past negative locker room experiences, I joined the swim team when I started high school. I still got stared at in the showers, but now boys were staring subtly, out of the corners of their eyes. I rationalized to myself, "Not only are they staring at me because I'm uncut, but because my cock is bigger than most of their cocks." Now and then they would throw a snide comment my way, but I learned to rebut them. When an obnoxious punk named Derrick sneered at me, "How's Mr. Cheese doing?" I quickly made up, "Must be good cheese, they say I'm the best Swiss in town." That shut him up for a while. (More recently I got to know Derrick again, and, surprisingly, he turned out to be a decent guy. I thought it was ironic when he told me that he was restoring his foreskin using techniques that he had read about.)

About halfway into that first year of high school, a transfer student from Norway came to attend our school. His name was Per, and he was instantly popular since he was a blond and handsome Nordic foreigner. This bright and outgoing young man was the son of a visiting professor at the local college. I found it interesting that, in this town, some differences were ridiculed while other differences, such as a heavy Scandinavian accent, were admired.

I met Per, and right away we had something in common because my dad taught sociology at the same college where his mom taught psychology. Per found out that I was a swimmer, and he wanted to join our swim team because he had competed in swimming back home. At Per's first swim practice with our team, I found out that we had one more thing in common. In the showers, after a 5,000-yard workout, Per peeled off his maroon-and-gold Speedos and uncovered an ample cock with a foreskin. Like me, he even had a pretty long foreskin. I was surprised—and glad—to know that I was no longer the only one on the team who hadn't been snipped at by a doctor. Though many boys had teased me through the years for my extra 'skin, I correctly guessed that they would no longer ridicule me about it since their new hero, Per, was also uncut. I later wondered if some of my teammates were envious that I had this attribute in common with the popular new student.

I mentioned to Per, away from school, that he was probably the only boy in our class besides me who still had his foreskin. He said that, in his home country, hardly anyone is circumcised and seeing all of those exposed dickheads in the locker room seemed odd to him. Per didn't seem shy about his extra 'skin a bit. In the locker room, he would casually pull his 'skin down to cover his dickhead before putting on his pants and going out into those Minnesota winters.

At the time, I thought about how I used to be embarrassed by my foreskin—and I was actually glad that I had never done anything to change it. I've heard stories about uncircumcised guys having surgery so they could "fit in" with the rest of the crowd. I know that if I'd had that surgery, I would have regretted it.

My parents made the right decision years ago in that Oregon cabin when they kept me "natural." They thought that it was not their right to decide for me about that surgery. Also, being teased about my "difference" did help me. I have empathy for others who are put down because they are different from the rest. Furthermore, I believe that sex is better for uncut men since we have increased sensitivity. And I like the way mine looks.

I wouldn't have it any other way. ■

"I wouldn't have it any other way."

GANGBANGERS

The Gangbangers combines all the resources of Falcon with the videographic and directorial genius of George Duroy, who has assembled a superlative cast of the most beautiful uncircumcised boys in Eastern Europe for this film.

The Gangbangers consists of four sexy episodes of scintillating mansex. The story begins as Palo Cernak stands outside Hans Koloman's apartment and whistles to attract his attention. He comes down, and they head off together for a party, while Alexander Straus showers.

The fourth episode, however, is where the film really heats up. In this most effective episode, Palo is sitting on a pantry table. Eberhardt Huhn comes in, hands Palo a slice of watermelon and sees Palo's soft penis invitingly hanging out of the leg of his shorts, cockslit on the tip of his glans peeking temptingly from the thick edge of his foreskin. Needing no further invitation, Eberhardt wipes watermelon juice from Palo's lips and kisses him hungrily before laying him back on the table to get at his cock. Palo's foreskin is so tight that Eberhardt's lips push it only halfway back on his glans. You can almost feel the rim of Palo's foreskin as it slides back on his cockhead. Beautiful!

Palo holds Eberhardt in his arms and strokes his rigid erection as they kiss. Eberhardt's loose foreskin slides back all the way behind his trigger rim as Palo sensually masturbates him. Eberhardt kneels on the table, and Palo sucks his cock. Intimate underneath footage reveals the neat dark line of Eberhardt's raphe running along the hard root of his penis from the tawny folds of his anus to his scrotum. Eberhardt lies on his back, legs spread wide, with Palo's face deep between his thighs, nose nuzzling his balls, tongue slurping his perineum. You will wish you could be where Palo is.

As Eberhardt lies on the table, Palo stands between his spread legs and slides his erection up Eberhardt's ass in a standing missionary fuck. Intimate footage captures Palo's balls from below as they bounce against the twin curves of Eberhardt's ass, and from above as his hairy belly thrusts between Eberhardt's legs as he fucks. They kiss hungrily before Palo pulls out to put his genitals against Eberhardt's so they can masturbate together. They ejaculate almost simultaneously (again apparently in two takes from different angles, but seamlessly edited together) for a beautiful climax to a perfectly consummated sexual union.

Nighthawken consists of five unrelated episodes introduced and set off by interludes of nocturnal street scenes. The cast includes several names familiar to us from other Falcon International and Bel Ami releases. Newcomers are Jan Cerman, Daniel Ruzovy, and Roman Ghregor.

The first episode begins as Kristoff Junas walks along a dark street and goes into Café Maximilian, a neighborhood bar, soon followed by Michael Simovik, another nighthawk. The bartender, Roman Ghregor, serves Michael a drink at his table and then checks out Kristoff's basket as he sits at the bar. There's nothing halfway about the penis awaiting Roman's attention—ram-rod straight, stiff and rock hard, capped by a slick, shiny glans skinned back and begging for the exciting sensations of Roman's hungry lips and probing tongue.

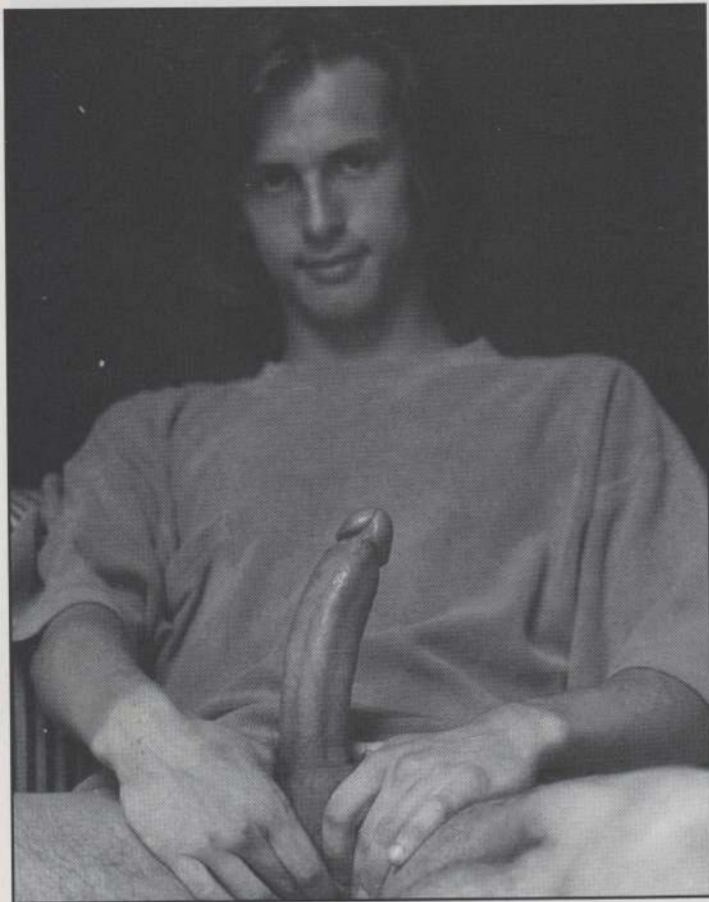

Outside in the dark street, Milos Janek and Daniel Ruzovy walk through a shadowy tunnel, across the trolley tracks and down some stairs to a dark hideaway where they go into a hot clinch and tongue-fuck while they grope one another. Daniel gets Milos' pants down to suck his big, up-curved and very rigid cock. Milos returns the favor, with Daniel's ample foreskin pushed back behind his trigger rim, getting him hot enough to jack off until his pale sperm spurts from his slit. Then Milos puts his erection up Daniel's ass for a standing doggie fuck in the shadows, pulling out to ejaculate on his ass as the scene ends.

Alexy Hanzlik picks up Dano Sulik in a dark alley and takes him to his apartment. No sooner is the door locked than they go into a hot clinch, groping each other's baskets as they kiss and caress. After Alexy sucks Dano's cock, Dano lays him missionary on a table. Alexy's sexual tension reaches its boiling point as Dano thrusts up his ass.

As always with Falcon, production values of Nighthawken are top of the line. Videography is always in crisp focus and squarely on target.

Reviews

His lovely, uncut cock, huge even soft, will absolutely take your breath away.

In another scene, one of those magical moments of surpassing beauty, Palo holds Pieter Gieriek close in his arms as they kneel together, gently swaying back and forth as if Palo's penis united their bodies in tender sex—as perhaps it does. Surely every viewer will hope that it did. All the steamy kissing, all the masturbation, all the sucking and fucking, is captured by Duroy's camera in vivid portraits of sensual overload. Eberhardt's radiant face is the epitome of erotic rapture as Palo's mouth urges his penis to the ultimate sexual pleasure, and Palo's penis seeks release deep within the most intimate part of Eberhardt's body.

This video is not to be missed. A top-shelf Falcon release, its production values are top of the line, its editing is seamless and the background soundtrack pleasant and unobtrusive.

No one could ask for more. This is videoerotica of the highest order. Five stars on all counts!

The Gangbangers. Directed by George Duroy.

Cast: Pavol Holik, Eberhardt Huhn, Kristoff Tripska, Franz Karloff, Alexander Straus, Franc Sokol, Palo Cernak, Greg Hanslik, Allen Greksa, Dano Sulik, Hans Koloman, Pieter Gieriek, Mikulas Gost.

Running time, 76 min.

Falcon International No. 08.

Lighting is appropriately revealing even in the scenes intentionally shot in subdued light. The cast members, both the newcomers and the old reliables, are exceptionally attractive, well-hung and uncircumcised. The cum-shots are admirably performed, well captured on tape, all but one liberally squirting sperm on a receptive partner, and even that one produces a stream of hot cum. Editing is smooth, the background music unobtrusive.

The similarities and differences of Nighthawken and The Gangbangers invite comparison. Although the production values are virtually identical and the casts similar, even partly overlapping, the two releases are very different artistically. I have the feeling that Nighthawken conforms more to the domestic style of Falcon's videos, whereas The Gangbangers approaches the romantic European style that George Duroy uses in his Bel Ami titles.

The two releases also differ strongly in both direction and videographic style. Apparently Nighthawken director Victor Dunai is trying to imitate George Duroy's style, but he lacks Duroy's sense of the erotic. The episodes of Nighthawken are overtly sexual but they lack the intense eroticism that pervades The Gangbangers. Duroy's videographic style shows that he has the eye of a born artist: Every scene is as faultlessly composed as a Renaissance painting, every portrait is a romantic masterpiece; he uses props to enhance the artistic balance of every scene just as a painter uses secondary objects to balance a still-life or a portrait.

Dunai's matter-of-fact approach results in straightforward images that portray the participants and the action in a style which is often sexual but not very erotic. When partners caress one another during sex, it often seems forced rather than spontaneous and loving. And sex obviously is much more one-way than shared. Neither Dunai nor Duroy can control their performers' sexual responses, but Duroy conceals cases of limp-dick syndrome more successfully than Dunai has in Nighthawken.

This isn't to say that Nighthawken isn't a good video. It is. It just lacks George Duroy's artistic eye, romantic approach and sense of the erotic.

I would rate Nighthawken at an honest five stars for cast, four for foreskin, three for sexual performance, two for story line, and five for production values.

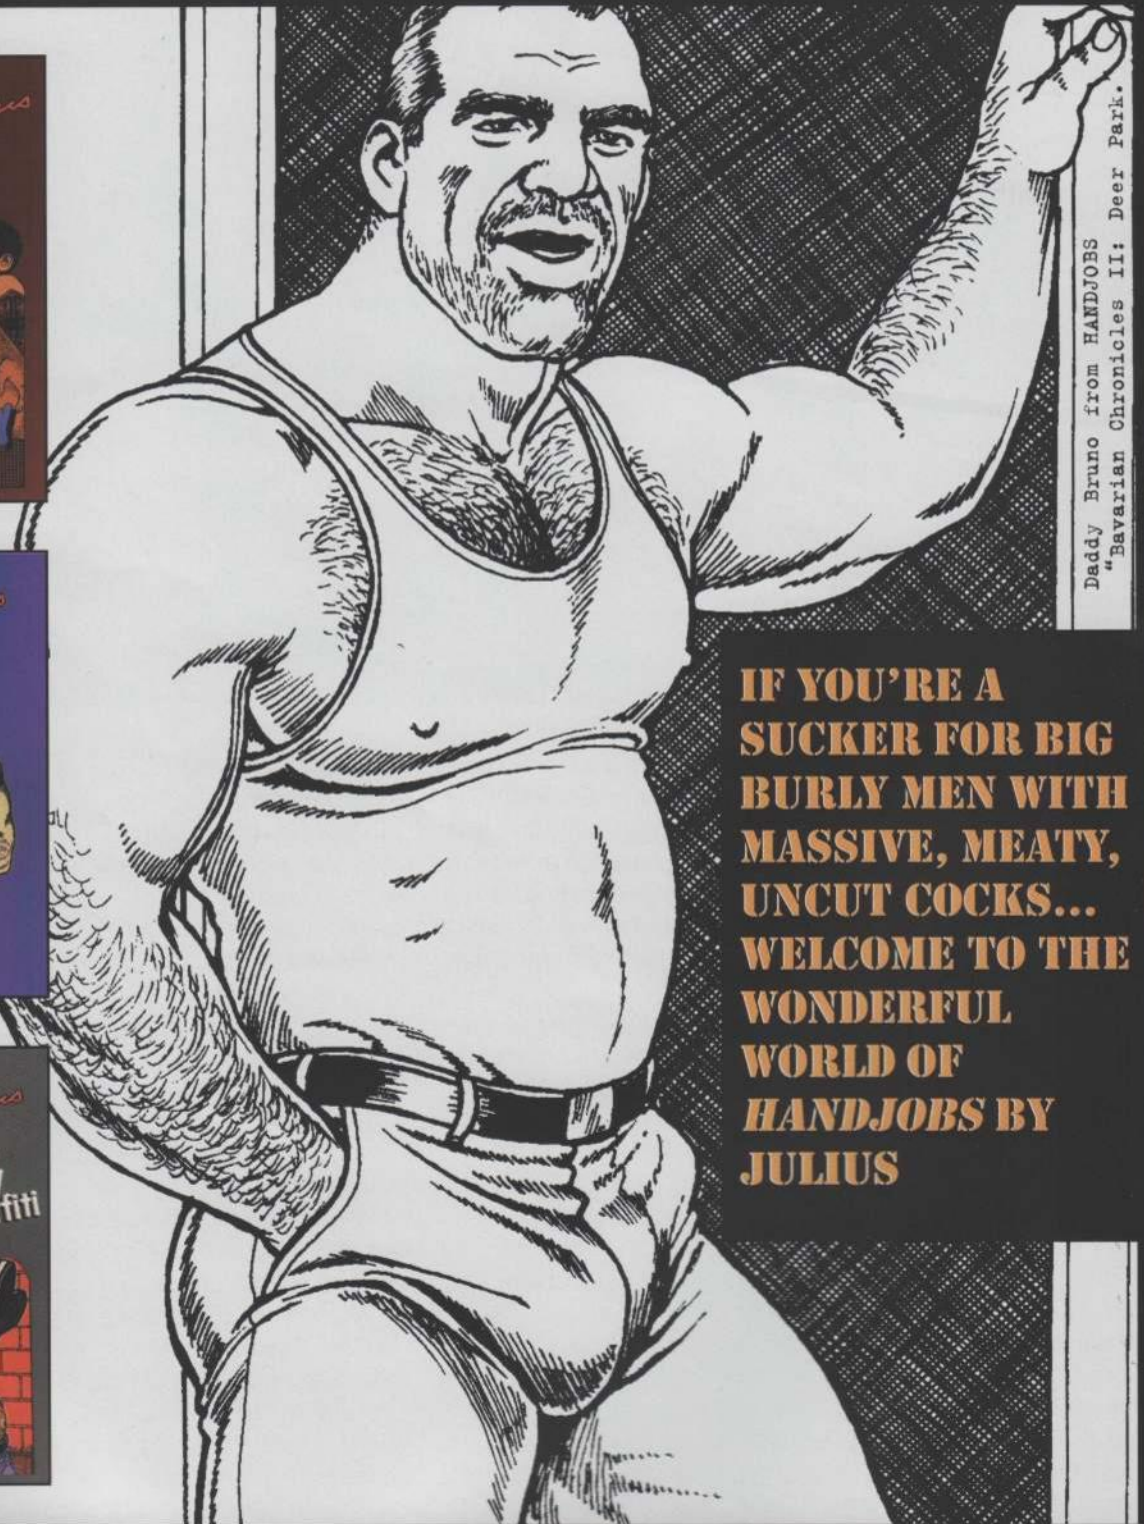

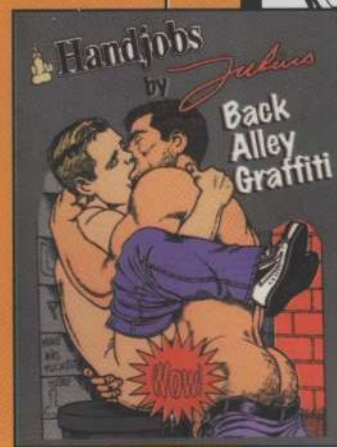

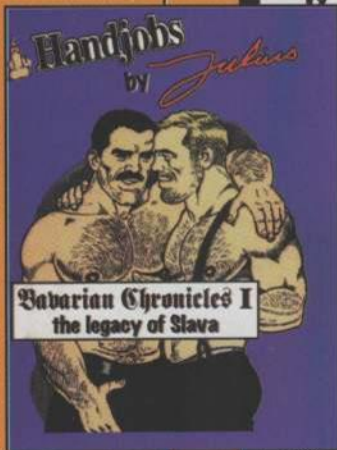

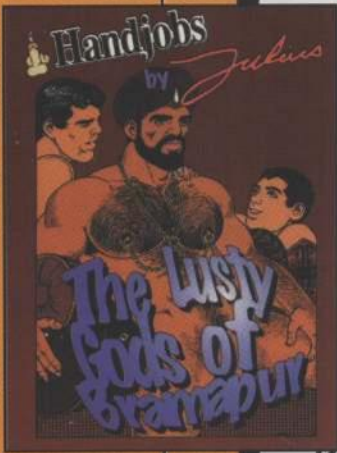

Nighthawken. Directed by Victor Dunai.

Cast: Dano Sulik, Martin Valko, Kristoff Junas, Eric Kovac, Jan Cerman, Milos Janek, Alexy Hanzlik, Daniel Ruzovy, Peter Sidow, Roman Ghregor, Michael Simovik. Editing by Delta Digital, Music by Sound Design.

Running time, 76 minutes.

OF JULIUS

With HANDJOBS, JULIUS chronicles the lusty lives of some of the sexiest studs ever created with pen and ink. Julius' HANDJOBS men are hunky, horny and hormonally exploding. Young men on the brink of manhood discover their true sexual callings in the strong and massive hands of burly daddies. The sleazy adventures of these sweaty brutes and their youthful counterparts range from ball-busting sex-on-a-desk, to raucous reenactments of fables like "Goldilocks," in which an unsuspecting young stud falls prey to three hung, horny, muscle bears named Grizzly, Cubby, and Polar. Who wouldn't want to come home to find one of these massive muscular studs sleeping in his bed? Best of all, Julius' daddies are gifted with thick, magnificent foreskin.

When Grandpa Ernst introduces Hans to the pleasures of raw man-to-man sex in Bavarian Chronicles I, Hans gets to savor a chewy foreskin dripping with ripe cheese.

One of the most delightful and tantalizing aspects of Julius' HANDJOBS characters is the manner in which his creations transcend the "stand-and-model" cliché of many erotic drawings. These brawny hunks are sweaty, down-to-earth men with dirt under their nails. They don't simply pose, waiting to be stared at—but they are certain to be delighted if you watch... watch as they grind their mouths, cocks and brutish muscular bodies together in a symphony of sex, sleaze and foreskin.

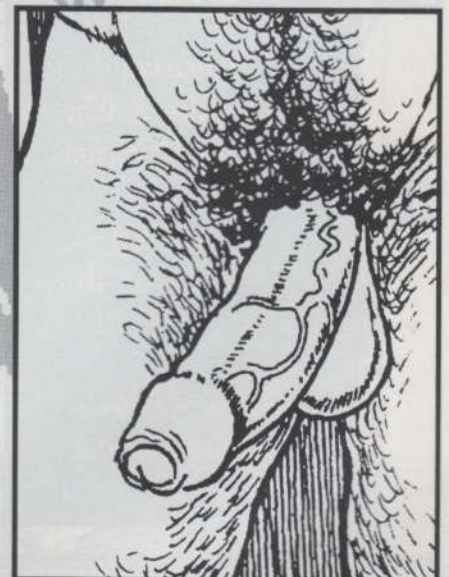

Go ahead. Be a voyeur. ■

The Joy of Solo Sex

By Dr. Harold Litten

THE VIRILITY FACTOR by Robert Bahr

THE ONLY LAYMAN'S BOOK EVER ON THE MALE HORMONE

- How and when to enlarge under-developed genitals.
- What causes excess body fat and flabby breasts in men and how testosterone can eliminate the problem.
- Why some men have excess body hair while others have none.
- What makes some men aggressive, stress-resistant, physically strong, impressive, while others remain physically and emotionally frail.

"Bahr's informed and lucid book is a boon to the man who is troubled by the most common 'masculine' problems what testosterone is, how its normal supply activates a man's sexual activity and how a man's sexual drive, general health, appearance and psychology suffer when testosterone levels fall below the norm."

SLEEPLESS IN DALLAS

Goodlooking GWM 29 yo, seeking young GWM (19-29) for friendship/possible relationship. They should be honest, sincere, truly looking for Mr. Right. He should be healthy, HIV-, non-smoker. I really am attracted to young clean cut, GQ type. Pen pals under 30 only. Also send me letter and photo. Joe, P.O.Box 700656, Dallas, TX 75370. #20561 [24]

CUT AND INTO IT. YOU?

WGM, professional, 47, 5'10", 300, honest 7", brown hair and eyes, brown and gray beard, furry chest, handsome, widely varied interests, enjoys pleasures of both circumcision (mine or yours) and foreskin (yours). Extra-special affection for circumcised brothers who are tighter-cut, also for natural brothers who admire a proper circumcision and can appreciate my cut as much as I appreciate your skin. Relationship possible, 100% safe until committed. You be self-reliant, decent-looking, have a life. Race, ability no obstacle. Bienvenidos, hispanohablantes. Note with interests, phone number, best times to: Box 3521, Lubbock, Texas 79452-3521. [26] 20188

CLOSET VIRGIN

37 - "nude" world pumping/foreskins. Tattoos: Mickey Mouse/Disneyland, 2 tigers on penis. Don't smoke or drink. Ever since I saw my first foreskin, deep burning feeling to restore. Didn't realize—missing something so wonderful, Won't stop—until long overhang. Some success. I live in a depressed state where being gay is difficult and the outside is hard to reach. Pumping makes me happy and my foreskin grow. Reply: Ben, P. O. Box 732, American Fork, Utah 84003. #20200 [24]

CUT OR UNCUT

USE IT, ABUSE IT

Dickhead abuse. Skin it back tightly, chew on the head, attack with sandpaper, make me beg to be cut. Tie me down and rip the foreskin off! Leave a smooth scar where the frenulum was, a deep scar back to the balls on the cockshaft. So tight it aches when I'm hard. No slack skin—anybody have a scalpel? Shiva Sookhai, 1411 Capital Ave. NE #6, Battle Creek, MI 49017. #20494 [23]

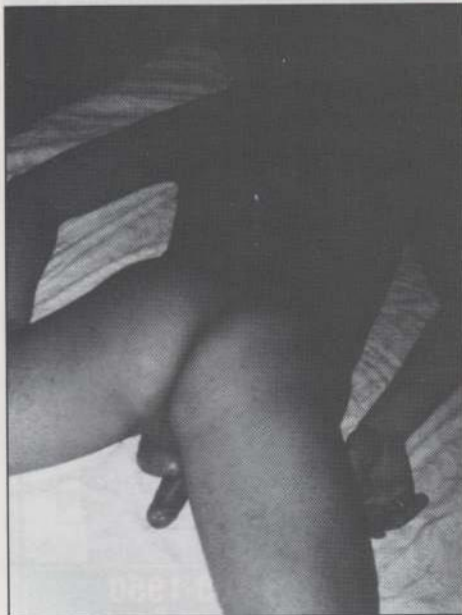

UNCUT

100% CANADIAN CREAM

Have you wanted to be milked dry? Let this hot 40 y/o male "milkman" do the job. If you write, send a photo & your full description. Give me your complete list of desires... I do like men 25-45, all nationalities, be uncut and willing to have lots of "creamy" fun times. Mail me your load c/o R.E., C.P. 42, "M", Montreal, Quebec, Canada H1V 3L6. "Let's free-trade our loads!" [26] 20655

PHIMOSIS OR HARD TO RETRACT

GWM, 6" uncut, wishes to correspond with other uncuts or have a difficult time when retracting their foreskins. Size or age makes no difference. All letters answered. Photos a plus but are not necessary. Especially interested in experiences growing up and how you dealt with them. #20845 [26]

PUSSY BOY

100% bottom, white, Latino boy, smooth, affectionate, hungry mouth and bodacious lips, tight pussy hole. Seeking straight (married OK) or very straight-looking and acting gay men, 100% top, uncut, domineering man to spouse and/or worship. You demand lots of attention, obedience, fidelity and total dedication to your uncut dick. When I am good, you feed me cheese. Answer all, especially letters with pix. [25] 20643 (Picture Above)

Great Magazines

from Brush Creek Media

BEAR

Get your hands on the magazine of naked, hairy, homo smut. In BEAR, you'll find photos of natural, masculine men, thought-provoking columns, dirty stories, reviews of bear events, and over 700 personal ads. It's the magazine for men into masculinity... without the trappings. Bimonthly.

The hottest leather/SM/fetish magazine in existence. International Leatherman brings you sizzling men, hot leathersex action, and vital news and information on the leather scene. No nonsense here, buddy! Bimonthly.

BUNKHOUSE

Studs in spurs and Stetsons hittin' the hay really hard. In every quarterly issue of Bunkhouse, you'll peek into the barns and backroads where hard-ridin' cowboys and country men do it all. Guys, gear and the great outdoors!

MACH

Begun in 1980 as "Drummer's big brother," Mach has now joined the Brush Creek family, where it is still Big Brother, and a mean sucker too. No profiles, no personals, no features; everything here is calculated to get you hard and get you off. Quarterly.

If your focus is that sexy overhang covering the head of his cock, then Foreskin Quarterly is for you. Inside, you'll find erotic fiction, photos, news and personal ads—all of it by and about natural, uncut men and their admirers. In fact, if you like cock, you'll love FQ.

POWERPLAY

Powerplay explores the sexual underground every three months, giving you access to kinky, over-the-edge mansex—and fantasies beyond your wildest imagination. Powerplay puts you in the middle of the erotic scenes no one else will show you.

HOMBRES Latinos

A lifestyle magazine celebrating Latino men through erotic fiction, photos calientes and sexy art. Hombres Latinos also features profiles of successful gay Latinos in business, the arts, and community leadership. Published quarterly.

GBM is the serious, sexual magazine for gay African-American men and their fans. The lives (and bodies) of gay black men are exposed, explored and celebrated in the photos, fiction and features of every quarterly issue.

A black and white photograph of a shirtless man standing in a wooded area. He is leaning against a tree trunk, looking upwards with his eyes closed. He has a muscular physique and is wearing dark-colored shorts. The background is filled with trees and branches, creating a natural, outdoor setting.
