CHURCH OF WICCA OF BAKERSFIELD

BAKERSFIELD, CALIFORNIA 93304

BAKERSFIELD - Our Midsummer went just great. Shirley & Merle conducted the Pagan Way ritual. Gail & Dean R. did the Craft ritual. It was a nice warm day and everyone was happy that the pool was in working order. Wickian Pooka and Sirius also got in for a brief swim. Probably soon they'll be the same about the pool as they are about the Circle...they just gotta join in.

August 2 & 3 there will be a meet at Montana de Oro of the Coven of Dragons. Anyone interested is invited to join in for a Lammass Ritual and a ritual to the Sea Goddess on Saturday. There will be camping out for the weekend, and anyone wishing to camp-a-long should get in touch with Bobbie (805) 322-7218 or Sandie at (805) 589-3638 for costs and directions.

Lady Allusha also having an open meet Aug. 2 & 3 at Arroyo Grande. Details on another page.

And for those of us with schedules that don't allow for travels, we'll be celebrating here as usual.

The mountain meet will be at Panorama Heights again this year, Aug. 16 & 17. That's at Posey, California 93260, (805) 536-8816. More on this on another page.

Locally, we'll be having a Toga party here on July 4 (Friday, it's a holiday) at about 7 P.M. No admittance without either a toga or a 2000 year old Roman soldier...alive and walking. All others will be fed to the crocodiles.

MODESTO - Mid-Summer Sabbat - COVEN OF CERES: Manon was invested as Elder and crowned Queen of the Coven Of Ceres, Order of the Silver Crescent. Coven of Ceres also recieved two new initiates at the festival. The ritual was held in the outdoor Circle with winds gently blowing through the trees and ivy. Manon and Alexis conducted the ritual, and it was a truly memorable occasion. A Handfasting was scheduled for the following day but had to be postponed. All here at Coven of Ceres wish everyone a very prosperous summer.

Blessed Be.
Manon

FROM ALEXIS: Coven Of Trothland: Leila recieved her initiation as High Priestess. A very nice Sabbat ceremony.

Alexis gave up his office of Magus and laid down the Horned Crown. He is now known as Elder Alexis.

A correction to a previous announcement: Queen Iris is Queen of the Coven of Trothland. There is no Queen for the entire Order of The Silver Crescent.

WORDS OF WISDOM FROM RUS & RUTHI

They flew United, and came together.

Do you take shorthand, Miss Nosherly?
No, thankth, I prefer butter.

STUFF & THINGS

Well, it seems C.R. is still having fun with the sex-sexist-feminist thing. This time they published a letter from some woman I never heard of who claims to know all about me. Maybe she gets it from a Crijja board. I do think the hyphenated nickname she invented for me is rather cute. None of us here had ever heard that one.

I am really rather amused at all this nonsense over the word "sexatary". I really would like to know when sex became a dirty word in the Craft. Guess things are really changing. Maybe now we'll hear of eunuch covens for the males and nun (Ain't gonna get none) covens for females. Then there could be Catholic covens: the priests and priestesses take a vow of celibacy. Any of these Catholic covens which operated skyclad should really appeal to those with S & M tendencies.

Too bad some "Pagans" just seem to have absolutely no sense of humor. If we can't learn to laugh at ourselves, we really are in trouble. So if you can't appreciate our sense of humor...too bad...it isn't going to change.

Now how many are going to get all up tight about that???

We've heard some good news lately. Rik in Tucson has graduated with his D.S. degree. Walt (L.A.) area has just received his Master's degree. Not sure what degree Jeannie (Long Beach) is after but at the rate she's going it won't take much longer. Gail (San Jose) is studying several things. Not sure what she's aiming for either. Did I mention that Gail was initiated here the morning of our Beltane ritual? We're happy to have her join us.

Nice to know so many people are learning new things. Guess I told you that Ruthi (Arcane Crafts) got her driving license. Don't know her score yet on hitting pedestrians and police cars. Bobbi in Pittsburgh recently got her license. She says hubby, Walt, has survived her driving so far but his hair is a bit lighter. Wonder why???

We had to give up on finding property in time for this year's mountain meet. We'll be going back to Panorama Heights again this year, August 16 & 17 but some of our people usually go up on the evening of the 15th. Panorama is 50 miles N.E. of Bakersfield. Info on driving directions in the next issue. There is only one gas station between here and there so check your gas before leaving Bakersfield. I won't be leaving until Saturday morning so, if you wish, you can meet here and follow me.

There is no charge for tents or campers. They have several cabins and rooms but you make your own reservations. I'll put the address and phone elsewhere. They have raised prices since last year but will hold them the same as last year just for this weekend. There is a restaurant and bar but no grocery, so if you plan to fix your meals, take food with you.

If you need to be picked up at train, bus, or plane, let us know in advance so we can make plans.

Remember, if you bring the kids, plan on taking care of them yourself.

From ELLEN in No. Hollywood

Am loving Lady Allusha's comments. They are very special. I think it is important to stress attitude and mental work. I love working with herbs, and stars, etc., but they are only part of the work we should do. It is good to see others feeling the same way.

Re: Nuclear power - it would be tragic if the discovery of such power were used only for blowing up cities. I do not sit around worrying about the plants blowing up. (What do I know...I don't even worry about Los Angeles sliding into the ocean, no matter how often it is predicted). My concern is that we haven't yet learned how to dispose of waste safely. I'm sure that is being worked on. I would, however, like to see much more research done in other areas, such as solar, thermal, wind power, etc.

Tell your sexatary "Hi" for me. Listen, as busy as you are, and she probably is, don't you think she should have a sexatary of her own? One about 6'2" blonde, blue-eyes, nice muscles...maybe to help carry her typewriter or something? What think ye?

ED NOTE: You're right, research is continuing on nuclear waste disposal. There is also much research going on regarding, solar, thermal, wind power, fuel, etc. You don't hear much about these things since the news media usually concentrates on whatever they think will get the attention of the viewer or reader. I know these things are happening because I have almost daily reports of the new research and experiments on my own programs.

You don't too often hear about these things for the same reason you seldom hear anything about the Craft that is good or Craft as it really is. In the news you get only the aspect that they can make sensational. Antime a reporter can tie in (no matter how far-fetched) murder, drugs, etc. into Craft, that is what you will get in the news.

ED. NOTE continued

As to my sexatary having her own sexatary: maybe she does. She, too, is busy with a full-time job in addition to her coven, meetings, teaching, etc. all week in Modesto. She is only in Bakersfield on most weekends. I don't ask, and she doesn't say. If you really want to know, come to the mountain meeting and you can ask her.

FROM RIK in Tucson

Patti says that for a price, she will write jokes for you. I suspect that they will be just as sexist but from a woman's point of view.

ED. NOTE: Nobody pays me for what I write, but she is welcome to send them.

Rik Continued: I just got back from Ohio where I spent two weeks putting air conditioners in the mess hall for the Cuban refugees. Boy, when my family came over, we never got any help from the government. One of the members of the new coven is married to a woman from Scotland. She spent about a year trying to get into this country to join her American husband, and when she finally got here, they wanted to send her back.

The weekend of the 7th, I hitched a ride with a couple of the crew who had rented a car and were going to West Virginia. For $30. in gas, they dropped me off in Pittsburgh where I met Bobbi and the Coven of the Rose. We mostly talked about politics and whatnot...Pitts is the pitts as for Craft businesswise. There are a number of Witches but there doesn't seem to be as much tolerance for the Craft as there is in Tucson. But regardless, I had more fun there than I've had in months. Went dancing with the coven (except for Bobbi who couldn't make it) and broke every joint in my body.

Hey! How about asking Mariah (a Druid) for info on the Rites for expectant mothers and new mothers? I think that the Craft can use these. Sort of something half-way between Esbats & Sabbats.

ED. NOTE: We mentioned before that someone has been writing letters and signing Rik's name to them. Rik sent me a copy of one that was sent to Circle which was full of nasty (and certainly not deserved) comments about their publication and people. It was signed with Rik's name. This was obviously only for the purpose of trying to make enemies for Rik. Do we need people who do things like this in the Craft? If you hear of others doing things like this, it is for the benefit of the Craft that you let others know what is going on.

FROM THE WICCAN, AUSTRALIA

LISTEN CHRISTIAN by BOB ROWLAND

I was hungry
 And you formed a humanities club
 And discussed my hunger, Thank you.
 I was imprisoned
 And you crept off quietly
 to your chapel in the cellar
 and prayed for my release.
 I was naked
 and in your mind
 you debated the morality of my appearance.
 I was sick
 and you knelt
 and thanked God for your health.

I was homeless
 and you preached to me
 about the spiritual shelter
 of the love of God.
 I was lonely
 and you left me alone
 to pray for me.
 Christian,
 you seem so holy;
 so close to God.
 But I'm still very hungry,
 and lonely
 and cold.....

MY BONNIE TOOK LESSONS IN WITCHCRAFT by Sudo Nimm

My Bonnie took lessons in Witchcraft
The pathway of wisdom to seek;
The dollars she paid for each lesson
Could feed all her brats for a week.

My Bonnie attempted some "Magick".
She conjured up Aleister Crow...
However she tried to dismiss him,
The stubborn Great Beast wouldn't go.

They sent my Bonnie a dildo
Its dimensions were 13 by 3;
She said that the silly thing looked like
A miniature version of me.

My Bonnie leaned over the candle
The ritual book for to check
Her long hair promptly ignited
(Now she looks like the gal from "Star Trek"

My Bonnie took Lessons in Witchcraft
It cost her an arm and a leg;
They told her she still owes them money.
It forced her to go out and beg.

My Bonnie is now a High Priestess
My Bonnie recieved third degree
Complete with a Moon-Crown and Bracelet,
A Book-of-Shads, and...pedigree.

My Bonnie, she joined her first coven.
The riyuals there were a farce -
They mostly consisted of scourging,
And kissing the priest on the arse.

My Bonnie conducted a Circle;
She freaked them all with her faux-pas,
For when she invoked the Horned God,
She addressed him as "Lord Satanus".

My Bonnie gave readings in Tarot.
Her customers say it unsettles
That instead of a lost "Knight of Clubs"
card
She uses a card of Craig Nettles.

My Bonnie, she lit up some incense
She'd made from her own recipe-e.
The stuff contained too much saltpeter..
Oh Bring back my Bonnie to me!

Being a Witch is ...

THE BATTLE OF SUMMER AND WINTER

Old Winters' clutch is cold and grim,
He will not let the summer in.
And Summers' touch is warm and fair.
She quickens life, and soothes the air.

In Winters youth he sang his song,
With shards of ice, his voice was strong.
Now he is old, his strength doth fade,
As green springs up in every glade.

His world was silent, White its dress,
As it should be, when Life's at rest.
Now this child bright doth leap and cry-
Awake! Awake! The sun is high!

Fingers dancing, tender and fine,
Bring Blossoms forth on branch and vine
They tangle in his greying hair,
He cannot breath the perfumed air.

She spritely capers 'round his bed,
Puts woven garlands on his head.
Enough! and yet Enough! he cries,
Still he's bespelled by Summers eyes.

Thru Waking hills he flees in haste,
And laughing merrily she gives chase.
So they flew past vale and wood.
Til at the Edge of Time they stood.

There he stopped, in pain he cried.
"I only ask for peace."
"Yes, tis right," she then replied.
"There must be times of ease."

With warning in his voice he spoke,
Upon the earth he drew a line,
And with his staff, the ground he smote,
"From this mark on, the lands be mine!"

"These borders now you may not pass,
A season I shall hold them.
Go tend your gardens, pretty lass,
and with green arms enfold them.

And when they weary of their growth,
You'll hear them call for me.
Then I shall walk in them once more,
And sleep my gift shall be."

Then Summer answered bright and gay,
Her swirling coloured skirts she flaunted.
"Oh put your silly staff away."
She looked him in the eye undaunted.

"We need not war between us,
for both our work there's need.
When sleepy voices call for you,
The waking sing for me.

And I shall rouse those sleeping seeds,
That you have laid to rest,
And I shall place the garland green,
Upon the earth's brown breast."

They faced themselves across their times,
The borders they had set.
And gazed into each other's eyes,
Alliance had been met.

And with their fingers entertwined
They sing a bridal song.
What were two voices, now combined
Harmon'us, light and strong.

By the gates, between the times,
Of sleep and waking, We -
Twice yearly meet to share a cup,
A pledge twixt thee and me.

For we are well and truly wed,
Two halves of greater whole.
For life must rest, and sleep must wake,
And the wheel must ever roll.

FROM ARMEETA in Pittsburgh

My favorite tea mixture is a panacea of sorts and works immediately:

- Comfrey
- Rosemary
- Chamomile
- Peppermint or spearmint
- Lemon Verbena (optional)

Approximately equal parts of whatever you have. Usually I use a little more comfrey than the rest. Then add for fragrance and color and pleasant taste:

Red rose petals) These I use less than the first part.

Lanender)

BITS AND PIECES:

Vinegar - For unpleasant cooking odors or someone smoking in the house, pour some vinegar in a small open container like a cup or small bowl to deodorize or absorb.

Good also for clogged drains. Let some run into the trap, and leave for several minutes. Washing soda also works on clogged drains.

If a sweetener is desired for a tea, as an alternate for honey, you can add to the tea mixture a little licorice root. Use sparingly as it is a powerful sweet. It is also good for female hormone therapy. It comes in powder form or shredded root.

If a person needs a cathartic, you can use locust leaves, called American Senna, and is so abundant in our country, and if you know it, it is free. Use same as regular senna, but much less. Try only 1/2 teaspoon to a cup of boiling water. Try for strength and judge more or less accordingly. Locust flowers (they are coming out now) dipped in a batter and quickly deep-fried, make a nice addition to a meal. (Different and appetizing and will keep the colon going.)

Fenugreek Seeds make the greatest tea for cholesterol, unclogging the veins and arteries. People in the Far East use it as a steady diet. It is also wonderful for nursing mothers. Fennell is also good for lactation.

Ridges from tip to cuticle on the nails indicate lack of iron. Dark, raw, leafy vegetables can correct.

ED NOTE: Did you know that not so long ago a well-advertised breakfast food which claimed to contain iron, really did contain lots of iron..iron filings?

White spots on finger nails indicate lack of zinc which is so necessary in wound healing. Foods rich in zinc are: Brewers yeast, bone meal, beans, nuts, seeds, (especially pumpkin and sunflower seeds) wheat germ, fertile eggs, fish and meat with liver, a particularly rich source.

People (all of us) should wash our feet every day and change hose or socks every day as the perspiration can be reabsorbed into the system. Sulphur of flowers (yellow sulphur powder) is a wonderful healing agent for foot troubles (including athlete's foot) but is so necessary to keep the feet dry to prevent cracks between toes, etc.

ARMEETA continued

Oftentimes, people's feet smell to high heaven. Could be anyone; and B.O. in general indicates a lack of magnesium in the system. The old axiom per the nutritionalists is "Take Zinc and don't stink." Zinc is necessary in the system to prevent B.O. If a person does not get enough through their meals, do, by all means, fortify through supplements...available in health food stores.

WAR FROM THE INSIDE

by Mariah in L.A. area.

I have noticed within the Craft a war of different ideas on different subjects. At times we need to allow our own ideas to come forward. Within each of us are the Hidden Mysteries of magic, that are our own, and our own magic works best for us. When we hear someone tell us to do magic this way or that way, it may not feel "natural" to our own feelings. The basic principle of the Craft should remain the same. But when it comes to your own magical workings, do as you will. We are free people to think our own thoughts. That is one reason our religion appeals to so many different groups of people.

When we spend time trying to prove each other wrong, it brings forward hatred and jealousy. The Crafter that can debate the best may win, but is that Crafter right? The Crafter that lost the debate will become less sure of him/herself, and not listen to the inner guide, and will lose the magic that may work only for that person.

We should listen to each other and learn from each other. All Crafters should use their own imagination and feelings. Every group I have been honored to visit has done their own rituals differently, to go with their own personality. Who is to say who is right or wrong? We are of the freedom religion, with our own freedom of choice.

So many secrets were lost in the past. Now there are no "Secrets"; it has been said that the biggest secret of all: "is that there are no secrets". Within each group they have their own rituals that they may want to keep to themselves, only because they have put them together as a group, and it feels natural to the group.

We all should remember our past; we could not read or write. So the Craft was passed by word of mouth. We all know that when someone tells us something, we may misinterpret what they have said, and do everything differently. When it works for that person, are we to tell them that they did everything wrong? Some Crafters have never read a book on Astro Travelling, and have done it with their own feelings and imagination. Do we tell that person to do it this way or that way to travel?

If we listen to other Crafters, and learn from each other, we have allowed ourselves to grow. All Crafters have something to give, that came to them from the Gods within themselves. Some Crafters have very good ideas but are afraid to voice their ideas because they are afraid they may be told they are wrong. A lot of gentle Crafters have very good ideas on different subjects but will never share them. They are not strong enough to fight for their own ideas. Great ideas may be lost. Just because a Crafter is outspoken does not make him/her right. This is my opinion. I may be right or I may be wrong.

Some Crafters say to go Whiddershins in the Circle, and some say to go deosil. They are all right, and no one is wrong. Assume we are starting in the North because we are of planet Earth, and start going whiddershins. We are going to element of water, fire, air and back to earth. We have just joined together all of the elements. When we go deosil, again, assuming we are starting in the north, we go to element air, fire, water, and back to earth; again we have joined all the elements. Now that the Circle is cast, we begin our ritual. We are what we think, and at this point we must decide which path we are on. What I am trying to say is that every element is needed, and going to different elements does not make it black or wrong. What lies within the mind makes it wrong or black.

Yes, I know that the moon travels in a counter-clockwise motion around the Earth, as the Earth travels around the Sun, as we view it from the north. The moon stands for the Goddess and the Sun stands for the God. Don't we do rituals for the God and the Goddess?

If I am recognizing the Goddess, I will start in the north. If I am recognizing the God, I will start in the south..for fire element. The direction I go I leave up to which way feels good; I go both ways. But I prefer to go the movement of the universe, counter-clockwise.

I am still learning and will continue to learn every day, and as someone points out ideas on a subject in the Craft, I will listen to them, and when they show me I am wrong, I will change my opinion. Every child changes opinion as they grow and I am still growing.

I see the Craft as a beautiful flower that grows and blooms and spreads its fragrance, then rests, and then leaves behind its seeds. It is the caretakers that help it to grow. The air carries it to other places, earth gives it natural minerals, water brings life back to it, and fire keeps it warm. The seed needed all four elements; none were good or bad, it had to keep a balance to bring forth life.

Back to deosil or whiddershins: what about the left-handed people in a world of right-handed people? Do we say they are wrong and should be like the majority? The Gods made a balance of both. Years ago the world thought that left-handed people were evil, so parents forced the children to use the right hand. What a shame that we can't be ourselves; we are all made perfect in the eyes of the Gods.

We have the best religion in the world; let's keep it that way. Don't destroy it from the inside. Be open-minded to each other's ideas that are worth hearing.

Pat has always said, "Be happy, Enjoy life, and Love each other."

Merry Part and Blessed Be.

ED. NOTE: I agree with your basic idea, Mariah. What an individual or a group does should be their own preference. But what is right for one person or one group may be quite wrong for another. Yes, what we think often makes a thing good or evil. This is the result of conditioning. And conditioning is necessary to make our magic work. Magick works by or through our subconscious. If a person is conditioned to believe that his/her magic will only work if he/she stands on one foot, hops up and down three times and yells, "BOO HOO" before doing a ritual, then it is the right way for that person to work. But it wouldn't be right for me because I don't believe it.

Freedom is great...within limits. Even the most primitive people learned long ago that a group must have leadership and rules to function. Without these, there can only be chaos. That is one reason a coven must have a HPs and HP. Very little could be accomplished if each individual in a Circle decided to do things his own way. It is most important that each person learns to think and function as part of a unit when working magick...so that they can act as ONE.

It is not reasonable for a person to expect to join a group and then have the group change to fit his/her ideas. If there is changing to be done, it must be the person who changes to fit the group. It is more logical for the person to find another group that he/she does fit into.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR BEGINNERS

MAKING YOUR FIRST WAND: When the proper time comes, your coven leaders will instruct you on the proper way to make a wand for that coven or that branch of the Craft. Meanwhile, you can get some practice making this one...or you may wish to do this if you work alone. You can find some info in various books as to the proper type of wood, size, preparation, etc. If you find things that appeal to you, add to or adapt to this one. Cut a piece of wood from some kind of fruit tree. This should be approximately 15 to 18 inches long. The bark must be removed, and this is usually easier to peel off when the wood is still damp. Now let the wood dry thoroughly. Then sand it to a nice smoothness. You may wish to paint on magical symbols and also your Craft name in runes. These may be painted directly on the wood, but if you make a mistake it is more difficult to correct. Another way is to use black ink on white paper. Now since your wand should be about the thickness of your thumb, the runes should be about 5 sixteenths to 3/8 high. Now cut each group into a strip about 1/2 inch to 1 1/2 or 2 inches long. These may be pasted on the wand perhaps a couple inches from the ends on opposite sides. When all is thoroughly dry, you may coat it with shellac, or varnish or even clear nail polish. This will protect the runes and symbols from rubbing off through wear. When complete, spend at least a few minutes each day holding the wand, caressing it, concentrating your personality into it. There are more complicated ways of making a wand but this will give you a starting point and something to practice with. Now get the habit of never letting others use or even touch your tools.

BEING A WITCH IS.... from Lady Phoenix in Dallas.
 ...being serious when you grab the sun tan lotion and head for the pool saying..."it's time to go worship the sun!"

FROM ARMEETA in Pittsburgh

In olden times people were careful to bury the departed facing the East. I guess that means having the head in the West and the feet in the East. Would that mean that when resurrection day comes the departed will rise and greet the sun? Does anyone have a better explanation? Perhaps someone can elaborate on this.

For allergies and asthma, chew beeswax (honeycomb). Brother-in-law uses it effectively. It's an oldtime folklore remedy. I can understand that as the flowers have healing properties.

To remove gall stones or kidney stones, take plenty of almond oil, preferably on an empty stomach. It's more effective if you go on a fast and take the oil. I recommended it to some people and it works beautifully, and "look, no surgery, mom."

For insomnia, take a nice warm-to-hot soaking bath and a cup of hot milk. Do not drink coffee in the evening, or citric juices or eat any citrus foods as they are waker-uppers and should only be taken early in the morning.

Aphrodisiacs were adequately covered in the April issue of the newsletter, but let me add this little bit:

Chinese use ginseng. Italians use hot peppers as do the Mexicans.

East central Europeans use garlic, horse radish, onions and radishes.

Many mountain people eat mountain oysters (sheep testicles).

In Africa in certain countries, some men for virility eat the testicles of the lion or leopard.

On the sea coast many people eat oysters and shell fish.

In the Balkan countries, for virility and to keep the gonads healthy and also the prostate, the men eat pumpkin seeds.

Milk and chocolate are constipating. However, both are good as a nightcap if you have trouble going to sleep. Chocolate is made from cocoa (the cocoa tree) for tranquility and endurance. The Indonesians and some South Americans chew the leaf of the cocoa to keep going in their poverty stricken lives. Both milk (even buttermilk) and or a hot chocolate drink are sleep inducing.

Everyone knows about the poppy seed. It can be bought in some grocery stores. It is sleep inducing. I once knew a woman who had a beer joint, and she would always be chewing a small bag of poppy seeds to keep her from getting edgy.

In the West Indies, persons having a toothache chew ginger root to alleviate the pain.

Banana skins and avocado skins (the inner side) are good to rub over dry hands or skin as they are good softeners. Especially good to rub over rough elbows and knees. Rubbing the inside of the banana skin over a burn is healing.

If ants give any trouble or are on the verge of entering your home, or there are any signs of ants in the house, lay some cucumber skins around.

In my own experience, burning myrrh and/or frankincense is conducive to E.S.P. phenomena. Try it.

FROM RIK in Tucson

Pat, some time ago Patti asked me to convert to Catholicism, and after thinking about it, I gave her my decision. For what it is worth, I share it with you and the newsletter.

Out of love, and not greed, you ask me to join you in your faith. "Don't answer yet," you say, "think about it for a week." And because I love you, I agree.

For that week, I dwell on the Catholic good and the Wiccan bad; for if my Craft cannot survive this, it has no right to be.

I think of being able to say what I am without the explanation that I now must give.

I think of always finding others of my faith, instead of the almost eternal loneliness that I now have.

I think of the world-wide organization that can do so much good, instead of the occasional spell I now manage.

And I think of being able to share with you a religion, instead of you being on your path and me on mine.

But then I think of the priests, who must be there to join you to your God. I know mine without aid from others. That Holy Eucharist of yours is to me but a piece of bread, no different than that in my toaster. And your God is to me, just a man.

And also I remember that I have talked to the trees, and sometimes they answered. I have felt the earth and been part of the whole. I have seen the joys of the Sabbat and the love and trust that is near perfect. And I have felt joy at the birth of a kitten, and sorrow at his death.

For you see, my dear, I cannot join you in this way, for in a moonlit meadow I have felt the Goddess touch my heart. But thank you for loving me enough to ask.

TO BURN OR NOT TO BURN from RHEA in GEORGIA

I've read with interest (and a wee bit of amusement) letters in the last two newsletters condemning the use of wood-burning stoves. Seems the subject is almost as heated (oop! pardon my pun!) as the nuclear issue!

I'll agree with the writers on one thing -- not every person nor every area of the country is suited for this method of heating, cooking --or exercise. Strange --both letters were from men and both from areas where trees are not overly plentiful (but I do wonder how much charcoal they use in their bar-b-que grills).

Pollution? Certainly not any more than from coal, oil or gas. Even electricity is responsible for some degree of pollution -- something must be used to provide the energy to run the generators.

"Woodsman, spare that tree!" No one could agree with that emotion more than I. But in heavily forested areas of the country there is a surplus of dead and damaged timber which should be removed. It just takes a little effort to be selective! Even the forest/park services regularly clear/clean their areas, removing dead and damaged (and potentially dangerous) timber. In most areas, this timber is offered to the public free of charge -- just haul it away.

And how many of us work at, know someone who does, or lives close to, businesses which dispose of huge stacks of wood (packing crates, skids, surplus building lumber, etc.), usually by burning. One can use a wood-burning stove for years and never cut the first tree.

By utilizing this "scrap" lumber, we not only save on other fuels and money, but also help to keep our area clean! And the wood-burning stove not only provides warmth but can also be used for cooking. Ever eat a pot of beans cooked on a wood-burner? Beats a "crock-pot" any day! And keeps the coffee hot all day, too --at no extra charge.

Ashes? Well, Rus is correct. Ashes contain "lye" -- and other valuable nutrients. An efficient wood-burning stove leaves very little ash -- a small amount of fine gray powder. But what to do with them??? Well -- many trees, particularly nut-bearing trees, benefit from a good dressing of potash spread around the root system. Here in the South, many pecan growers punch holes in each end of cans of lye and bury them around the root systems of their trees. And onions thrive on potash. So do grapes. And many other vegetables, fruits and flowers.

So -- one doesn't just dump the ashes in a heap to leach the concentrated caustic out into one small spot. Rather, take a few extra minutes and a little extra effort to scatter the ashes lightly over garden areas and around trees. The extra time and effort spent returns big dividends.

Granted, it takes a lot more effort/energy to keep the fire going than it does to nudge the thermostat! The wood must be gathered and cut. The fire must be built and stoked. And the ashes must occasionally be removed and scattered. But the benefits are worth the extra time and effort. There is exercise -- which most of us get too little of. And the saving of other fuels, and money. And as for ecology -- burning "scrap" lumber eliminates the need to cut healthy trees.

So if you live in an area where wood is scarce, by all means use other fuels. But give those of us who do use wood for heat and cooking credit for loving the Earth, respecting her resources, and using them wisely.

A NOTE FROM YOUR EDITOR

In a recent newsletter we mentioned Jerry Fallwell and his religious empire, taking in a million dollars a week and spending $300,000. a week on religious broadcasts. Are you also aware that he has formed a political organization "The Moral Majority" which he claims is separate from his church? But is it really separate except on paper since it involves the same people? They are anti-E.R.A., anti-abortion, want prayers put back in the schools, and endorse Reagan for President. Does that tell you anything?

The organization now has lobbyists to influence politicians. What comes next as Falwell and his "Born Agains" gain power...religious suppression? Do we really need another Cotton Mather?

Maybe it's time Pagans form their own political organization separate from our religion. Or should we do nothing, as once before, and just wait for the "burning times" to return?

What's your opinion?

HERBS OF PLUTO

Pluto has been somewhat of an occult enigma since its discovery. Its attributes and rulerships have been debated, often bitterly, for the past forty some years. The current (and most intuitively workable) hypothesis defines Pluto as the planet of sex, death, and regeneration; of things hidden and subteranean -- those primordial forces of evolution and inner compulsion that represent a dark aspect of the God. I believe the attribution of grains such as rye and wheat to Pluto tend to bear out the previously ascribed qualities, particularly if fungoidal grain parasite/symbiotes such as ergot are added to the Plutonian catalogue.

Pluto's abduction of Persephone into the underworld is a mythogenic narrative too well known to the present reader to require elaboration here. What is sometimes overlooked is the fact that the myth quite securely connects Pluto as an essential component to the continuing cycle of the death and regeneration of the cereal grains, plant life, and ultimately (and metaphorically) all life. Thus Pluto's legendary connection with cereal grains seems well established.

There are, however, other levels of meaning and other perspectives to be taken regarding this primal legend and Pluto's herbal attributes. The Eleusinian Mysteries grew up around the Demeter-Pluto-Persephone legends and became, over the centuries, a profound initiatory experience. Central to the rites was the consumption of a potion made of barley water containing a decoction of ergot, the progenitor, of course, of our own LSD, the discovery of which virtually (in cosmic time) accompanied the discovery of Pluto.

One of the common threads amid bewildering variety of experience catalysed by ergot and its derivatives is the experience of death and dissolution of the ego (which from an egocentric viewpoint amounts to total annihilation) and its subsequent reconstitution and regeneration. Ergotophiles are taken on a voyage through their own psychic underworld that closely parallels the experience of Persephone as bride of Pluto.

There is also a great deal of evidence to indicate that the experience involves a triggering of genetic memory, and so opens the floodgates of evolutionary force. Moreover, the saprophytic cousins of ergot such as amanita muscaria and psilocybin subsist on decay, and were once commonly associated with dark, deadly subterranean origins. Ergot also serves as a vasoconstrictor which may be considered an appropriate effect for an attribute of the higher octave of Mars.

Pluto may indeed be the dread, dark lord whose experience is, to say the least, cathartic. Through the agency of the ergot derivatives, however, it is possible to put oneself on the pathway to the experience while providing for the possibility of human frailty by thoughtfully eliminating (just like in real life and death) the possibility of turning back.

STUFF & THINGS

Well, I goofed again. When printing this up, I got one page out of sequence ...and that causes confusion in numbering. The first page numbered "8" is really page "8". The second page numbered "8" is really page "10". To make things come out right, a couple of "A" pages had to be added...so there will really be more pages than the last page number indicates. Now, aren't you glad you don't have to worry about stupid problems like this?

We do appreciate the donations that have come in for the property fund. Did I mention a nice check from Penny in Florida? As I mention elsewhere, going to Panorama this year really gives us more time to look for the best property buy and at a time when interest rates are going down. It also gives us more time to work on other expansion plans for the church. We have found a couple of possibilities reasonably close to Dakersfield. We need something not too far away to make it practical for our local people to go there on weekends to do whatever work may need to be done. When complete, it can be used for regular meetings, Sabbats, vacations, etc. We plan to make it available to all Pagans & Crafters who live in the vicinity or who care to visit. Of course we don't know yet how much mountain property we'll be able to get. Land prices in this area are very high. It is not unusual for unimproved property to run a couple thousand dollars an acre.

Gail (Dakersfield) had a recent accident. A car stopped for a stop sign and then pulled out in front of her without looking. Gail had more than 100 stitches in her head and face. Guess she has enough hair to cover the part of her head they shaved. If not, we promise not to call her "baldy".

Will in New Jersey says: I read Poems from Tanya in Colorado in the March issue. Very beautiful. Lifted my spirit to new perspectives. I recieved the Coven Gardens catalogue. Some really nice things in there. Very reasonable prices. Art work is great, too. I recieved the tape from Circle "Songs of the Pagan Folk" the other day. Some really good songs.

In response to Elizabeth Pepper and the Almanac not being printed anymore: I'll really be at a loss without it. Years ago I came across the third edition and have bought every one since then.

Where can I get the book "The Secret Gospel" by Norton Smith? I saw Bill Herman of Casadaga, Florida on "Real People"...how can I contact him?

ED. NOTE: Maybe one of our readers will have answers for you.

GOLLUM COLLUM
WEANING

When the kittens are three weeks old, place a shallow saucer of formula on the floor. Dip your finger into the formula and let the kittens suck on it. Repeat this a few times until their noses get closer to the formula. They will probably walk into the saucer, but have patience; you'll be amazed at how fast the kittens will pick up your message. The mother cat will still let the kittens have a free lunch until they have all their baby teeth (about five weeks of age) but then their teeth will start to irritate the breasts.

The mother will be happy to cooperate with your weaning program. Keep the mother away from the kittens for a few hours during the day. After a week, let them be together just at night. (Lots of luck. Tia & Bright Eyes take turns feeding the kittens when I put one of them outside. O well, you can't win them all.)

At the same time, decrease the mother's food intake accordingly, to decrease milk production. If the breasts become engorged, which does occasionally happen, compresses may help. Contact your Vet. if things don't improve in two or three days.

At this writing we have only two of the little ones left. My human wanted to keep them all, but the cost of cat food today! they would have to buy a food plant.

There are some photos of the kittens in this month's newsletter; we hope you enjoy them as much as we do.

As Pat can see, the kittens have helped me a lot; they play with the paper, the typewriter, chew on the paper & play with the keys. HELP!

u!!!

I find it hard to say goodbye to the kittens, but they have all gone to good homes. I wish they were with Witches, but the cowans that have taken them have told me that they will let me see them anytime I like, so that makes it okay.

ARWIN - I hear that you had Beltane kittens. They are special to you, I know, and I hear that Herbe of Bakersfield is taking one, or is it two? You say that you are only giving them to Witches? That's nice.

Arwin, about you losing your hair around the neck: any cat older than six months of age can develop an allergy to flea saliva. The flea injects its saliva under the cat's skin as an aid in retrieving its meal (the cat's blood). The saliva acts as foreign material that can cause you to itch and bite yourself. You can try a natural control agent that's good for the skin and hair, too. That is, to use brewer's yeast. Mixing 0.1 gm. per pound in the food daily seems to make some cats distasteful to fleas... How about that!!!

BIBI - I am so happy to hear from you all the way from Sydney, Australia. You say you are a friend of Mr. Slats, also. He is a handsome fellow, too, from the photos I've seen of him.

Who is this lovely Lady Suzie you are talking about? Will I get to meet her as well on the astral? I hope so.

Hope to hear from all of you soon. May the Lady walk with you always.

GOLLUM B.B.

DOG DAYS

Since we've had things about dogs often, we'll have Dog Days any months when we have things to say about dogs.

We're sad to say that Lady bug is no longer with us. Somehow she got out of the yard and was struck by a car. When I got Ladybug, I had been looking for a dog to keep Wickian Pooka from being lonely. I have found another...mixed Border Collie and Shepherd. He is almost as big as Pooka, eleven months old. I have named him Sirius after the Dog Star.

If you are interested in dogs, you should try to read the article on dogs in Man, Myth & Magic. Here are a few notes from that.

It is known that dogs existed in the Stone Age, the Bronze and Iron Ages.

The city of Cynopolis forced its citizens to provide for all stray dogs. They went to war with another city when someone ate one of their dogs.

It is believed that the Egyptians worshipped the dog because of the dog star, Sirius, which told them when it was time for the floods.

The dog was revered by the Babylonians, Assyrians, and Chaldeans. One Governor of Babylon owned so many dogs that he made four towns exempt from taxes if they fed their dogs properly.

Because the Egyptians worshipped dogs, the Hebrews hated them. Islam also abhors the dog.

The ancient Persians venerated dogs, and strays were protected by religious laws.

The Hindus believe the dog is equal to man, and therefore may be tried for crimes.

There is so much more. If you care about dogs, try to find a copy of M,M & M.

STUFF AND THINGS

Wondered why I hadn't heard from Pam in Georgia. Thought maybe she was annoyed because it took so long to reply to her last letter-tape. Finally got a new one. Pam was busy having a baby male Witchling on June 2. Pam says it was rather an interesting day. The baby was 10 days late and then got in an awful hurry. The hospital had only 2 delivery rooms, 1 doctor, and 5 mothers all having their babies at the same time. Pam didn't get beyond the examination room. Pam will be off to Merrie Olde England by the end of the month. She still has her British accent so no one will ever know she left there. Don't know how long her husband will be stationed there. Pam says she enjoyed Demeter's Menu in the June newsletter (by the way, sorry about that typo foulup. It was from Demeter..Ye Full Moon Wicca, Mastic Beach, N.Y.) and Pam would like to know how to make a Scorpio Sandwich...like what's in it? She wants to make one.

* * *

Definitely, Taumi should go to the dog house! She sent a 24 page booklet describing all the nice meets, etc that MRG had going on in Pennsylvania June 18 thru 25. And I recieved it after all is over. Should have had this for the June issue.

* * *

We're still having that problem with a few of you about sending things too late. If it's an article or something not dated, it can go in the next month. But anything dated must be HERE by the 25 th to get in the next issue.

BEING A WITCH DOG IA

...looking for all those cake crumbs on the ground after the ritual.

"MOM and ME" by Ariel in Pittsburgh

Child of mine, says Mom to me,
 You've always been quite strange,
 But tell me now - will you explain
 This cauldron on the range?

Oh Ma, said I, that's just some stew
 For friends who are stopping by,
 Tonight the moon is full, you see,
 And energies run high

Well daughter, tell me - what is this?
 It looks like marijuana to me.
 Oh Ma, I said, that's spearmint leaves
 To brew your favorite tea.

Why all the candles, and that incense?
 It smells like a church in here.
 Sort of is Mom - don't you see?
 A "church" can be anywhere.

Up in your room, up on your wall -
 You think I didn't see?
 Those nude women, and men with horns
 Staring down at me!

Those horns, those horns, what could it mean?
 Oh not the devil - NO!
 I think it's time, past time in fact -
 Off to the preacher you go!

Mother dear, those horns are signs,
 But not of your "boogy man",
 They stand for nature - wild and free -
 That is our God Pan!

What's in the trunk, what's on the wall -
 The weirdest things I've seen.
 And those strange books - all of it
 Tell me - what does it mean!?!

Okay dear Mom, I guess it's time,
 Time for you to see.
 A Witch, Mom, is what I am
 And a Witch I'll always be.

A Witch! A Witch! A Witch!, she screamed,
 Tell me it's not true!
 Not my Baby, not my girl
 This couldn't happen to you!

Calm down Mom, don't yell, just sit,

Sit and listen to me.

Witchcraft is not what you think,

It's a beautiful Religion, see?

Witches worship Nature

The Power in us all,

We honor Moon and Sun and Sky

Spring, Summer, Winter, Fall!

We do not preach the "thou shalt nots",

But one thing is a must;

"An you harm none, do what you will"

In Perfect Love and Trust!

We don't believe in "devils",

We don't believe in hell.

We do believe in Nature's Laws

And the Power of a spell.

We heal, we teach, we love, we help,

We honor Earth and Sky.

We don't fear death, for this we know--

Our souls will never die.

Our Goddess and our Horned God

Are ancient symbols - true,

But we know they exist today

To guide us each day through!

You see-Mom, I am happy

To be the way I be,

I am content with my Pagan soul

This you can surely see.

Pagans are beautiful people,

And we are many too,

If you will Mom, open your eyes

And see what Wicca can do.

This Witchcraft doesn't sound too bad,

My Mom said suddenly,

Next in line to teach, my child -

You think it could be me?

STUFF AND THINGS

Very nice long phone call from Penny in Florida. She's busy as usual with her job, her group, and speaking to various groups. Penny is very enthusiastic about getting her 2nd...which she should have by the time you receive this.

Also a nice long phone call from Rhea in Georgia. She's busy as usual with her job and Craft meetings. Now that she's moved, I guess things will be a bit easier for her. Both Rhea and Penny have been looking forward to Penny visiting during June. I know they were hoping to get to the mountains. Hope they made it.

Just received a nice long tape-letter from Lady Allusha. She's really looking forward to her meeting coming up in early August. Details on another page. Remember Lady Allusha's story of the Unicorn? Well, now she is very proud that her Witchling has had something published in the Unicorn. We do hope she will make it to the mountain meet again this year...and dance for us again. If not, let's see, what could we turn her into that's not too bad?

THE JOURNEY

Conceived by all the mysteries
Born from the great womb of the sea
Carried aloft by the wind to the breast
of my mother, the Moon.

Warmed by the fires of my father, the Sun.
Then gently placed upon this green Earth.
to seek others proud to be known as Witch.
Then may we sit again beside the Great Ones,

to rest, ready to return again to seek out
and love those of the Wicca.
This is our destiny, and may all who seek it
find the peace and knowledge of the Craft.

THE HIGH PRIESTESS

A Column on the Ritual Use of Herbs By Shadowhawk (Elvenhearth)

Since we all observe a lunar calendar, I'd like to start with the herbs used in lunar workings. The 1st is mistletoe, used for New Moon.

The Druids and many other peoples believed this herb to be sacred. It is also known as "all heal", and the leaves and stems are brewed into tea which helps ease many ills.

New Moon celebration is built around this herb - it eases one through the transition. It is smoked in a ceremonial pipe consecrated to that lone purpose. 3 "takes" taken in a 3 part breath, broken by 7-4-7 cleansing prana breaths - (the timing is by heartbeat - in 7, hold 4 - out 7).

The herb is good for turning inward for insight, self improvement, and purification. This time is also very good for scrying, and mistletoe is an excellent aid. The Goddess form residing in mistletoe is the "Dark Mother", Lady of deep places, Water and earth aspect.

It is a teacher in the same mode as mescalato (as referred to in Castanada's books) but not a hallucinogen. You will feel Her "presence" inside you, and She can show you things. Sometimes people hear a "sound" in their minds; it is the SECRET name of the Goddess, and it is NEVER voiced, but can be used as an internal mantra to put yourself in touch with that inner aspect of yourself.

Do not be disappointed if She doesn't speak to you - She may not for some time. Also, mistletoe works in incense as a "charger", that is, it purifies and raises the energy levels of what you put it in. By itself, it banishes, too.

If you do not smoke, you can drink mistletoe tea, 1 teaspoon to 3 cups water. 1st cup (expresso size) bitter, 2nd cup with salt, 3rd with honey.

The ritual given here is in its simplest form; feel free to add or adapt as is comfortable to you and your tradition. As with all magicks - CAST A CIRCLE FIRST! AND REMEMBER TO BANISH WHEN YOU'VE FINISHED!

Brightest Blessings

Shadowhawk & Blacksun

IMPORTANT POSTSCRIPT

Mistletoe Berries (white in color) are HIGHLY POISONOUS! DO NOT ingest them in ANY MANNER!

ALSO A NOTE FOR WOMEN

This ritual will regulate your monthly cycle - if you practice it faithfully.

Also - mistletoe tea eases "time of moon pain" and helps you to "pass" the offending blood clots which cause the cramps.

STUFF AND THINGS

SHADOWHAWK of Elvenhearth in Washington says: My HPs, Kitty, gave me 5 beautiful babies. They're old enough to climb out of the box now, and boy, do they have good lungs! Poppa kitty (mine..named Myrrydwyn..I don't believe in using true God-form names except in Circle) is starting to play with the babies. I'll be sad to give them away..but 3 adult cats is almost too much. I'll send some pictures when copies come in.
ED. NOTE: Recieved this too late for Gollum.

Lady Rhea sent me the first edition of a new publication called "Moonstone". Very nice...more of a magazine format than a newsletter. It is planned to be published cross-quarterly, on each Sabbat. Subscription: $6.00 in U.S. for 8 issues. Send check or M.O. to MOONSTONE, 34 Don Juan Circle, Chamblee, Ga.30341

We do get a letter now and then from someone who gets up tight about something in the newsletter. That's to be expected. No matter what anyone does or says, someone will object or have a different opinion. But please don't blame me for everything you disagree with. Yes, I write some things, but most of the material is written by you readers, and is labeled with the name of the author. I recently had a letter from a couple in the East who said they are not going to renew their subscription because they don't agree with my opinion on nuclear energy. I find this very childish. Because they don't agree with me on a single matter, does that mean the entire newsletter is of no value? As I've mentioned in the past, the newsletter is for the benefit of Crafters and Pagans, not to make money. If their not taking another subscription is supposed to hurt financially...it doesn't. We still lose money on every copy we send out. This is only the July issue, and already it has cost us the income for the entire year of 1980.

Don't forget about getting things in to us on time. We always try to get this in the mail on the first of the month. News of meetings etc. deadline is that material must be HERE by the 25 th. Articles, poetry, etc. should be sent as early as possible. I have to start typing the next issue as soon as we get one issue in the mail.

Remember, this is not a commercial publication. We do not have a staff. You readers write most of the material. One night a month we have a crew to collate, staple, address, etc. to get it ready for the mail. But all month I am typing stencils, mimeographing, getting electronic stencils made, taking color photos to the printer, picking up supplies, getting address labels made, etc. I'm not complaining about the work...I enjoy it. Just want you to understand the problem and know why I can't do everything at the last minute.

TO ALL WITCHES & PAGANS,

As you may have read in the May newsletter, Dan and I are trying to pave the way for a military Wiccan Chaplain. We realize it probably won't become a reality during our enlistments, but we do hope to at least get the wheels turning in the right direction. To do so, we'll need letters giving us your support in the matter. Your names and addresses will remain confidential if you so desire, but we would appreciate permission to use your names in our petition to congress. Mostly though, we need your support in this. Please send all correspondence directly to: Gail K. Sova, 1 st ops. Bn. Box 1315, USAFS Augsburg, APO New York 09458.

STUFF AND THINGS

GAIL (SAN JOSE) says work on that stump is going slowly. Needs to get her saw sharpened.

JIM (WINCHESTER, CAL.) says, "my eldest daughter had her baby, a boy, so I'm a Grandpa. ED. NOTE: Guess it's time you were initiated, GRANDPA.

JENNIE (GAINESVILLE, FLORIDA) asks if our area was affected by the earthquakes. She's still trying to find "What Witches Do". Jennie & Penny hoping to get together for a ritual soon. Jennie finished her parapsychology course. ED. NOTE: We felt one tremor very slightly. I didn't even notice the 2nd until someone mentioned it to me. Unless you're very close to or right over a bad quake, you just notice a slight swaying of light fixtures or such. I was living in Bakersfield and covering the news for radio during the Tehachapi and Bakersfield earthquakes in the early 50's. When you've been through a couple of those, a little swaying doesn't bother you. Those quakes did do damage but they also did some good: a beautiful new county library and a new court house, etc. If you look for it, you can usually find something good in everything.

TANYA (COLORADO) out of school for vacation, busy with her art work. Tanya says she and another were going to try tracing past lives with a Tarot deck. Sounds interesting. Hope she lets us know how that turns out. A later letter says they did find some interesting things but she didn't give much detail. Tanya says it rained all day on Beltane, and she walked two miles in it to get river water for her altar.

LADY PHOENIX (DALLAS) concerned about lack of response from some people. It costs money to send out literature, etc. If you were only interested in joining Nexus for the Stone problem, please let her know. At the time of her letter to us, she had recieved only $7. in contributions but had spent several hundred. If you can't contribute, it would help if you would at least send her an SASE.

Sorry I'm so far behind on answering some of the mail. Unless a reply is necessary immediately, I seldom answer mail unless my sexatary is here. She has been so busy with her own coven that she hasn't been here in several weeks. BUT..she will be here for 5 days starting the day this goes in the mail, so we should be able to get caught up on all those overdue letters.

MORE STUFF AND THINGS

Well, it says page 30 but it's really the 32 nd because of the mixup I mentioned earlier. The rest of the newsletter is all printed up and ready to put together. Saved this last page for the FULL MOON. That was last night. Shirley & Merle were scheduled to conduct the ritual, but due to the illness of Shirley's father, they thought they should be at the hospital. So, when they arrived for the ritual, the duties were turned over to Marilyn and Les, and it went beautifully. It was Marilyn's first time to do the ritual but no one would have guessed it.

When I first read THE SEA PRIESSTESS, I was upset to read that the priesstess had a robe of Samoyed hair. I thought it meant the dog's skin, but Merle said it didn't mean that. So now I've been reading about it. Wool, brushed from the Samoyed coat is made into blankets, rugs, woven or knitted suits, coats, etc. It can be dyed, washed and even boiled.

So now when I brush Pooka and Sirius each day, I'm saving Pooka's hair. Next problem is: when I get enough of it, how do I find someone who knows how to work with it?

And now that the newsletter is finished, I'll have to concentrate on finding something nice for Manon's birthday (July 3..she almost came in with a bang) but I'll never find anything as wonderful as the gift she gave me..Pooka.

Hope to see lots of you at the mountain meeting.

That's all, folks.

Love and Blessed Be.

BEING A WITCH AT THE MOUNTAIN MEET IS.....

Just as you're trying to go to sleep, remembering that you forgot to bring the air mattress for your sleeping bag, and wondering why you picked a spot with a rock.

(if you're a gal) wonderin' what was in that "old inner tube" you drank.

VARIOUS GOODIES from Armeeta in Pittsburgh

After my-lady has her massage (prior to that she gets a steam bath), then after the massage work-out, the ritual of beauty is finished off with large comfrey leaves left on entire body for several minutes to $\frac{1}{2}$ hour, or until the comfrey leaves start to wilt after the body absorbs the health-giving qualities.

For those who wish to dream, or have difficulty dreaming or remembering the dream, try placing a glass of water near your head near the bed.

Can any of your readers suggest names & addresses of semi-precious stone dealers and/or rock hounds that can supply? Reasonably, I hope. Am searching for a genuine cut ruby and some turquoise to have a necklace made.

I have a couple pieces of spider-web turquoise. I let them sit in water in an apothecary jar, and drink it in the morning. (2 or 3 oz. covered jar) Let the sun shine through to extract more of the properties. Can sit for several days. It's good for the eyesight. The American Indians, Arabians, and Egyptians knew of the therapeutic properties of the gemstone, and used them in jewelry and also on the harnesses of their horses.

Bloodstone, too, is good for healing. I have a rough piece in water in an apothecary jar, too, and as the sun's rays shine through, the essence of iron goes into the water, and therefore is helping to make riched blood. The bloodstone long ago was used in making the Circle.

Red coral was used for a necklace for little children to keep away the evil eye.

Back to the Herb Pillow mentioned in the June issue, and a little more detail. For the material in making the pillows, use a fairly thin (but not too thin) material so essence can get through, such as a wash & wear cotton. If you use one of a delicate or a small design, it will make it look prettier, but the choice is yours. However, it is not advisable to use a heavy material such as velvet, brocade, denim or duck, as you wouldn't get the full benefit of the fragrance as it would more or less be trapped within. And don't use a lacy type or coarsely woven as some of the herbs could come through. Some people add some fragrant seeds. You can, however, experiment. As you know, the herb pillow is used as a tranquilizer near your head when you go to bed.

I'd like to comment on one of your reader's asking about how and why you turned to the Pagan religion. Wouldn't it be nice to have a regular column on it getting various views of your readers? Not only would they like to tell but I'm sure all of us would like to read about their experiences, and in a way it would make for a stronger bond. (At least that's my opinion) Then too, there are so many questions some of us have, and if you had a column on such questions and answers, I think you'd get more response as the Crafters are such beautiful people. They love to give and share and are so helpful and considerate.

ED. NOTE: Okay about the reasons from readers if they don't make it too long. Can't run pages and pages. About the questions and answers: that's why I started the "Helpful Hints For Beginners" column. Questions that I'd get in the mail or from local people.

FROM KERMIT in San Diego

In your July issue, one of your notes was a request to hear a rebuttle on the Jerry Falwell "Moral Majority".

Let me be the first to raise an opposing, yet not vengeful hand against that type of thing.

My name is Kermit, not the frog of course, but a Crafter with Celtic influence. My name means free, free from eight years of torment. Eight years of my life were spent in the "Born Again" or Gospel "Groupie" prison. I know how a lot of these people think.

What we deal with, when we deal with these people, is either the ignorant who don't want to find out, the insecure who would kill if they had to for the sake of their security blanket, or the abuser who uses his religion for his gain. Sometimes, of course, we find a combination of two, or all three.

All Christians have or potentially may suffer from what I call "The Jehovah Syndrome". Once a mountain God, turned War Lord. Moses sure picked a good one! His influence is seen in their aggressiveness, intolerance, destructive views, and totally dominant ways of life.

It is because of this that WE suffer. The Lady did not let this Bastard destroy Her people at the burnings, but a lot fell. Damn them! Who gives them the right? Only the Lord of Death can be allowed the privilege, and at His time!

The question is, what shall we do? Especially with this new emergence of persecution? Most Crafters I've talked to believe in Karma. Their statement is: Well, it all comes out in the wash, and better them than me. That is not good enough, my friend. We waited around the last time and were almost annihilated. Karma took longer than we thought. How can we sit and let the world be plunged into violence and ignorance again?

The price of the people's lives which were spent in ignorance because you did not give them a true light, is much higher than your own! You may be karmically indebted because you did not try to prevent such a catastrophe. Because you did not try to help them, at least understand life, the Earth Mother (Who is once again avenging Herself), and harmony, it is you who will suffer.

By teaching, self defense, a stand, or one of these combinations, you can prevent much debt.

In closing, let me point out some of the things going on now because of Groupie activity. In starving nations, our beloved ministers are sending food with money which they need to clear their imaginary consciences. These poor, starving people are not allowed to have any food unless they say a "Bible Verse".

Right here in San Diego, a group called "Killers for Christ" bombed a bookstore because it was not Christian, and of course, the abode of their devil.

When we had our Beltane Pagan Festival, The Lady and Lord interceded and allowed a group of Goodie 2 Shoes with baseball bats to be caught by police before they could attack us.

Please do not take me for a trouble maker. I just want the children of the Beloved Gods to see what they can prevent by methods of self defense. If they want an eye for an eye, and push for it, give it to them, invoke your warrior

Gods, but try to make it a lesson for them. For those who think you would be labeled "just as bad as they", remember, the debt of the defender is little or nothing to that of the attacker.

Let us rise up as one voice. Let the Goddess and God be hailed upon the mountains, and their greatness felt in our hearts once more. May the Gods arise and never be defeated among men. May their people bless humankind again.

Let teaching be thy self defense before war.

Kermit

* * *

ED. NOTE: Kermit, I'm not certain we understand one another. You seem to say that we should use a combination of teaching and violence. That's how the Xians got power... "accept our teachings or die!"

My suggestion was that perhaps we should form a political group to solve the problem peacefully.

As to teaching: some of us do work at that through newspaper, radio, and Tv interviews. And it does get through to a few. However, it is most unfortunate that much of the good is undone by the stupid public remarks and behavior of a few who will do or say anything just to get attention.

As to self defense: certainly we should defend ourselves whenever necessary and in whatever way we can, but let's not look for trouble. "An eye for an eye"? That's the Xian game... let them play it. We have more important things to do.

HELPFUL HINT FOR BEGINNERS

I think it is accepted in most branches of the Craft that women wear silver, and men wear gold. Of course this applies primarily to Craft jewelry, etc. Now, at times now females to the Craft have tried to suggest that this is sexist because gold is more expensive and therefore that is why the men get gold. Don't fall into silly traps like that. The monetary value has nothing to do with it. These metals were picked because of their color resemblance to the Goddess and God symbols: the Moon appears silver, the Sun appears gold.

If the price of silver and gold continue to climb, we may soon all be wearing aluminum...if we can afford that!

FROM ARMEETA in Pittsburgh

A local book dealer got me "When God Was A Woman", and Elizabeth Pepper's "Mystical Sites" which I loved. It should be MUST reading for anyone travelling the occult path. Beautiful and informative book, almost like being there. If she can write that well and interestingly, why should she care about the Witches' Almanac?

About the MESMERIST by Felice Picano $2.25 July 1978
It is about a man who mentally controls through silent hypnosis people and events, even the town's wealthiest young widow and the town fathers. It is worth reading. He finally gets his comeuppance. It deals with how he got started and how he operated. People should be aware of this sort of thing so they can be alerted to mental control.

Magick does not replace material effort. It augments your physical efforts and gives them success.

The faith waiting in the heart of a seed promises a miracle of life which it cannot prove.

COVENS ONE

Covens One is an association of 3 temples that have long worked together. The Calumet Pagan Temple, The Woods Park Pagan Temple, and the First Temple of the Craft of Wicca of Chicago Heights share a common stem. They are all members of the Midwest Pagan Council and have worked on the Pan Pagan Festivals each year. Our main purpose will be to hold warm weather (say from Beltane to the Fall Equinox) festivals outdoors where as many as wish can join us. For festivals falling on weekends, we will try to have a 2 or 3 day campout. Our first effort will be Summer Solstice 1980.

The next weekend campout of Covens One will be the Fall Equinox. Again, Lake Holiday will be the site. Although the Equinox is officially September 22, we will be doing it on September 19-21. Cost will be under $10. for camping, probably will include a meal, so if you can't make the Pan Pagan (or even if you can) consider this one.

ED. NOTE: They were also planning a festival for August 1 but no use going into that because this won't get into the mail until then.

We realize there are lots of solitaires out there who might like to celebrate the festivals with a group. We usually have between 40 & 60 people at our festivals. Anyone planning on being in the northwest Indiana or south suburban Chicago area at the time of the festivals is welcome. Contact any Covens One member for details.

June 20, 21, 22 Lake Holiday Campgrounds De Motte, Indiana

Special thanks to Russ & Dottie, who worked as hard as any in attendance to make this a success, and shared our sorrow as well as our joy.

The Solstice was a success, 52 registrants enjoyed 3 days of beautiful weather sandwiched between Thursday and Monday of cold, rain and wind.

Friday, people arrived all day. Many partied and got to know each other.

Saturday morning discussions were led by Marlene of Cleveland, Cyprian of Nashville, and Walter of Ontario.

A tragedy marred the day. Little Misty was missing, and indications were the lady of the lake had taken her. Once the situation was in the hands of professionals, a number of Circles formed to visualize her safe reappearance, and the schedule was resumed.

Richard & Janel were handfasted, and a bridal party got underway. A delicious Witches' stew followed. It was a true community effort for everyone there added something.

After dinner, a solemn group gathered. A soul release was led by Cyprian for Misty, for by now her body had been found in the lake. The ritual allowed her spirit to continue on.

The highlight of the festival was the Saturday night ritual. Parry of New Jersey invoked East, Cyprian did South, Bill of Port Washington did West and Walter invoked North. There was much dancing around a huge bonfire, and the party ty Sundayes dawn, repeat of two of the workshops at the request of people who heard about them. Several small groups chatted and at 2 P.M. a closing ritual bid Summer Solstice '80 adieu.

Ah well, it's worth the effort. I always look forward to the newsletter, and being a former editor/publisher, I certainly appreciate your work despite the tiny handful of nit-pickers, nay-sayers and fault finders.

I ran across this bit of herbal lore the other day, and thought I should share it with other readers. My mother (she's seen 88 winters!) tells me a tea made from watermelon seeds is excellent for treatment of cystitis and similar bladder and kidney disorders.

Pat, I think my sister can help you find someone who spins and weaves that beautiful Samoyed hair. She has two of these lovely dogs, is quite interested in the breed, and I believe she has a publication that lists people who do this kind of work. Write...

PAN PAGAN FESTIVAL

At a special emergency meeting held in Chicago, representatives of the covers and groups that comprise the Midwest Pagan Council voted to move this year's Pan Pagan Festival to a bigger site rather than limit attendance to 500 people which would have been necessary if the Baraboo, Wisconsin site was to be kept as the Festival location.

The new site for Pan Pagan Festival 1980 is the same campground where the Festival has been held for the last two years, the Lake Holiday campground, located in the Northwest corner of Indiana, near Demotte.

All those who have already registered will have the chance to request prior to the Festival a full refund of their registration monies should the Lake Holiday site not prove workable for them for any reason.

All those who haven't yet registered, but plan to attend, are strongly urged to register as soon as possible. $15. adult; $7.50 child 5-12; free child under 5. Send registrations to Murray Winters, 22905 Miller Road, Chicago Heights, Il. 60411.

Had a very nice, long letter from Lady Rhea in Georgia, and a long tape-letter from Penny in Florida. Penny got to visit for 5 days, got her 2nd and is very happy about that. Our thanks to Rhea for arranging this. She really is a lovely person.

Rhea took off for a visit with her parents the day Penny left. They met in the mountains in Tenn. and Rhea says it was very nice. She says it has been very hot in Georgia.

Rhea says some people in her area are trying to get together 38 people on one bus for the trip to Pan Pagan. If they try burning candles and incense on the bus...I wonder how many will survive.

BEING A WITCH IS.... from Rus (Arcane Crafts)

...Discovering that Pat sent you the wrong tape when you hear canned laughter instead of the pre-initiation lesson.

BEING A STUDENT WITCH IS.... from Lady Allusha (Pismo-S.L.O. area)

...the panic during initiation when you feel the point of the coven sword.

...not wanting to return from your first astral vacation.

FROM BLACKSUN...Elvenhearth in Washington

This piece is also sometimes included in the first level initiation; it is a must when we initiate a couple or a mate to a Witch. I've called it by its purpose.

THE LAST WARNING

The Goddess wishes Her children well,
She bids you be joyful in your spells,
But She is Queen of both Heaven and Hell,
And now it is time for why to tell.

When magick you work as a part of your life,
The results may be bitter and lead to strife.
A strain upon the husband and wife,
Or Priest and Priestess; chaos be rife.

It need not be, this Hell on Earth,
Magick can be a road to re-birth.
Practice your Craft with a measure of mirth
And true love you will know and what it be worth.

"Be true to yourself" be the saying of ages
And surely this be the good advice of sages.
It be the most important given to mages
For Truth and Love are their only wages.

Break your blades and let them rust;
Destroy your books, turn them to dust,
Lest you enter this Circle without Perfect Trust,
And Perfect Love be also a must!

FROM UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Something strange is walking around a remote area of the Ocala National Forest in Florida. Nobody is sure just what...though most people figure it's an elaborate joke. Authorities found some tracks that look a bit like size-18 footprints. If it isn't a hoax...the prints indicate that the creature would be about 12 feet tall and weigh close to one-thousand pounds. Some informal speculation centers on the infamous "Skunk Ape"...Florida's own version of the Abominable Snowman. The last reported sighting of a Skunk Ape was in the Everglades.

PAGAN COMMUNITIES : from Rik in Tucson

A few months ago, last year really, I gave a lecture at the U. of Az. on Witchcraft. One of the people who contacted me was a member of one of the live-in religions in town. You know the kind; you convert and move in to their house in love and fellowship and have a good old time until you decide it isn't for you. Well, this person, who we will call Bob, wanted to join a coven (at the time he was still living with his former religion). I told him that it wasn't that easy, that we don't take people off the street, that you had to study for a long time to decide if the Craft was meant for you and if you are meant for the Craft. I gave him a book list and my address for him to ask questions, and wandered off with the feeling that here was a person who was searching for himself, and didn't know it. He went from religion to religion looking for something without realizing that it was himself. Remember the charge: if you can't find it within, your searching will avail you nought. Needless to say, he never called.

While visiting the Lady Arwen, she gave me a letter from Tucson, saying that since I was close by, maybe I could help this person. Yup, from Bob looking for a Pagan community with which to learn, share, and grow closer to the Gods. Well, I thought about this for awhile and remembered that he had lived in a number of commune-type religions, and realised that he was searching for another commune-type religion. Well, I seemed to realise that Pagan communities tend to fall apart. Christian communities tend to fall apart as well. Is there a connection? The Amish live in a successful religious community, but they do so by denying the outside world. The Amish would be happy if the world would vanish, leaving them in their eighteenth century existence. Give the Amish modern technology such as electricity, decent hospitals, refrigeration, etc. and their culture would die. It lives by saying that the world is evil, and only by separating yourself from it (under the will of God) can we survive. This seems to be the way of most communities. You develop an internal binding (religion), and in order to keep the community together, you deny the outside world (the enemy). Remember Jonestown? Children of God? Manson family? Quakers in early America?

I don't know about you, but I was taught that we are part of the world, and to run away from a problem is to allow it to run rampant. I guess my point is that I'm opposed to these communities that only allow one group to live in them, that offer an escape from the world. We must remember that the Craft is a nature religion, but that anything that exists in nature with some regularity, is natural. And that includes cities, cars, and even having a Christian for a neighbor. Belong to covens, yes. Follow the Craft, without a doubt. Tell the truth, of course. But let's not get this 'chosen people' idea that leads to paranoia and Jonetown type communes. One of the Craft laws is self-responsibilities. We cannot become responsible for ourselves if we live a sheltered life apart from the world, seaparate from new ideas, away from different people. If we do succeed in this separation, we cease to be Witches, people, and become robots believing whatever Big Brother decides to tell us.

So, Bob, I'm sorry, even if I knew of a Pagan community where you could learn, share, and grow closer to the Gods, I wouldn't tell you of it for it would stifle your growth, and like all of us, you need to grow.

HERBS OF NEPTUNE by JAMES EXCELL (Colorado)

Neptune is the planet of the mystic, the same ecstatic energy represented by Venus transmuted to a level of psychic and imaginative power that nurtures the sources of creativity and perception through experience of illusion, fantasy and occult intuition. Neptune is the dreamer; an aspect perhaps represented by the image of the sleeping Vishnu dreaming the dream of infinite creation.

The herbs attributed to Neptune are the patron plants of dreamweavers. Their principal, significant effects are psychotropic and psychotomimetic, opening up recesses of higher and lower levels of consciousness not normally accessible to the waking mind, revealing (or at least indicating) that most occult of all entities - the hidden self.

A study of Neptunian herbs sheds light on the hidden aspects of at least two quite common herbs, revealing several interesting idiosyncrocies. An infusion of dried orange blossoms, for example, produce a stimulating effect on the nervous system. The oil distilled from the blossoms, however, upon vapourization and inhalation enables the inhaler to achieve a state described in the texts as 'hypnotic'. All in all, it sounds like an interesting medium for attempting trance work.

While the white willow, with its salicycyn content, is well known for its analgesic properties, a decoction of the bark also acts as a nervous system tonic and stimulant. On the other hand, the black willow is equally renowned for its anti-aphrodisiacal properties and has often been used as a sexual sedative. It is, perhaps, by stilling this function and allowing the energy instead to focus on another level (Neptune being the higher octave of Venus) that the willow derives its assignation to Neptune.

Cannabis, of course, is the plant of paradoxes. It is quite versatile in its medical application, and in its action on the brain and nervous system alone has been classed as a euphorigenic, depressant, sedative, stimulating tonic, anti-epileptic, antispasmodic, antiasthmatic, antidepressant, analgesic, psychotropic, psychotomimetic, hypnagogue and hallucinogen. Truly, its function seems to change to suit individual circumstances. It seems all at once to enhance and cloud perception; to expand the imaginative faculties and diminish their coherence and retentive ability. Reality is perceived as being elusive, amorphous, shifting and illusory. Cannabis' calmative effects also lend a more introspective flavour to the thought process, seeking to delve below the surface of the superficial consciousness. Cannabis may be the quintessential plant of the dreamer ("why do you think they call it dope?")

Once the nausea and vomiting have passed, peyote presents a universe of perception that is so like lucid dreaming that the two may easily be taken for one and the same. It is a reality that is vibrant with colour and life where the sentient perception of each plant, animal, and element is made unquestionably manifest. It does tend to make one susceptible to elementals who are strongest on their own territory, but a combination of cannabis and peyote often seems to restore balance (especially through laughter) and retain a relatively well-defined individual perspective.

The physical appearance of the four herbs of Neptune seem to suggest the ephemeral qualities of dreaming. Willow, orange blossoms, and cannabis all have shape-shifting appearances, especially in the wind. A desert floor filled with peyote cactii creates a surreal effect; like a dreamscape that could as easily occur on Neptune as the Earth.

FROM CYPRIAN in Nashville

Hmmm. A correction is needed in the Neophyte Ritual you were good enough to publish in the June Newsletter. I don't know whether I dropped the line or you did...no sweat either way but here's the way it should have read on page 8:

HPS: "I call upon ye Sylphs and Powers of the Air! I bring before you (name).

NEO: (claps hands three times) "I am (name), remember me!"

The Neophyte is now censured with the coven incense, etc. etc.

Anyway, the idea of a Neophyte Degree seems to be gaining increased acceptance but the question has come up as to just what rituals the Neophyte is admitted. Currently in our practice, the Neophyte may participate in all worship rituals (but may not see or take part in the Great Rite) and in the ritual for induction of another Neophyte. The Neophyte does not take part in or witness any working ritual. (Note the separation here between worship and working rituals.)

ED. NOTE: Sounds much the same as we do here except that we use no Neo ritual. Before first degree we call it Pagan Way. They are allowed to attend Sabbats and Full Moon, but not the regular coven meetings or rituals. We also have Sabbat rituals and other rituals for the Pagans. Since the Pagan Way rituals in the published book, and the ones in The Tree are so simple, we used some things from each in addition to other material to give them longer and more complicated rituals to do. So the Pagans here have their own rituals for each of the ten festivals we celebrate here but are then allowed to join in for the Craft ritual as well. Then they have other simple rituals for some of their meetings. This helps them to get familiar with the Circle, the tools, etc.

FROM ELLEN of THE RUNES Box 9513, N. Hollywood, Ca. 91609

Let's see...might as well throw my two cents worth in regarding Southern Hemisphere Craft. Our seasonal rituals are just that, seasonal. Our celebrations of the seasons is one way in which we strive for attunement with Nature. In my tradition at least, it is explained thusly: Although many of us these days are not actively involved in agriculture, the seasons (at least the quarterly ones) and their agricultural meanings can be matched by spiritual work. In Spring, the time of planting, we plant those seeds within we wish to nurture and develop during the year. At Summer, we stop a moment in our labors and rest, checking to see how our "crops" are doing, and what needs to be done. Autumn, the time of Harvest...we receive the results of our labors, both actually and spiritually, for this is "Karma time", when the Scales are balanced, and those lessons we need to learn are made obvious. Winter--time for clearing of the fields of rocks, pruning trees, allowing fields to rest and gather strength. This is the time for clearing our spiritual fields, ridding ourselves of those things (qualities, faults, etc.) which stand in the way of our growth.

All this does have a point. In my opinion, it is the season which is important, not the date. For those in the Southern Hemisphere, the end of September would be the beginning of the agricultural year. Trees would be becoming green, sprouts showing in the earth. The people would have that lovely Spring feeling of freshness and beginnings. If they are to feel one with the universe and their special part of it, of course they should celebrate Spring at that time. To celebrate the harvest while you are planting things would be extremely confusing, and not at all conducive to developing that unity we strive for.

We of the Craft accept the fact that both night and day, dark and light are parts of the whole, and necessary. Many of us have accepted that there are different paths toward the same goal, both within the Craft and without. While tradition carried forward from the ancients is the foundation of our beliefs, we are growing and changing with the times. Isn't it about time that we accepted the fact that the planet Earth is a sphere, and not a dome? The Earth has, not only an Eastern and a Western hemisphere (which is apparently a little hard for some of our British friends to accept) but a Northern and a Southern. As we city Witches are adjusting to becoming one with nature in a world of concrete and brick, so our brothers and sisters down under will have to make their own adjustments. I think they should do what "feels" right. Working with the seasons as they are happening makes more sense to me than being locked into a rigid (and possibly stagnant) system of dates.

As for which would be seasonal...that, too is up to them, but I personally think I'd have a heck of a time switching after all my training.

"A Book Of Psychic Experiments" by William Jon Watkins. Tells some background and various experiments you can perform for psychic healing, meditation, chakras, biorhythms, ESP and a lot more. Each experiment can be done with things that are commonly available or can be made.

I know this subject is getting old, but I figure it's time to get my 2 cents worth on the subject of nuclear power. Most of the opinions I've heard recently have kinda disturbed me. I feel that instead of wasting our time picketing and boycotting (seems they never accomplish anything) the use of nuclear power, that we use our energies instead to make them safer. Wouldn't we really be helping Mother Earth? If we keep raping the land for wood, coal and other natural resources (which we will run out of eventually) aren't we slowly killing Her? Are future generations going to have to go to a museum or sanctuary to see trees, animals, or other things which we take for granted now. If so, it will be because of our short-sightedness. Is it not better to put all of our energies on working on a way for a safe form of energy or do we go to war over oil? Well, enough of my nuclear power opinions. Needed to speak my mind.

Ed. Note: I think you have the right idea. Too often people copy some of the politicians: they complain about what is being done but have no other solution. I believe there is enough coal and oil for some years but we will in time run out. We are not too likely to run out of wood. There was a time when lumber companies just stripped the forests. Today they replace with new young trees. If you want more info on these things, there are many booklets, etc. available on just about any subject you can imagine, and they cost very little. Write to the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. Tell them what you want to know about, and they'll tell you what is available and the cost.

From MARSHA (Chicago area)

I want to thank you for the New Orleans contact. Her letter arrived after I had left home, but Les gave me her phone number. Unfortunately, I never was able to reach her.

My trip was super although I worked hard at our convention. Pete Fountain and Al Hirt did a concert for us that was outstanding (if you like jazz, that is)!! And the food there is fantastic. I must have gained at least 5 pounds. Saw an interesting staff with a carved horned head, but the store wasn't open. That was the only remotely occult thing I saw other than the usual souvenir voodoo stuff.

Lucky Marsha! I love the music of Pete Fountain and Al Hirt. However, there is a very old album of Fountain that I don't care for.

Sorry we couldn't get the contact soon enough for you. You know how slow the mail can be.

WORDS OF WISDOM FROM one of W.C. Pasture's ladies...

Women belong in the house... and the senate... and....

FROM ARIEETA in Pittsburgh

To replace female hormones lost during menopause or after a hysterectomy, any of the following can be used as a tea: Elder, Licorice, Sarsaparilla, Univorn Root. Licorice is terribly sweet, and only a tiny bit should be used, (not by itself) but added to other tea as a sweetener and at the same time helps the body to replenish hormones.

Rosemary is good for brain fatigue, headaches. Lavender is also good for headaches. Nettle, Chickweed, Cleavers are good for reducing in that they help to eliminate water out of the system.

Muscular weakness indicates lack of potassium.

Warts are caused by lack of vitamin A.

Iodine restores natural hair color. White iodine rubbed on the scalp grows hair where it is thinning, and it helps thicken hair. Also good is: 1 egg yolk beaten and juice of one Spanish onion, plus cod liver oil...as much as the two together. Blend all together for 5 minutes, add fragrance. Wash head in warm water, and massage into scalp at night.

Another for the hair and scalp:

1 handful of nettle seeds, 2 handfuls of heather seeds.

Soak in 2 parts cold water and bring slowly to a boil. Boil a few minutes, strain and squeeze. Add a little acetic acid (vinegar) about 3 drops. Rub into scalp after it is washed.

A good rinse for darker hair is SAGE TEA. When making the infusion, use hot potato peeling water, and pour over sage or let it simmer a bit. When boiling the peelings, use as little water as possible, and it will be richer in potassium and other minerals.

Use Chamomile infusion for rinse for blond hair.

Did you know that chlorine in your public drinking water robs the body of potassium? Therefore, there's a greater need to supply the system with potassium. Rich foods, like raw green leafy vegetables (the darker the better) raw, rather than cooked. Helps to elasticize tissues and to make muscles firmer and supple. Potassium rich foods: potato skins, dandelions, dill, sage, cress, dried onions, parsley, peaches, figs, cabbages, almonds, gooseberries, bananas, raspberries and raspberry leaf tea.

Just the other day, I read of a certain primitive culture wherein the wife would break her husband's or lover's leg (one) to make him better sexually. Wonder how some guys would feel about that...whether to have two good legs to navigate or to be a good bedroom athlete.

In some Japanese Health Spas, the health seeking individuals are immersed up to their necks in pineapply sawdust in a pit in the ground, large enough to accommodate a person. This creates enzymatic action within the person. Pineapple, too, is good to eat for the same purpose and acts like papain for better digestion and assimilation, and in general activates the glandular system.

Did you know that the great conqueror Genghis Khan always wore in a locket, burnt powdered iron to protect him from evil?

FROM MARLENE in Odessa, Texas

Just a few lines to say hello. We really enjoyed the newsletter (as usual). The poems in this issue were exceptionally good, especially "Mom and Me".

The "story" from Rik touched my heart. It was a beautiful and moving experience. All such decisions should be so beautiful. May our Gods bless him and his wife. She seems to be one of the rare Xians who are true to themselves. He is very lucky to be blessed with her.

The newsletter from Austin is just great! Loretta is doing a terrific job there. She has been a blessing to us. We get so lonely. We would love to hear from any who would like to write. (You may print our address).

We are expecting a Witchling in Jan.-Feb. and are looking for a special/magical name. Any suggestions would be appreciated. I have had a vision of him already. In my vision he was about 2-3 years old. So any boy names would help.

What happened to the crossword puzzles? They were really fun and enlightening.

Good luck on land hunting. The more temples, holy places, etc. we can get established, the closer we can get to making the mass population realize we are not a wierd cult, but a true religion. May Our Lady guide your steps.

Blessed Be.

Marlene

Ed. Note: We hope the lovely lady who prepares the crossword puzzles will get back to them as soon as she is not so very busy.

THIS FROM WISCONSIN

Your editorial note about forming a Pagan Political Organization sounds to me like an excellent idea and has my full support. You wouldn't believe the amount of BS the Xians around here are spreading about Witches in particular and Paganism in general, being the so-called "Illuminatus Conspiracy". The garbage they keep coming up with is a combination of Satanism and Ritual Black Magick, mixed with Communism and Facism...claiming that Witches & Pagans are trying to take over the country. Not only that, but they also attack the Rosicrucians & Masonic Order as being part of the conspiracy, claiming that they practice human sacrifice, and that their rituals are identical to Wicca rituals.

Well, I personally happen to know that that's a bunch of Hookey Poppycock! I've been a member of the Rosicrucian Order since 1976. My grandfather happens to be a 33rd degree Mason, and the family has always had very strong Masonic ties. Therefore, I can state quite unequivocally that they do not do these things and their rituals are not alike in form. These same people are also against ERA, are anti-abortion, anti birth control & planned parenthood and sex education in public schools!

It seems to me that we in America are taking one mighty big step backward into the Dark Ages & the terror of the ever present stake! Let us remember that they burned many of their own people as well as our forbears during the "burning time!" I say, "Let's stand up for our Rights before it is too late!"

I also applaud your comments on the nuclear issue, Pat. People are always so hysterical about anything that is the least bit new or unusual. Well how in hell are we going to discover what to do with nuclear waste without the process of trial and error? It happens to be the only way that anything good or bad is discovered. Penicillin was discovered by accident. Pasteur's time thought he was insane. People in the future will probably look back and laugh and say, "All that fuss about good clean nuclear energy!" And anybody's who is afraid of a nuclear plant blowing up, obviously doesn't know very much about physics.

Of course, nuclear weaponry is another matter altogether. I do feel that the "Bomb" should be banned worldwide, for if there is another major war (the Goddess forbid!) and these weapons are used...well, I don't think we'd need to worry about who won the war since there wouldn't be enough people alive to bury the dead.

Nuclear energy, like magick, like electricity or anything else, can be used for good or evil. Let's use it for the good it can do.

BEING A WITCH'S NEIGHBOR IS..... from H.T.N.

...peering over his fence to see what all these naked people with knives are up to!

FROM DOB in San Francisco

I appreciated your mention of Jerry Falwell in the July newsletter very much. For a long time now I've been receiving mail from Mr. Falwell's "Old Time Gospel Hour" and "The Moral Majority". I don't know how it started, but it certainly wasn't through my request.

From what I can see, no sooner does one get on one mailing list, they end up on another. Interesting.

As human beings living in the U.S., Born Agains have a right to do their thing. But when they start trying to force feed it on the entire nation, it's against the very grain of what the U.S. is all about. It seems that every nation that exists in the world devoted to one specific religious philosophy had had its problems. Iran is a classic example. It all boils down to "If you don't have the same religious convictions as I, you have to be exterminated."

While Xians like to throw Charles Manson up to the Craft world, they tend to forget Jim Jones purported to be a Christian.

The Craft has come a long way since the days of persecution. Perhaps as it further evolves it will become more protective and outspoken.

Pagans should get involved, either by forming our own organizations or at least joining those groups already established that we agree with philosophically and politically. It certainly wouldn't hurt to be concerned.

In closing..Jennie in Gainesville, Florida might try getting "What Witches Do" through the following source: H. Hamilton, Box 2516, Dillon, Col. 80435. Their new catalog just came out and the book is listed. Perhaps they have some copies left. She could write first to check availability. It is listed at $7.50 so it must be the hardback.

ED. NOTE: You're certainly right about those mailing lists. Some years ago I gave a small check to some charity which was obviously run by the Catholics. Nearly every mail for the next several years contained letters from some charity asking for money. These came not only from the U.S. but from as far away as Africa. And that was only from that one religion. Did you know that there are companies whose business is buying and selling mailing lists of all kinds? That's how we all get so much junk mail.

THE HIGH PRIESTESS by Shadowhawk of Elvenhearth in Washington

VERVAINE (and other ramblings)

Vervaine is an herb of many wonders. I started last month by telling you about Mistletoe, and its ritual use. To follow the cycle we come to the first quarter, its herb is vervaine. It is burned in the censor before the main work is to be done, after the Circle has been cast. This herb is sacred to Diana, the Huntress, and is counted among the sacred Druid herbs. You can cast a Circle with it by just sprinkling it about. It serves to contain energies. I put a ring of dried vervaine around the base of my candlesticks, and I use vervaine oil for anointments, and coping of altar instruments.

TO BIND AN ANIMAL TO YOU (better plan to have it for a long time as this spell cannot be broken)

On Dark/New Moon, clip a few hairs from the base of the animals tail, and one of your own hairs. Put these aside in a safe place until Diana's Dow (3rd day after New Moon). On the Day of the Huntress, take some rosemary and burn it on a charcoal. Catch the animal, and get some of the smoke on its fur, and/or get it to breathe a LITTLE of the fumes. Now, invoke Diana, huntress and protector of all animals, and ask her aide in binding your animal to you, and ask her blessing on the pet. Then burn some more rosemary, and take the hairs and a bit of vervain; bind them together with grey or silver or white thread, and burn them on the charcoal.

You can let the animal out of the room now. Thank and Dismiss the Goddess, and burn a white candle coped with oil as an offering. Then break your Circle as you see fit.

ROSEMARY is a binding/ fixative type herb. That is why it was used in love and fidelity spells. So also is SKULLCAP. In fact, if you wish your loved one to remain faithful to you, feed them Skullcap tea with wildflower honey.

COPE is to coat with oil in a ritual manner. Mentally divide the candle in half. Then take seven strokes on the upper half (up) with oil and seven on the lower (down). Then make a pentagram on the bottom to seal it. For offerings, cope only upward for 9 or 13 strokes, and don't forget to seal the bottom.

PLEASE NOTE: Once this spell has been done, that animal is yours for all its natural life, and maybe beyond. BE SURE you are going to keep it. If you give it away, it will try to get back to you (runaway) and maybe die in the process. If it cannot get out to try to find you, it will not eat, will sicken and die. I recommend this rite be reserved for familiars for these reasons.

By the way - you can use this same rite on a small child with only a slight variation: use a rosebud pink thread and the Full Moon. The invocation is to the Mother. This is a good thing to do if you travel a lot. Your son or daughter will never get LOST (this doesn't mean they won't leave) and will probably always have close ties and communication with you.

Brightest Blessings

CHILD OF THE UNIVERSE

by Lady Bethea and Mariah

Time: New Moon

Place on the altar: cotten white cloth, fresh natural milk, fresh egg, bowl of water large enough to hold egg and water, small gift that will fit inside of the egg, one white candle for your child, and one candle of your astro. sign color. Incense of your choice, or use Frankincense and myrrh.

Light both candles as you think of yourself and your child. Light the incense. Sit and become one with yourself and your child.

Hold the egg in your hand, and with your athame, tap the end of the egg open, then turn the egg over as you hold it over the chalice, tap the end open and blow the egg out into the milk that is in your chalice. Stir with your athame, and place it back on the altar.

Wash the inside of the egg with the water that is in the bowl. Dry the egg, and place inside the egg the small baby gift, also herbs, and a message to your child or the child's name.

Take your candle, and starting at the edge of the egg hole, let the candle wax drip to fill up the hole. Do both ends. Lay it on the cloth.

Take your chalice to the four quarters, and say, "My child, you are but a small piece of Stardust, and by knowing and holding you in my womb, I have held a Star".

Drink one sip of the milk and egg, and return to Mother Nature.

Take the egg to the East (AIR) and hold the egg in the palms of your hands as you raise it to the sky and present the gift to the East. Say, "O Great Mother of the Womb of the Universe, I (your name) am the bow, and my child is the arrow, and from me the living arrow is sent forth. Bless this child of the Universe with Peace of Mind and the Wisdom of when to Keep Silent and when to talk. For this is a child of the Universe".

Take the egg to the South (Fire) and hold the egg in the palms of your hands as you raise it to the sky and present the gift to the South. Say, O Lord of Light, send Courage with the ability To Dare with the light to go forward or to stand still. For this is the child of the Universe.

Take the egg to the West (Water) and hold the egg in the palms of your hands as you raise it to the sky and present the gift to the West. Say, "O Goddess of the flowing waters, with soothing music from the singing streams. Flow thru my child with cleansing waters to flow with cleansing healing energies. For this is a child of the Universe.

Take the egg to the North (Earth) and hold the egg in the palms of your hands as you raise it to the sky and present the gift to the North. Say, O Goddess and Great Mother of all Earth. Send to my child Wealth with the ability TO KNOW the difference between a stumbling-block or a stepping stone. For this is a child of the Universe."

Walk to the East to join the Circle. Now walk to the center of the Circle, and hold the egg in the hand you use the most. Open your arms and legs, and stand like a star. Feel the flow of the Earth coming up your bare feet, and feel the flow of the Moon coming into you through your hands. Wait until you feel the energy of both forces coming together around the child. Close your eyes and picture in your mind all the gifts and energies you have willed to your child. Take your time and receive a message from one of the Four Quarters. Remember the message. It will be better to sit on the Earth or lay down and stay a good amount of time.

Now open the Circle. Go to the East Quarter, walk to the North and thank the Goddess for attending and send Her away with love.

Walk to the West and thank the Goddess for attending and send Her away with love.

Walk to the South and thank the God for attending and send Him away with love.

Walk to the East and thank the Goddess for attending and send Her away with Love.

Walk to the center of the Circle and stomp your foot hard on the ground to break the flow of energy, or you will feel shaky afterward.

Then say, "Merry Part and Blessed Be".

Place the egg inside the white cotton cloth; then place it on your own altar or in a safe place until the Full Moon of the Child after it is born. Go outside in bare feet in the light of the Moon. Open the egg, and bury egg and cloth in the ground where you are standing. Stand on top of where you buried everything. Hold the gift in both hands to your heart, and picture the gifts you are giving to your child. Do not let anyone touch your gift until you give it to your child of the Universe.

Ways to change the rite for other purposes: If the child is born and is under One Year and One Day, you may also do it for the child. Also, another Crafter may do this rite for a non-Crafter, but you should let them know the gifts that you and the Gods are giving.

Merry Part and Blessed Be.

Lady Bethea and Mariah

GOLLUM'S COLLUM

Well here it is another month, and you wouldn't believe what a month it has been.

My human's daughter is going to have a little one in September. They gave her a Baby Shower? How can you give a baby a shower when it's still inside the mother?

Have you ever seen all the stuff they buy for a human baby??? I would rather be what I am, a handsome cat. We don't have to go through that stuff. Ain't we lucky?

Poisonous Plants

We cats are a curious lot; we like to chew on things, and plants are only one of them. The following are some common house plants that are dangerous to us cats:

- 1- Christmas Cherry - the berry is poisonous.
- 2- Dieffenbachia...also called Dumb Cane: The leaves can cause vomiting, diarrhea, swelling of the tongue, and even suffocation.
- 3- Dried Arrangements: the seed pods and beans of tropical plants may be highly toxic.
- 4- Ivy - the leaves can cause breathing and stomach illness.
- 5- Mistletoe - the berries are highly toxic and can cause vomiting, diarrhea, and convulsions.

The following outdoor plants can also be hazardous if chewed or swallowed.

Castor bean	Lobelia
Daphne	Monkshood
Foxglove	Nightshade
Horse chestnut	Poison hemlock
Jimson weed	Water hemlock
Larkspur	Yew
Laurels	Lily-of-the-valley

If you discover that your cat has dined on a houseplant, call your poison control center immediately, and get veterinary aid. If you don't know the name of the plant, take it along to the vet's office.

PREVENTION

Here are a few steps you can take to prevent poisoning from houseplants.

- 1- If your cat is kept strictly indoors, daily walks outside (on a harness) and being allowed to chew the grass may cure the houseplant gourmand.
- 2- If your cat cannot be walked, grow indoors some grasses that your cat may eat, such as wheat or oats. A bellyful of either of these may satisfy the "chewing of the green" urge.
- 3- Most cats love catnip - they eat fresh leaves and dried. You can grow your own.
- 4- If you catch your cat nibbling plants, spray the cat with your plant mister at the time of the "crime" to convince your cat to stay away.
- 5- Moth balls or Cayenne pepper in the soil may irritate your cat's "smeller". Cats don't like to be irritated and therefore may stop chewing the plants.
- 6- Of course, keeping hazardous plants out of reach is a very wise step and will usually work, unless your pet is determined to be "Supercat".

BAST - I hear that you are no longer with Manon, but now with the Coven of Trothland, and have a new name, too (Luna). I am sure you will be happy and the coven kitten. But how could you leave a foxie Lady like Manon?

J. L. WRIGHT - about your felines bringing bugs, mice, etc. Try telling them no thank you, that you appreciate it very much but your taste is different than theirs.

GODLIN & MR. ASMODEUS - Congratulations on the 5 beautiful new kittens. They are fun, aren't they?

BIBI - Yes, I recieved your letter and answered it in the last newsletter, but it is always good to hear from our friends in Australia.

SHADOWHAWK - So all the Kozmik Kittens are gone. Don't you miss them? We all did, it was so hard to say goodbye to them, even if they are in good homes. But I understand about having so many other fur persons around. We have 3 dogs and 2 other cats besides me.
Hello to Sunshine, Myrrydwynn, Purundia, and Kitty-face.

RUS * I recieved a nice letter from Rus, asking "me", Gollum, to do an article on Witches' Familiars for Witches Annual. The answer to that is a BIG YES. Morgan Le Fay, shame on you for treating Rus like that. You should be happy to have two new kittens to play with. You are still the Queen of the house, and as the Queen, you do not lacerate the arm of Rus; he is your friend. So welcome Sunchild & Auset.

Salutations to Sgt. Nahot (Nick) Fury, Daali and Spooky who have inherited Pan, Joe and Puck.
Greetings also to Princess who sends her "royal" meows & greetings from Michigan.

May the Bright Blessing of the Lady be with you always.
Gollum.

The shape of her beauty

It flows through my night

White hot tributaries

Converge on my mindscape

Voices this essence of fire and form,
She who emerges,

like shadows soft
take spectral walks

THE DRUID BY THE OAK

J. Mac Candleass

In the forest by the moor lives a Druid bent & aged
by years of care,
a weather beaten face
like the branches of the Sacred Oak which shelter him.

He winds his way through the forest gathering
the Golden Bough of Mistletoe
under the Soft Glow
of the Silver Orb,
Robed in the Garments of Gleaming
white.

What is the Mystery
the Druid so carefully guards
under the Oaken bough,
for our Lady Luna of the sky?
What is the Secret that he bears?

The Druid collects the Healing Moss
& the Herbs of Hidden Lore,
& wraps himself round
with Visions of what men cannot see,
Under the branches of the Sacred Oak.

What is the Vision of the Burning Inner light,
that keeps him dwelling
in this barren land?

According to Ruth L. Murray, in her book YOUR CHIHUAHUA, they originated in Mexico and are believed to be descendants of the Techichi, a dog of religious importance to the Aztecs. It is believed that the ancestors of the Mayas came from China sometime before 2000 B.C., and that they brought with them a small hairless dog which they mated with a small native dog. Only the wealthiest, high class Aztecs could own a Chihuahua, and many dogs had their own slaves who took very good care of them. When the Chihuahua died, his slave was killed and buried with him.

Wickian Pooka and Sirius are growing beautifully. Pooka is getting almost too heavy to lift...he sleeps where he wants...which is usually on the back porch where he can bark at every sound and everything that moves. Sirius also sleeps where he wants...only because I haven't told him where to sleep. He tries so hard to please me that I think he'd sleep standing on his head if I told him to do that. So, he usually sleeps beside my bed, or when it gets too hot, he goes to the yard. With lots of food, daily vitamins and brushing, and lots of love...I think I'm getting two spoiled children.

Now why don't you tell us about the dog who owns you???

From WYNDEL, HP of Torr Coven, High Lord of the Torr Wicca
Dover, N.J.

With regard to the article/letter by Mariah "War From The Inside", the sort of 'I'm right, you're wrong' disagreement has been going on since before I got interested in the Craft in the early '70's. It usually means that both parties are wrong to some extent. An open mind can make a space in its universe for a closed mind, but a closed mind cannot tolerate an open one without destroying its own universe.

I think perhaps what should be looked at with respect to any particular magical/religious practice is whether or not that particular practice fits in with the rest of the system; be it your practice or system, or someone else's.

A system of religious or magical practice must be coherent and consistent within its own structures, and to be usable by a group must fit within the belief structure of that group. Any practice which does not fit the structures of a group is not invalid; rather, it is merely irrelevant to that group, as it may well fit other belief structures.

Man, as a species, has the ability to reason. It doesn't matter whether the ability came from the "one true God", occurred through random chance, or through any other agency or process; the important thing is to use that ability and through use, apply it.

With regard to the withershins/deasil controversy mentioned by Mariah, the magical system of our groups' belief structure requires deasil movement at all times within the Circle, except for the purposes of destructive or negative magic as required for destroying a cancerous growth or tumor during healing work.

Movement directions within the Circle are tied to apparent solar movement (from a geostationary viewpoint), and moon phase (waxing/waning) to the type of magic being done. Because of this, the rotation of the earth on its axis, the direction of the moon's orbit around the earth, and the earth's orbital travel have little direct bearing upon our magical practices.

In this way we achieve consistency in at least one part of any magical ritual or practice we perform and reinforce the magical training of each individual in order to maximize the efficacy of our Work, either as individuals or on a coven level.

STUFF & THINGS

Shadowhawk of Elvenhearth says she and Grey Mouser are hoping to open a store. The store will also be called Elvenhearth, and they hope to locate on Capitol Hill in Seattle. Sounds good. They enclosed several of the talisman's mentioned elsewhere....Very Nice.

Janis (Saranac Lake, N.Y.) says she enjoys Armeeta's articles on herbs and Lady Fauna's Star Gazer. She says the weather has been beautiful there.

Catherine & Kent (The Wiccan in Australia) say they are now busy writing a couple of books. And they say they had a really nice write up in a National Sunday paper. And I say they should go to the doghouse because they sent part of the paper but not the part with their write up. Hopefully, they'll find a copy to send. Since they haven't done any interviews, their busy now playing Sherlock Holmes to find out who gave out the info for the article.

Bobbie in Pittsburgh says her psychic abilities are improving so much that her husband won't play cards with her anymore...she knows what cards he has. Hmmm. Have you thought of making a trip to Las Vegas, Boobie?

Tintagel will now be publishing Pentalpha Journal. If you need printing of any kind, you might contact them for prices. Tintagel Printing & Publishing, 1725 Blake St., Berkeley, Cal. 94703.

Rus (Arcane Crafts) sent a nice review of a book printed only in Russian. Since I doubt that most of you read Russian, I see little point in printing a review of a book you can't read even if you can find it. Rus, when you translate the book into English, we'll print the review.

Rhea (in Georgia) says the heat wave has really been bad. She's happy that she got her air conditioner. Rhea would like a ritual to make her VW run properly. Maybe she should ask it if it has relatives in Chermamy. Threatening to trade it in didn't work. She says her dogs wouldn't speak to her for awhile recently after she gave them a bath. Guess dogs just don't like baths. Maybe that's where the expression "dirty dog" came from. Solve the problem, Rhea, by getting them a swimming pool. Pooka & Sirius love it so that they'll jump in if Manon & I are in the pool. Take Sirius to the ladder when you think he wants out; he'll climb to the top and dive in again. Try it. They'll like it.

Cyprian (Nashville) says some students suddenly turned up and they are beginning Neophyte classes there. They'll work hard to catch up with Lady Bridget's Atlanta group, then they'll all meet at Michaelmas for the Neophyte ritual (see last newsletter). Cyprian enclosed an article from the local paper about the Snail Darter...the little fish that held up the Tellico Dam. Now they hope to transplant some to the Elk River. That would become the fourth river to get some of those little fish. For more on that, see earlier newsletters.

We wondered why she was flying in small circles above her house. Now we know it was because that's as far as her vacuum-cleaner cord would reach.

STUFF & THINGS

Well, here it is the last page, and I can't say I'm sorry. It really has been a problem getting out this edition. Couldn't get the stencils I wanted. Page of photos wouldn't come out good enough to use. Several days working in our print shop (a metal building) with temperatures from 111 to 113. That did not help the paper, the stencils, and made the ink run thin causing the paper to stick to the drum.

Some weather. Who needs it! The other day Pooka woke me barking at 4 A.M. I went to the yard to see what was the problem. It was so hot that Sirius had jumped in the pool and Pooka wanted to get in too. I joined them. p

Don't be unhappy if you don't find your material in the newsletter as soon as you send it. Sometimes we have too much from one person to use in one edition, or we may have too much of the same sort of material for the same edition. Sometimes it gets here too late. But we do get it in though it may be delayed a month or two.

For next month we already have things from Ariel, Rus & Ruthi, Cyprian, Shadowhawk, Armeeta, Lady Allusha, etc.

We do appreciate the news clippings, magazine articles, etc. that some of you send in, but please don't send anything you want returned. We also enjoy the cartoons you clip out but we can't use them because these things are copyrighted.

Robert in San Francisco just sent a copy of an article in The Enquirer... think the date was 7/16. Anyway, it lists charities not meeting the minimum standards set by the Council of Better Business Bureaus. The list is amazingly long. Included you'll find Billy Graham and Jerry Falwell. It's a handy list to have around when the phoney charities are trying to get your money. Only a small fraction of their take goes for what they say it's for.

Hope someone sends a report on the Pan Pagan in time for next newsletter.

That's All Folks,

Love And Blessed Be

Pat and the Georgians

P.S. A lot of you should go to the doghouse. Stacks of mail, arriving not only after the deadline, but much of it mailed after the deadline. Too late for this issue.
