SPACE - SPIRIT AND SPOOKS

Space, being infinite and boundless, is more of everything than anything else. In the immensity of space we have the order of galaxies, stars, planets, moons, etc.

Since it is not possible to grasp the magnitude of an all encompassing endless infinity of space, we have to withdraw our thinking to the limits of those things we can understand.

Since the comprehension of things with people are relatively different, the limits of individual concepts are variable.

Down through history those people who could grasp the size and requirements of the Sun, as a necessity for life to exist on the earth, reached out to the limits of their concept and were called Sun worshipers. The Sun, to them, symbolized the power that made things grow and manifest life in it's cyclic progression of the seasons on earth.

Those people who could not grasp the potential of the Sun as anything but the thing that made daylight, limited their concept to earthly forms of deity. These people on the earth were divided, in their limited thinking, into those who believed in life after death and those who have no belief in afterlife.

Those whose philosophy is "this is all there is", think when they die, here, they are like a drop of rain falling into the ocean and individuality ceases, and they become part of the ocean they call the "oversoul". This belief usually shows in the individual, here on the earth, in a grasping, greedy, selfish "get all you can while you're here" attitude. They do not believe in the "golden rule" or the rights of others. They seek power, and wealth, only for the self-centered material thinking that is the limits of their brain. Their god is false and dies when they die and thats the end of it.

Then the next higher level of limited concept made their gods out of wood images, and statues, that they could see with their eyes. These images had the power, in their minds, to work miracles. These images, and amulets, became holy to their limited thinking and enough faith in them would work miracles.

It was the faith of the individual that worked the miracle, not the power of the image. The Bible says "you shall make no images". Christ is still being put on the cross, and worn, by those who would symbolize their faith. Many of this category of people do believe in an afterlife, but they give the power to man to determine whether they go to purgatory, or heaven. This is regimented belief controlled by the dogma of the church which is a man-made institution. "Dogma" itself is the opposite to God for "dogma" spelled backwards is "AmGod". This is strictly an earth religion that confines the individual to a limited concept of God. Their faith is only in the Church.

Then there are those people who go beyond death and attribute their power and philosophy to the "spooks". In their afterlife belief, they believe these exhuman dead are the proof of afterlife. Their constant aim is to prove there is an afterlife so they have something beyond here when they die.

They can't prove it is better, or worse than here, but they really limit their faith in an astral existence beyond earth's material body. The "mediums" of this philosophy perpetuate messages from relatives and friends who have "gone on". Usually these messages from beyond death are worded to the benefit of the medium. The contact, through trance, is a fact. Afterlife does exist. It has been proven scientifically in several ways.

On a sensitive scale, measuring in fractions of an ounce, when the person on the scale dies, there registers a loss in weight of from 2 to 3 ounces with nothing visible leaving the body. In a Wilson cloud chamber however, there is an electrical counterpart of the body that ionizes the nitrogen gas, and is visible when it departs from the dead body.

The spirit, or this electrical image of the individual, is the power that makes this physical body function.

The most powerful desire in physical people is to survive where they are regardless of whether they believe in afterlife, or not. They know this is real; but what they can't comprehend is that this physical body would not be capable of manifesting life here if the eternal individual spirit were not in it.

Faith is the answer. When God gave man the right of free choice it included life and death. Since there is a "life after death here" there had to be "a life before birth here". Eternity didn't start with the birth here and the church will not determine where you go when you leave the physical body.

Heaven, or hell, is part of the individual right of free choice. Faith is the resonance that determines your "afterlife". Those who believe they are like a "drop of water falling in the ocean", to become part of the ocean without individuality; who hog their way through this life-span with a "to hell with the other guy" philosophy, will end up after death as a "non-entity". They had no faith. They had no God. They will cease to exist as an individual spirit because this is their choice. This is Gods way of eliminating those individuals who want no God.

Those who believe the earth is the only place where life exists will float around in the "astral" level to be born here again. As long as ones limited faith and church dogma are their only concept, they will go where they fit after death.

Earthly religions are all limited to this planet. Pope John said if life were discovered on another planet, the church was prepared to teach them about Christ. Jesus said many times in the Bible, "I am not of this world".

In an atomic, space flight time, in this civilization it is time for the people to expand their religious concepts. Since the Creative Spirit made galaxies, as well as solar systems, and atoms by scientific laws that work anywhere in the vast universe, we should go further than "Sun worship" and accept the infinity of space as God, which encompasses, and is in all things.

Space worship would include galactic, solar, planetary, and atomic structure as the creation. Infinite spirit, the life force is everywhere. What we on earth need to learn is how to amplify it and manifest it in the brotherhood of man before we try to preach the fatherhood of God.

BICENTENNIAL CONCLAVE

A Space Convention will be held by Daniel Fry on April 23, 24 and 25 at the International Cultural Center of Understanding, Inc. The Center is located on Indian School Road at Tonopah, Arizona. The Tonopah exit is on interstate highway 10, about 58 miles west of Phoenix, Arizona.

The admission is $2.00 a day per person. The closest town is Buckeye with a few motels. The next town of Goodyear is 23 miles away.

Dan has plenty of room for trailers, campers, motor-homes and sleeping bags. Unless one drives out from a motel daily, they should come "self-contained", prepared for eating and sleeping.

We will be there to take part in these activities. We expect to meet many of our readers there.

Address any queries about the Convention to Star Route Box 588F, Tonopah, Arizona. The phone number is 602-386-3832.

APOLOGY

We are sorry this issue of the "Proceedings" is late. Many things connected with the research here, took up the time needed to get the paper out.

A REPORT TO OUR READERS

We have become aware that pyramids are being advertized and sold for people to meditate under. Detrimental effects will result in people who do meditate under these pyramid forms.

This energy under the pyramid dehydrates the cell structure of any living thing. What is it going to do to the brain cells of those who spend hours, and days in it?

From many years of research, I can tell you of one friend who developed violent headaches and died within a year. Two other people became idiots who couldn't even remember their own names.

There are several places advertizing pyramids to meditate in. No insect, or living thing that senses danger by instinct will stay under these pyramid forms any longer than it takes to get out.

We employ an energy in the "Integratron" in the "time zone" as an insulation, or separation. In the "Integratron", people passing through the energizing fields, step through this zone in a second of time.

The so called "pyramid energy" is the same energy as life energy and its opposite effect is death. It is universal in its static state, being everywhere. "Vril force, Eloptic, Mesmeric, Prana, Fohat", and other names have been applied to describe it. It is instant. No speed of light. No distance limits. No known shielding will stop it because it does not travel. The pyramid form does not generate it. It is already there wherever you put a pyramid. The pyramid form only activates it where it is.

T. Galen Hieronymus, L. George Lawrence, myself, and a few others around the world understand the beneficent effects of this energy. What we know about the detrimental side of it frightens us because of its unlimited potential.

WHAT'S GOING ON

The economic picture at this time is a mass of paper assets. People in the know believe that there will be many small banks going broke and close their doors before the end of this year.

I haven't any money in the stock market, but if I did have I would sell 25% of it while the market is around the one-thousand mark. The profit from this would cover the loss of the other 75% when the market drops - which it will.

The atomic program is one of deterioration of materials with ageing. There will be an atomic accident in the very near future that will be a holocaust.

Geophysical stresses relieved in the Guatamala earthquakes will put additional pressures on other faults. Watch out for a big one in a matter of months.

Atmospheric reactions are balled up all over the world as a result of the atmospheric bomb tests years ago.

Watch for a dam break like you never saw before.

The political election year will not change a thing regardless of who gets elected because the elected officials are not running the show - the appointees are.

Now that the military has disintegrators, anything can happen. Don't forget that science and the military live for today and its funding. Both have already made mistakes that cannot be undone. Every bomb in orbit has only one place to go as it's orbital velocity slows down - right back to earth where it came from.

The smart people, who have enough money, are buying small farms with an underground well - for survival.

The balloon gets prettier as it gets larger, but it also gets thinner - and credit is the pin that will prick it.

THE PAST PRESENTS THE FUTURE

Foresight, is the rarest of abilities and seldom manifests in complete accuracy as to future events. The mundane materialists who occupy the offices of politics, the military, industry, and the financial world, cannot even see the mistakes of the past.

One exception to the rule was John Jacob Astor; born in Rhineback, New York on July 13, 1864. Fourth in the line, to carry the name of his ancestor who came to America and built a fortune in the fur business. Builder of the Astoria and Waldorf Astoria Hotel system, director of banking, insurance, and railroads. Lieutenant Colonel in the Spanish American War, an expert in marine mechanics, inventor of the bicycle brake and outstanding in scientific and other intellectual societies. He had foresight into the future but did not see the possibility of his death when he went down with the Titanic in 1912.

He wrote a book titled, "A Journey In Other Worlds" which was published in 1894 by D. Appleton and Co., of New York. His tremendous foresight is revealed in this book. He wrote of an energy not electric, or magnetic, which he called "Apergy". He predicted gravity nullification, space flights to other planets, and scientifically tilting the earths poles perpendicular to the ecliptic in order to have perfect weather control without seasons.

His open mind predicted the use of solar power; that most cures of diseases would be corrected by eating the right foods; air travel in airplanes from fifty to five hundred feet long, made of aluminum (which at that time was valued at $20.00 per pound, and now is around 20¢ per pound).

He predicted automobiles that would weigh from five hundred to four thousand pounds, traveling on pneumatic tires which hadn't been discovered yet, traveling on divided highways "with an iron ridge extending along the exact center to compel vehicles to keep to the right."

He wrote of the use of geothermal steam for power, the use of "magnetic eyes" which are our modern magnetometers.

He predicted the subway rail system under New York. Color photography, world-wide telephone systems, rain-making, national parks, and electron or radio telescopes.

John Jacob Astors spiritual insight was as powerful as his foresight. He wrote, "Man is a spirit cursed with a mortal body, which glues him to the earth, and in his yearning to rise, which is innate, is, I believe, only a part of his probation and trial. Throughout nature we find a system of compensation. The centripetal force is offset by the centrifugal; and when, according to the fable, the crystal complained of its hard lot in being unable to move, while the eagle could soar through the upper air and see all the glories of the world, the bird replied, 'My life is but for a moment, while you, set in the rock, will live forever, and will see the last sunrise that flashes upon the earth'."

Astor believed that Christ, while walking upon the water without sinking, employed natural laws of "Apergy" in overcoming gravitation. He states, "We have no reason to believe that in miracles any natural law was broken, or even set aside, but simply that some other law, whose workings we do not understand, became operative and modified the law that otherwise would have had things its own way." Astor also believed the earth was colonized by people from other planets when he wrote, "As every place seems to have been settled from some other, I do not see why, with increased scientific facilities, history should not repeat itself, and this be the point from which to colonize the solar system."

Astor's story goes on to tell of a meeting with an entity from Saturn. The question was asked of this wise one, relative to the short life span of earthlings, "Will the Fountain of Youth ever be discovered?" The entity from Saturn replied, "That substance exists that render it impossible for the germs of old age and decay to lodge in the body, I know; in fact, it would be a break in the continuity and balance of Nature did they not; but I believe the discovery will be coincident with Christ's second visible advent on earth. You are, however, only on the shore of the ocean of knowledge, and, by continuing to advance in geometric ratio, will soon be able to retain your mortal bodies till the average longevity exceeds Methuselahs; but, except for more opportunities of doing good, or setting a longer example to your fellows by your lives, where would be the gain?"

Part of the Preface in Astor's book reads "There can be no question that there are many forces and influences in Nature whose existence we as yet little more than suspect. How much more interesting it would be if, instead of reiterating our past achievements, the magazines and literature of the period should devote their consideration to what we do not know! It is only through investigation and re-search that inventions come; we may not find what we are in search of, but may discover something of perhaps greater moment. It is probable that the principal glories of the future will be found in as yet but little trodden paths."

Since our research here is in "this other energy", "life force", or as Astor called it "Apergy", we are on "little trodden paths", but, we are already aware of other potentials, besides our basic purpose of regeneration, which appear to be whole new sciences. There is no reason to "cut-to-fit" and "paint to match" in an evolution of trail and error. When time holds all answers in a static state of now and forever, why wait?

We are grasping the principles of the future and making them work today. Wisdom does not have to be called back to the factory because there was something wrong with it.

EARTHQUAKE ACTIVITY INCREASES

The Palmer Observatory, in Alaska, reports that earthquakes of more than a magnitude of three, increased in 1975 from the previous two years. There were 12 such earthquakes in 1973; 15 in 1974; and 18 last year. These are all within an area close to the point where the underground nuclear test was fired in the Aleutian island south-west of Alaska.

WHAT A SIGHT

On January 8, 1976, about 5:30 P.M. we had a real thrill as a U.F.O. hovered over the "Integratron" about 200 feet up.

We were going to Pasadena and as we pulled out of the driveway, making a left turn, there it was.

As we drove by the "big dome" the U.F.O. proceeded to pull out in front of us. We passed a parked car and proceeded west on Linn Road with the U.F.O. out in front of us about 100 yards, and still about 200 feet above the road.

It proceeded ahead of us, up Linn Road at the same elevation, for 3 miles. There at the Old Woman Springs Road (State Route 247), we had to make a right turn, but the U.F.O. went straight ahead up over the mountain and down the other side.

My wife and I were thrilled, by what appeared to be the U.F.O. waiting over the "dome" for us, and then escorting us on our way for 3 miles. Then on our right, as we turned, was another one slightly higher which we could see ahead of us for 20 minutes going into Lucerne Valley.

The beauty of the first one, over the "Integratron", was not the craft itself, but the ionization of the air in a ball shape around the craft. The ionization was dense around the craft and diminished out to about 100 feet in all directions, like every molecule of air was lighted.

When we returned from Pasadena we found out the car we had passed was occupied by John and Golda Brady. They told us they had seen the U.F.O. over the "Integratron" from their home 2 miles away and had driven over to Linn Road and parked there for 5 minutes watching it. They also saw us drive by them.

The day after this happened, the local radio news on K.D.H.I. Twentynine Palms, reported many people in the Lucerne Valley and Apple Valley area had phoned in and reported seeing U.F.O.s the night before.

Twice, we have printed photographs of U.F.O.s over the "Integratron", taken by others who sent us their pictures. We didn't see these activities when they occurred, so we wonder if anyone photographed the ones we saw on January 8, 1976.

These intelligences gave me the formula that started this research in 1953. Guess they were just checking up on our progress.

VOTING MEMBERS

Our Corporation Bylaws state that voting members are those people who donate $12.00 or more, each year.

Our Annual Board of Directors elections are held on the second Saturday of October of each year. Notices are mailed, giving the time and place, to those people who qualify 30 days before the meeting. To qualify, donations must be received by the first of September.

There are 11 Directors now on our Board. They are: George W. and Dorris Van Tassel; Sandra Boone; Elsie Jacobsen; Carl Lehmeier; Edwin Wrenchey; Elbert Claypool; Lewis Tribbett; Carlton and Stephonie Culbert; and Phyllis Brady.

LETTERS

Some of our readers do not get answers to their letters because of time. Technical questions involving the principles of energy relative to the "Integratron", pyramid power, etc., can only be answered by Mr. Van Tassel. His work here involves at least 12 hours a day now, so he cannot take the time from this important work to write pages to answer these letters.

Mr. Van Tassel may be consulted by appointment, either by phone, or letter. Phone 714 364 2784.

RADIATION - RESPONSIBILITY AND RESULTS

The "Three R's" in this title used to mean "Reading, Riting and Rithmetic". Since we are entering the age of illiteracy, with about half of the high school graduates not knowing how to properly read and write; in the next generation they will probably mean "Reckit, Runit, or Rapeit".

Radiation from earthly deposits, and cosmic inclusion, are things that are either beneficial, or detrimental. There isn't much the human race can do about it, except not to live on top of a deposit of radioactive matter in the earth.

Everything - people, planets, suns, plants, atoms, water and air, all radiate the radiation of their atomic matrix in their decay cycle.

Since it is tough enough to get through life, to a mere one hundred year life span, because of too much, or not enough, of sunlight, food, or clean air and water, it now looks like we are in a cycle of insanity.

The cream of the "corn cob scientists" are only interested in collecting more kernals on their cob through federal funding. Their lobbyists go to Congress with either an appeal for "defence" so some other nation will not "get ahead of us", or "we are running out of energy". Since the Congress is composed of politicians, who know nothing of science, they appropriate the tax-payers money to pacify the mad scientists who are only looking to perpetuate their jobs. The true scientists, who know what radiation can do, quit their jobs because they know what responsibility is.

In this atomic space age, with computers and automation, we still have a "horse and buggy" administration. Anything goes, from putting atomic bombs in orbit around the earth, to funding science to see if fish can smell other fish. Approve and fund anything that will get the votes.

Of course holding office now is not the goal. Just getting in for one term is all that matters since the politicians now can get bigger pensions when they retire, or are defeated, than their salary was when they held office.

Government no longer exhibits responsibility, and radiation doesn't care whether one is wealthy, or poor. The people are only puppets to pay the bill for ignorance.

Since scientists recorded in 1800 onward, that malaria and yellow fever occurred at a period of the lowest Sunspot activity on the Sun, we have known that radiation is responsible for all diseases. Now the world is being swept by a continual increase in cancer. This is a result of the unscientific Congress and the money-hungry scientists. The medical profession has proven many times that radiation outside of the cell spectrum is detrimental to life.

Dr. George Crile, and Georges Lakhovsky demonstrated that living cells are a system of generators, inductors, and insulators and electrically no more mysterious than batteries and dynamos.

The capacity and wave length of cells become neoplastic when their electrical capacity, or oscillations are exceeded. This is the same as putting too much load on a fuse or circuit breaker. Radiation does this to cells silently and with no warning to anyone.

The plutocrats of power continue to promote atomic reactors, in spite of the known still-birth death rate increase within 50 miles of the operating reactors. They also know materials can have deterioration life spans in the reactors and run wild.

The "bomb boys" still promote tests, when there are more than enough bombs now to wipe out this civilization.

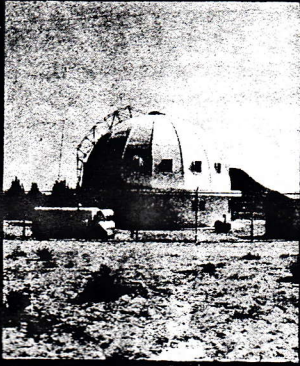

They are causing cancers in the planet that will be there for thousands of years. The Atomic Energy Commission had water wells filled with concrete because they have already contaminated vast areas of underground water.

Results from radiation cannot be undone even by changing the name of the responsible agency of government.

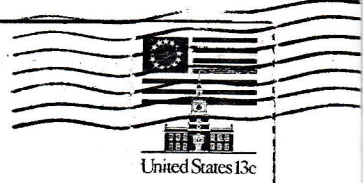

Responsibility lies at the start of these radioactive policies, not after it is too late. Government responsibility is in the results of radiation on the people, not in the financial aspect and profit for the industry.
