GOOD NEWS

Small California Churches will benefit from the States recent referendum which changed the State Constitution. The change in Chapter XIII, although not widely publicised, will allow Churches and other religious organizations which RENT their facilities the same tax breaks as larger (and richer) Churches that own or are purchasing their facilities receive. The new wording in the constitution also allows a real estate tax exemption for property used as parking lots, which had previously not been included in the Church exemption. For further information, contact your County Tax Assessors office.

I am sure that our readers will appreciate the good news that the subscription price of THE WHITE LIGHT is retroactively reduced to $4.00/year, rather than the $6.00 per year that was expected when the first issue went to press. Anyone who paid the higher rate will automatically have his subscription extended to cover the overpayment. Dealer prices on bulk orders of THE WHITE LIGHT are also reduced, but the minimum is still 10 copies.

For those who appreciate a little levity in their reading, the good news is the fact that The Yellow Rag is back, with the first reader-contributed selection. More good news in this issue, is the first articles contributed by members of other organizations. Readers should note the wide scope represented by the articles, as this will be our policy, to present as wide a range of information about the various aspects of the Western Tradition as possible, in addition to articles concerning our own branch of that Tradition, Ceremonial Magick.

Further good news is the announcement by the Vector Community Church of the dedication of their new Church at 1534 N. Formosa Ave, in Los Angeles. Congratulations to George Burtt, Marion Simpson, Ben Keller and the whole Vector crew.

For individual Occultists or groups, the good news is that The Light of Truth Church has living and temple facilities which are for rent (see advert. in this issue). Additional facilities which will also be for rent are due to be completed in a few months. Both of these facilities are located in or near Pasadena. If you or your organization is thinking of re-locating or opening a branch in the Southern California area, feel free to contact us.

We applaud the good news that the Aquarian Anti-Defamation League (AADL) is organizing a nation-wide telephone contact network, to combat the wide scope of unique problems which befall Occultists. For more information contact the AADL, Box 3720, Minneapolis, Minn. 55403.

There have always been "those who know." What they have known is that the vast public worship of omnipotent gods was not the truth. They have known that deity, far from being the dictator of events, lay bound like Osiris in the tomb, waiting for Horus to save him. Throughout the ancient world, these knowers instructed the few who were worthy of the task in the means whereby the tomb may be entered, its mummy unswathed, stood upright on its feet, and its eyes opened. While the public worshiped idols, the true god was raised into the light privately. Not one in a thousand, says an old text, not two in ten thousand, are capable of Gnosis.

The Roman Church, jealous, militant, and powerful, destroyed the Gnostic books and falsified their doctrines. The Gnosis went underground. In Alchemy, in Kabbalah, in Ceremonial Magic, and the Tarot cards, the Gnosis occulted itself. Thus costumed as the Fool, and often misunderstood, it made its journey through the millenia. Ultimately, thoughtful persons began to realize the true significance of these strange arts, until, finally, nearly a hundred years ago, a small group of English Masonic and Rosicrucian students pieced the slumbering fragments into a coherent whole. The boat of Osiris, after too long a journey through the underworld, once more rose above the horizon: The Hermetic Order of The Golden Dawn.

The graded system worked by the members of the Golden Dawn is the best and most complete basis from which to build any modern esoteric group. As one ascends the paths of the Kabbalistic Tree of Life, which connect the various grades, one comes in contact with a complete course in the western esoteric tradition. At the same time, through a vast system of correspondences, one is able to contact the creative force of ones True Self.

Since the demise of the Golden Dawn, much added light has been thrown on the whole world of Occultism by the Psychiatrist Carl Jung. His theories of ego inflation and projection help one to avoid the pitfalls that have swallowed occultists throughout history. His theories of individuation and the archetypal psyche help one to understand the nature of the task. Through Jung's profound studies in Religion, Alchemy, and other areas, much can be added to our understanding of the Golden Dawn system. The first four grades, relating to the four elemental sephiroth, can be seen as a series of rituals and exercises whereby a person develops and balances his entire consciousness, in preparation for what Jung called the transcendent function. The individual becomes ready to journey the paths beyond the veil, to shoot the arrow that will arouse his Divine Genius.

POSSESSION,

From the Diabolist Viewpoint

By: Henry E. Smith, Templum Dominus
Temple of The Dark Lord

Since the beginning of mankind's involvement in religion there has been countless episodes of possession. Every religion, past and present has factual reports of the manifestation of a power that takes over a human body. In today's religious society, it is stated by one of the most powerful religions that such a manifestation, unless coming from God, is a work of the Devil and therefore something that will destroy the body and soul. This take-over is also, as espoused by Christians, involuntary.

Can you not feel the horror and fear of some God-fearing Christian who awakes one morning to find that he has been possessed by a spirit of the Dark Domain, a demon from Hell? After years of church-going and partaking of the Holy Sacraments, of Prayer and observing the commandments, that he has become a vehicle for demoniac forces? It makes me wonder as to whom is the deluded, concerning the source of power.

In many cases of possession, the human who is taken over seems to begin a physical decay. The force contributes nothing to the welfare of its victim and in fact is bent upon total destruction of the body and damnation of the soul. Yet let us stop and think for a moment. Such an action serves no purpose, the take over is thus meaningless, except as a display of power, which in every incidence (if you would believe the Christian Churches) is defeated by the worthy priest and the power of God. The victim is saved and the demon is cast back into Hell, and all is right with the world once more. To this I have one word: LIES!

There must be a reason, a purpose that is to be accomplished. The Demoniac force takes over a human body which acts as its vehicle and tool so that the mission will be achieved. For this function, the body must be in good condition and therefore the destruction of it does not provide the perfect tool which is needed. Once the function is achieved, the tool can be destroyed or discarded but not before. This does not concern the possessor, for after all, is there not an eternal state of war between its master and the Christian God? Is it not true that in any war the enemy must be made to suffer losses and in this war the enemy is identified by belief, and neither age nor sex makes for special consideration? Mistake it not, this is a war that transcends the moralistic concept of safety for civilians, for in this conflict there are no innocent civilians, only soldiers who in their own way, no matter how small, are engaged in battle.

Now let me bring another bit of what may be unknown information out into the light. All that has been given forth by the God-fearing religions concerning possession, has always been classified as involuntary, yet as far as I can remember there has been no mentioned incidence of VOLUNTARY POSSESSION. Yes, I said voluntary, where the person possessed has, through ritual, asked a demoniac force to come and co-share its human body. Why? For knowledge, for power, for many things which the human can not gain otherwise, or because the one who asks is a SATANIST, DEVIL WORSHIPPER, or DIABOLIST who desires the ultimate unholy sacrament of their belief, the joining of their humanity with the forces of HELL while they are still of this world. No, this is not done lightly, nor is it done on the spur of the moment, and they who ask for this must be worthy of receiving the unholy sacrament. Yet when obtained, the blending of human and demon is beyond understanding as to the new vistas of occult power and comprehension which is brought forth.

To us who are Diabolists, who worship "THE DARK LORD", it is coming closer to HIM while obtaining purpose, strength and power. To many, we are 'evil', yet evil is a relative term, for what may be good for us, may not be so for others, yet we have never sought the blood of innocents nor have we ever sought the lives of those guiltless. Of our enemies we seek retribution, and only in extreme incidences have we called forth for revenge. We, who obtain a companion from the Dark Domain receive that which is beneficial to our welfare both of materialistic and spiritual nature.

MAGICKAL CONCEIT

By: Fra. Zarathustra (T.:O.:T.:)

It is quite true that it takes some ego to set ones self up as a Leader of an Occult Group. If this is coupled with a nearly total lack of prior training and/or experience in the field, a dangerous situation frequently arises, and if combined with an ulterior motivation which has little or nothing to do with the Occult, a disaster is in the making. The more notorious of these eventually make their way into the news media, the classical example of which is of course the Manson Clan debacle.

If on top of all of the foregoing, the individual leader or group is actively exploiting the membership either for money, power or ego enhancement, and when this rampant ego mania has driven off all or most of the original founding group, there exists no mechanism to restrain the power-hungry leader(s) or to normalise either the internal or external affairs of the organization. A test of this kind of situation, is the length of time the average member remains active in the organization. The really sad part is that usually the large majority of the members of such an organization are either un-aware of the exploitation which is taking place or think that what they are getting is worth the price. Unfortunately most of these members are not normally 'old' members. Such senior members could stand up to the leader and say something on the order of "Come off it. We knew you when..."

A realistic sense of personal worth (and limitations) is essential for a sane, sensible administration of a Magickal organization. A person who admits to no mistakes has just made the biggest mistake possible. If the person in question seriously believes that he is in fact always right, regardless of the situation, that person is seriously ill and is in dire need of treatment.

All of the above directly applies to the "Grand Master" of another organization, whose name I will not besmirch these pages with. Those who know this person will recognise him from the above description.

This individual began working in Magick for the basest possible motives and not for personal enlightenment. His 'lodge' was founded to further these base desires, aquire status, importance, and a retinue of reliable (exploitable) followers who would support him and his lodge without any effort on his part, and to gain a tax-exempt shelter for the money he thought would be forthcoming from gullible donors.

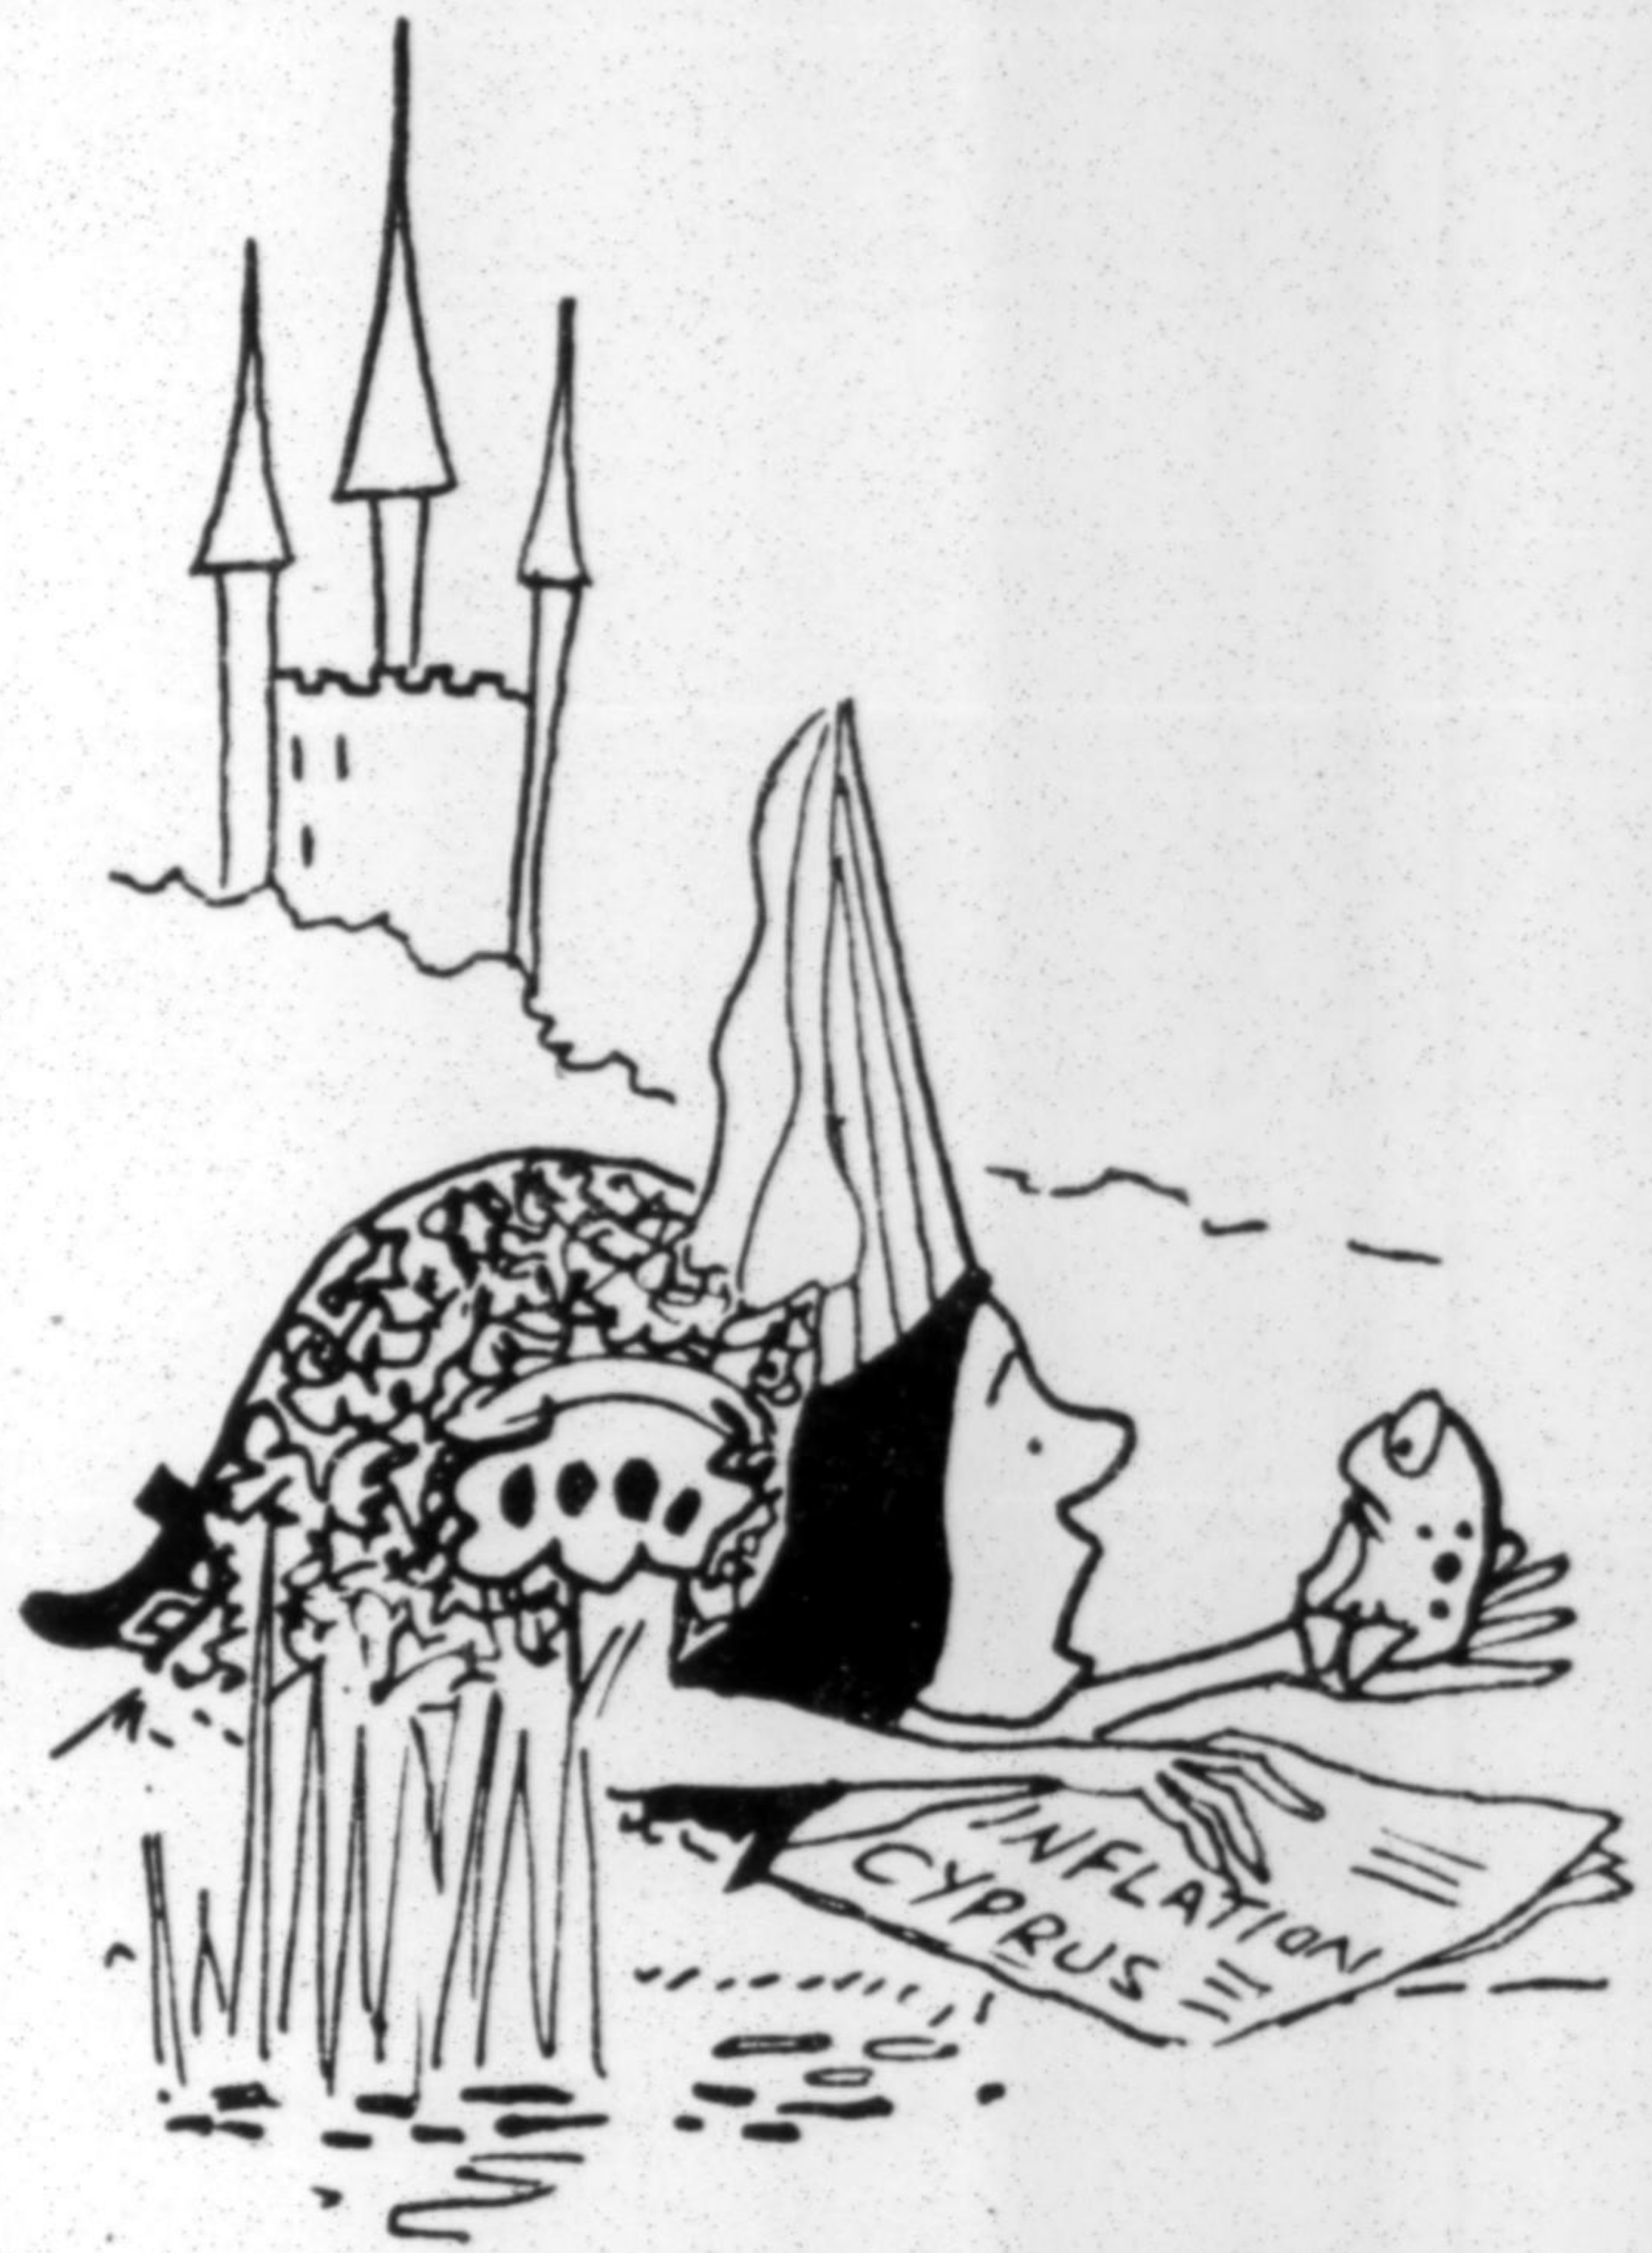

The fact that some of the members were able to do meaningful work in Magick is a great credit to those individuals and to the system.

It is not possible to eliminate all of the ego factor in the practice of Magick, however it can be reduced somewhat by several means, one of which is by not using a grade structure within the lodge. (See TWL, Vol I, No. I)

Doctor Tells of 'Hex' for Warts

NEW YORK (UPI)—A dermatologist says that in removing warts afflicting children, "the remarkable thing is . . . you can actually hex them off."

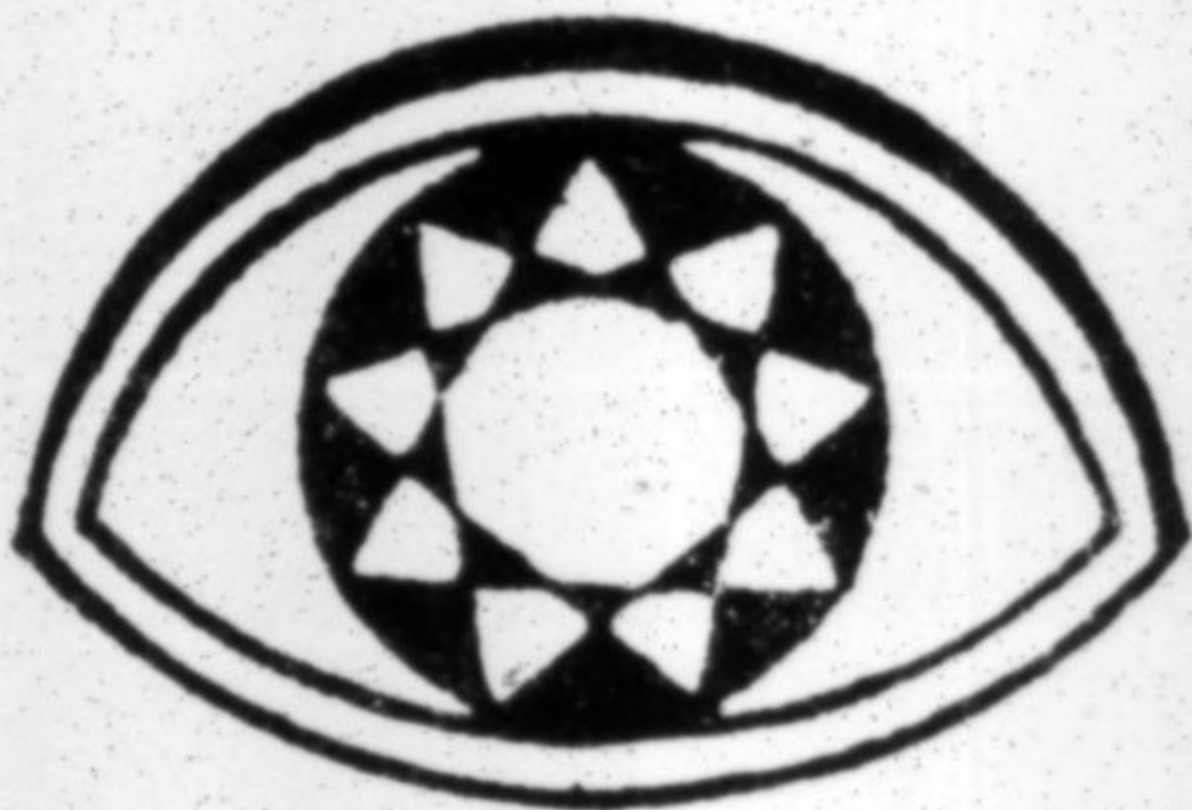

Dr. Walter E. Shelley, chairman of dermatology at the University of Pennsylvania medical school, reported in "Family Health," a magazine, that he has "a dermatologist friend whose biggest therapeutic aid in the case of warts is a very ordinary shiny bracelet. She tells a youngster to wear it until the wart is gone. Believe it or not, it works. The wart disappears in a few weeks."

*** TOTALLY IRRESPONSIBLE JOURNALISM ***

I never went to the last Gnostica Aquarian Festival in Minneapolis, but that doesn't mean I can't report on it. The standard of reporting in the occult field today is such that accurate firsthand information is not essential. So, let's pretend I was there and this is what I saw and heard:

As I arrived at the hotel, I walked up to a distinguished bearded gentleman who appeared to be in charge. "Who are you?" I asked. "I am not trying to be the pope of the witches!" he replied. "All of you, tell the man!" A large group of people began chanting in unison: "Good old Carl, he's not trying to be pope, he's just good old Carl...." The distinguished gentleman beamed at me, very pleased. "But, sir..." I said. "Just a minute," he said. "You wouldn't be trying to disagree with me, would you?" He had suddenly become very insistent. "Oh, no, sir" I said, leaving discretely.

I walked up to another commanding individual, "Who are you, sir.." He turned on me furiously, his voice rising, "It's people like you who are responsible for the oppression of homosexuals throughout history. We won't stand for any more of your bullshit..."

"But sir, I just wanted to ask you your name..."

"Are you trying to deny me my rights of expression? So long as we put up with people like you..." He was shouting now, and I backed away quickly almost running into a quiet young man with very long hair and a huge beard. Catching my wits, I asked him where he was going.

"I'm on my way to get married!" He flashed a seraphic, ecstatic smile at me, and gestured at a group of three young ladies who followed him. A bystander protested, "But Tim, you just got married last April!" The young man again flashed his ecstatic smile, as he and the young ladies moved on together.

Just then, a short, paunchy, middle aged bearded man with greying hair came running in wearing army combat gear, including a helmet and body armor. He reeked of cigarette smoke and gunpowder and carried a bazooka. "Where's Harold Moss?" he screamed. "I'm gonna' kill him!" He levelled his weapon at various individuals in the crowd, and everybody ducked for cover. Finally somebody said, "Harold Moss is at the zoo. He's trying to make a lion and a lamb lie down together." "How's he doing?" the wild eyed man asked, momentarily distracted from his mission. "Well, the Lion has bitten off one hand, and the lamb chewed his pants off and crapped on his shoes. But he's still talking." "Well, maybe with one hand gone, he'll stop writing.." he said, fumbling with his equipment belt, almost dropping a hand-grenade. At this, I walked up, "Why do you want to kill Harold Moss?"

==== THE YELLOW RAG ====

-Continued-

"He's a member of the International Communist Conspiracy!" he howled, "Besides, he called me a paranoid!" At this, he ran off, apparently headed for the zoo.

I saw a very quiet man, his eyes closed, lost deeply in thought. I approached, relieved, "Who are you?" I asked. Startled, he replied, "Who am I? I am Kouros, I am McLaurin, I am Hieros." "I don't understand," I said. "Silence!" he commanded, "Don't interrupt me. I am trying to suffuse the biosphere with pansexual transcultural ecopsychic awareness." "Could you put that in everyday language?" I asked. He reacted angrily, "What use have I for you, or for your everyday language? I'm trying to start a grassroots mass movement worldwide!" He turned away from me.

Suddenly there was a tremendous explosion that rocked the hotel. I immediately thought of the man with the bazooka, and asked someone who came running in, "What was that?" "Oh, that was Leo Martello killing flies," he replied. "Killing flies? Does he always use TNT to kill flies?" "Oh no, that was just nitroglycerine. He uses TNT to kill snails." There was another tremendous explosion. "Like that?" I asked. "Yeah," said my informant.

A slender woman dressed all in black walked up to me. "Watch out for that man," she cautioned me. "I have reason to believe he murders cats, and he's a liar and a thief, and he once called me a dirty name." "Really?" I asked. "That's not the worst of it. Do you see that man over there? His mother is a hunchback and his father is a lunatic." "Well, that's fascinating," I said, "And who are you?" "I? Why, I am a priestess of the Goddess of Love and Harmony!" She said indignantly, offended at not having been recognized, and walked away.

"Don't let that woman worry you," said a slender man walking up to me. "She's a lousy magician. I, however, have the power to create and destroy!" "Oh, really? Could you give a demonstration?" I asked. "Certainly," he leveled his finger at me and muttered some incantation. "There," he said. "What?" I asked. "You disappeared," he replied. "I did? Then how can you see me?" "Because I have the power of universal sight!" he said triumphantly, and walked away.

I looked down at myself and concluded that I too, must have the power of universal sight, for I was still here. But I decided I'd better leave.

Pondering Musical Medicine

ST. PAUL

OCCASIONALLY, through all of the turmoil and tears of this business (really, I cry a lot), one is given reason for good cheer. All right, give me one good reason anyone should be cheerful. But let it pass.

This happiness comes with an item in Health Insurance News, one of my "must-read" periodicals, about the cures being accomplished by the application of classical music.

You don't believe that Health Insurance News is a "must-read" publication. All right. How could anyone pass up the information contained on its pages? There are, for example, tips for avoiding lice, and we get these stirring words to live by from one Joseph Jerome, identified as an AMA "spokesman." To wit:

"The problem is to get rid of the present generation of lice as well as the next generation."

I don't know how anyone could improve on that. But that was not the big news. The big news is that classical music is being played in parts of Europe for medicinal purposes.

What is good for what?

Well, a Roman surgeon Yclept Geotano Zappalo has been treating indigestion by playing Bach fugues to his patients. We learn that Mozart is good for rheumatism and that Handel is good for disturbed emotions.

Here is one I don't understand. Beethoven? He is being used for hernia. That is interesting and begs for an explanation but there is none.

Another biggie is insomnia. This is being cured by Schubert.

This works, I learn, through a device, developed by a Frenchman, which breaks down cell tissue by transforming the sounds into direct vibrations. The patient listens through earphones. The tunes are relayed through the rest of the body through electrodes.

While it is good to know that science is moving ahead, I tend to doubt at least the cure for insomnia. When I can't sleep, and turn on the radio deep into the night, music keeps me awake simply because I listen to it.

Before we are given the benefits of the ear and body earphones and electrodes—and I would dispute the value of Schubert here, feeling that I would come to the unfinished end of that symphony one day (I never have tested it out) and go mad — I think we would be better off if some enterprising television type were to consider insomnia as it relates to his medium.

People are lulled off by various things. My favorite thing would be a baseball game between the Texas Rangers and California Angels.

They could call this "Sports for Dreamland" and simply roll us tapes of previously played games. The lower the score the better.

I don't mean to pick on one sport. Almost any televised sport whose outcome is a matter of indifference will put me to sleep in an instant. Golf? You bet. You give me about 30 minutes of these chaps putting and I will not have seen the final 29.

I really don't know what to say about Beethoven and hernia. Certainly I wouldn't recommend an interesting hockey or football game for this, for I find that I strain and wrench with the jocks here. This could worsen the ailment, I should think. On the other hand, I find myself conducting Beethoven after the style of Leonard Bernstein. This is quite a workout, too.

One of the earliest references to Planetary Hours (and Angels) for the use of the Magician, occurs in Barrett's MAGUS, the 1801 edition, which is due to be released in paperback by University Books Citadel division. The above table was copied by a series of authors, and is traceable to Barrett. The hours run from midnight to midnight on a 24 hour cycle, which is easier to use than those tables which run from sunrise to sunrise.

Pondering Musical Medicine

ST. PAUL

OCCASIONALLY, through all of the turmoil and tears of this business (really, I cry a lot), one is given reason for good cheer. All right, give me one good reason anyone should be cheerful. But let it pass.

This happiness comes with an item in Health Insurance News, one of my "must-read" periodicals, about the cures being accomplished by the application of classical music.

You don't believe that Health Insurance News is a "must-read" publication. All right. How could anyone pass up the information contained on its pages? There are, for example, tips for avoiding lice, and we get these stirring words to live by from one Joseph Jerome, identified as an AMA "spokesman." To wit:

"The problem is to get rid of the present generation of lice as well as the next generation."

I don't know how anyone could improve on that. But that was not the big news. The big news is that classical music is being played in parts of Europe for medicinal purposes.

What is good for what?

Well, a Roman surgeon Yclept Geotano Zappalo has been treating indigestion by playing Bach fugues to his patients. We learn that Mozart is good for rheumatism and that Handel is good for disturbed emotions.

Here is one I don't understand. Beethoven? He is being used for hernia. That is interesting and begs for an explanation but there is none.

Another biggie is insomnia. This is being cured by Schubert.

This works, I learn, through a device, developed by a Frenchman, which breaks down cell tissue by transforming the sounds into direct vibrations. The patient listens through earphones. The tunes are relayed through the rest of the body through electrodes.

While it is good to know that science is moving ahead, I tend to doubt at least the cure for insomnia. When I can't sleep, and turn on the radio deep into the night, music keeps me awake simply because I listen to it.

Before we are given the benefits of the ear and body earphones and electrodes—and I would dispute the value of Schubert here, feeling that I would come to the unfinished end of that symphony one day (I never have tested it out) and go mad—I think we would be better off if some enterprising television type were to consider insomnia as it relates to his medium.

People are lulled off by various things. My favorite thing would be a baseball game between the Texas Rangers and California Angels.

They could call this "Sports for Dreamland" and simply roll us tapes of previously played games. The lower the score the better.

I don't mean to pick on one sport. Almost any televised sport whose outcome is a matter of indifference will put me to sleep in an instant. Golf? You bet. You give me about 30 minutes of these chaps putting and I will not have seen the final 29.

I really don't know what to say about Beethoven and hernia. Certainly I wouldn't recommend an interesting hockey or football game for this, for I find that I strain and wrench with the jocks here. This could worsen the ailment, I should think. On the other hand, I find myself conducting Beethoven after the style of Leonard Bernstein. This is quite a workout, too.

“Thou great and mighty spirit, inasmuch as thou camest in peace and in the name of the ever blessed and righteous Trinity, so in this name thou mayest depart and return to us, when we call thee in his name to whom every knee doth bow down. Note,

A.E. Waite, in his "Book of Black Magic & Pacts" gives a table accredited to Peter de Abano, which agrees exactly with the above. None of these agree with Mathers' translation of "The Greater Key of Solomon", which gives an entirely different set of Planetary Hours.

Many unusual items and excerpts from private collections will be presented in this section, in future issues.

For the past year the Gnostic Brotherhood of Light has been working the Golden Dawn system, slightly modified and informed by the developments of depth psychology. It is important to note, however, that Jung himself strongly resisted the reduction of his ideas to a formula, or the reduction of the wonders of existence to psychology. The Gnostic Brotherhood of Light assumes a like attitude of respect toward the unknown. No Lodge, or individual either, can know at present what it will become in the future. Knowledge, indeed, is mostly a process of responding to acknowledged ignorance. Thus the true Gnostic stands ever at the place of becoming: the horizon between the light and the abyss of darkness. In one hand he wields a sword to hold back the demon Apophraz, with his free hand he reaches down into the tomb to raise the body of Osiris. Behold, the key to Gnosis is in the first motto of the G.:B.:L.:: "BECOME WHAT THOU WILT." And the key to the first is paradoxically contained in its second: "BE WHAT THOU ART."

The G.:B.:L.: is the ceremonial Lodge of the Sophia Gnostic Center, and is chartered by the ancient Order of the Temple of Jerusalem. Membership is limited, but not exclusive. Direct inquiries to: The Gnostic Brotherhood of Light

THE TEMPLE OF TRUTH, unlike most other Orders and Magickal Lodges, is essentially unstructured. It has no "grades," issues no pretentious certificates, and has no fixed curriculum. The Temple of Truth exists primarily for its students and members, and hence does not get involved in the internal workings of other organizations. The Temple of Truth takes no part in political quarrels which sweep through the contemporary American Occult scene. Likewise, we abjure most of the "traditional" secrecy which all too frequently hides ineptitude and selfishness on the part of those purporting to know it all. What little is kept secret is simply for the safety of the individual student, and no information is "forever denied" to a promising student. Each individual is free to select his own course of study, as well as the rate at which he chooses to pursue it. This "independent study" concept allows the staff as well as the students considerable flexibility. The student defines what it is he wishes to do and then later submits a report on the results he has achieved. Selections from these reports may be published at a later date.

Individual students are encouraged to adopt the scholastic method but not required to do so. In any event, the lack of rigor will not bar the student from opportunities to test his theories. Empirical results are the cornerstones of the student's progress.

Flexibility is also stressed in the admission standards of the organization, the main emphasis being on a better than average moral and ethical behaviour on the part of the individual applicant. The applicant's motivation should be a desire for spiritual development rather than an egotistic craving to be called a "High Priest" or a "High Priestess," or the lust for "Powers"—usually over others—in lieu of Self-control.

The initial series of classes is open to all, members and non-members alike. The student is encouraged to practice his magick in his own home as a part of his everyday life. This emphasis on individual practice (after an initial period of instruction) is one of the largest differences between The Temple of Truth, and other Magickal organizations operating in the present Occult spectrum. Membership in The Temple of Truth is non-exclusive, or in other words, members of other organizations can join ours. Dues are low because we are not supporting a large staff or headquarters complex.

The Temple of Truth is sponsored by The Light of Truth Church, a duly licensed and incorporated Religious Institution. The Church is neither evangelistic nor fundamentalist in the usual sense. We do proselytize the basic dignity of Man, and we recognize the subjectivity of what most people call "truth." The Church's teachings, being cabalistic, are compatible with Christian, Moslem, and Hebrew religious tenets.

Dues, donations, and so forth to either the Temple or the Church are entirely tax-exempt, under both State and Federal law.

The Church also operates a Gift and Occult Supply shop, The Magick Circle, at 747 North Lake Ave., Pasadena, California.

Interested persons are invited to call, write or come by the shop at anytime during our business hours. Correspondence may also be addressed to our private Post Office Box; 3125, Pasadena, CA 91103.

Introductory classes in Magick are presently open, and prospective students may examine the class outline which is on display at The Magick Circle shop. The class sign-up sheet is also posted.
