The importance of telepathy was underlined by Dr. Eugene Konecci, one of America's top space medical experts, at the International Space Conference held in Paris in 1963. Mentioning that both Russia and the United States had given telepathy top priority, he pointed out that American spacecraft had found a region between the moon and the earth where their respective gravities negated each other. Because it was believed that brain waves between humans were adversely affected by gravity, it was thought that an astronaut in this belt of nongravity might be able to pick up the thought waves of people on earth. As to the Soviet experiments--"If the results of conducted experiments are half as good as the Soviets claim, then they may be the first to put a human thought in orbit or achieve mind to mind communication with humans on the moon" Konecci declared.

TUTTI FRUITI

Upon the occasion of Chinese New Year one month after the Roman New Year and one month before the astrological and/or fiscal New Year it seems fitting to comment upon a variety of goodies received by the MAGICK MIRROR within the last few months. These are items which, like holiday cakes and candy, may be made "kitchen table special" with the best intentions but are sometimes hard to digest without spitting cookie crumbs over the proverbial left shoulder. Whether or not salt should be taken depends on whether or not you actually swallowed the tutti fruiti or--like Jack the Giant Killer--used sleight of hand to put the monstrous candy in your magic sack for later disposal.

On CNN news late in the evening of December 28 a new story was aired about the discovery in a Tennessee bakery of a cinnamon bun resembling popular press photographs of Mother Theresa. The bun, which had been frozen and shellacked by persons who spontaneously recognized the likeness of the Catholic nun in their breakfast pastry, was shown in closeup by the news service and did indeed resemble Mother Theresa. It was refreshing to see this straightforward coverage of such an unusual event. Why are supernatural and UFO events which leave artifacts or have multiple witnesses not covered by the media in this same straightforward way? Simply because an event seems ridiculous to the logical mind does not mean this event did not--in truth--happen. Formal logic is an artificial system, a symbolic analytical language which must be learned. Linear logical process is not always adequate to describe the raw data of events which have an unexplained or non-linear causality.

SAY WHAT?

Emotionally-opinionated judgments which are completely appropriate when articulated within the limited province of any private household are not appropriate when printed as serious commentary in a broad sheet magazine issued as a "kitchen table special" anomalies and/or "UFO" newsletter. Such trivial judgments bring any publication down to the level of a laundry list found on the subway at midnight. A 1996 article in a small hand-stapled newsletter from the Midwest has remained unacknowledged by the MAGICK MIRROR until this New Year of 1997 simply because the article was in such poor taste it was difficult to know how to respond without descending to the same level of bigotry and hostility displayed by the author, an individual who fancies that he represents the South Midwestern area of the United States simply because he has lived since birth in a small town near the Mississippi River. In his distinctly catty "review" of the book SORCERY AND THE UFO EXPERIENCE by E. Macer-Story, this $25 book of 300 pages--which currently is issued in elegant hard cover by Advanced Science of Palm Beach, California--is inaccurately referred to as being cheaply-manufactured. Whatever it is, buddy:

it's not cheap.

.Also, the staff of Advanced Sciences Publications is referred to by this "reviewer" in a mentally anorexic way as "fruits and nuts" of California. But this seems to be simply a fearful, generic phobia. For none of these controversial "fruits and nuts" have ever been directly sampled in person before being neurotically referred to by the reviewer.

PIE IN YOUR EYE

As an individual with an eating disorder often feels it is "virtuous" not to eat savory food; so the self-congratulatory reviewer for this "kitchen table special" must have felt it was not actually "virtuous" to read a book entitled SORCERY AND THE UFO EXPERIENCE. None of the actual specifics of the original ufo/supernatural case research included in this book by E. Macer-Story are dealt with directly and instead an individual glimpsed once or twice traveling with Macer-Story to conferences is brought forward with inaccurate emphasis on future shared research. Actually, the next books by this writer and the Midwestern UFO researcher singled out for special attention by the kitchen table reviewer are on completely different topics and were written at completely different periods of time. His next publication will be the reissue of a book on shamanism written in Europe twenty years ago. The next book by E. Macer-Story will be the long-promised work entitled THE DARK

FRONTIER, which contains new and original research on ufo contact and the supernatural never before published in any forum.

It so happens that no material provided by any researcher from the southern Midwest area of the United States appears in the book SORCERY AND THE UFO EXPERIENCE, with the exception of a brief mention of the famous Hopkinsville, Kentucky UFO shoot-out. Material from several areas of the United States will be included in THE DARK FRONTIER, which has not yet been published.

Previously, the individual who wrote this tantrum of an inaccurate kitchen table "review" has been protected by the psi research and ufo communities because he invokes the "family" image in his communications, often mentioning the illnesses of his wife and son as well as his own personal problems in broadsheets sent to a selected group of people at Christmas.

Tolerance of the ill humor of this kitchen table journalist should cease because his information intersects inaccurately with larger, more comprehensive patterns of shared reality. A number of small newsletters suffer from somewhat the same problem. The MAGICK MIRROR is open to reports of insults and inaccuracies perpetrated by "kitchen table" mini-tabloids which previously have been able to hide the Tutti Frutti of their mental anorexia behind the smooth, linoleum apron of "family" values, seemingly derived from regular viewing of the "Munsters" TV series from a living room "group share" situation reminiscent of an upscale middle class version of the rural commune founded by psychic pimp Charles Manson.

HISTORICAL PERSPECTIVE

One of the key tactics delineated in the classic Chinese martial arts text The Art of War by Sun Tzu (which has been recently translated into English by Stephen F. Kaufman, Hanshi 10th Dan) is the attack on relatives and associates of the opponent in order to undermine the inner identity and confidence of the opponent. It is well known that the CIA and other "intelligence agencies" both military and civilian have studied the two thousand year old martial arts text of Sun Tzu because the ancient tactics outlined in this text, properly updated, do work in modern context.

It is quite possible that the various "gossip" subtextual machinations (and here the cellular phone comes in handy) of certain of the most ambitious UFO and new age "kitchen table" publications are deliberate strategies developed by experts in psychological warfare. Of course, deliberate psychological manipulation may hide behind the mirror reverse of "family values" as well as the obviously out-of-online insistence that special publication in a "kitchen table" journal be dependent on maintaining the facade of a corn flakes and pinafore lifestyle most of us left behind in first grade with our DICK AND JANE readers when we actually began to read the newspapers.

DECEPTION/ NO DECEPTION

In the area of "mirror reverse" manipulation, it is possible that the embarrassingly obvious presence of X-rated sado-masochistic literature and snake oil merchants selling gravel in spring water as a cure-all at UFO and new age conferences nation wide--but particularly in Florida and the Southwest United States--may not simply be a modern version of the carpetbagger motif but may actually be a clever technique of psychological warfare designed to make people who perceive this chicanery feel "secret and guilty" about attending the conferences because they cannot discuss the minor league vice they perceive without calling the larger metaphysical theme of "whatever" new age conference into question as well.

Two thousand years ago, Sun Tzu advocated a similar strategy in co-opting and discrediting the regimes of "border provinces" which had a shaky allegiance to their original political establishment and a tendency to tolerate pirate activity within their cities as a way to make profit at a time of combat between two or more military powers larger than the small potentially unstable pirate region. It is not necessary to explain to the alert reader the application of Sun Tzu's "introduce covert vice and co-opt" principle to activities now going on within the "UFO" and/or "new age" situation.

MORE UNSPOKEN BOUNDARIES

discussed in the last issue of this magazine, several readers have asked whether the shot of the man without a head in front of the "fun and games" emporium came before or after the darker snapshot of this same area which lacked the figure of the pedestrian and certain traffic lights clearly visible in the "Headless Horseman" photo.

The answer is that the "Headless Horseman" shot came first on the roll. Often, when using an auto flash camera swiftly, the second shot of the same area will be darker since the flash triggering mechanism has not had time to recycle.

The unusual lights at the upper left of the frame, however, appear clearly on both snapshots.

MEA CULPA

There is one mistake in reporting, however, which does not flaw the documentation of unusual effects to these photos.

The snapshots of the lobby and conference room at the NEW SCIENCE FORUM in Denver, which were incorrectly mentioned in the final paragraph of the article Unspoken Boundaries in the Fall 1996 Magick Mirror Magazine, are actually at the end of a control roll of film taken of the same "fun and games" area in daylight just after the anomalous effect had been noticed on the "Headless Horseman" photo developed September 26, 1996.

Clear shots at the end of the "Headless Horseman" roll of film show ordinary views of trucks near a downtown office building and suburban supermarket in Oklahoma City, where this reporter was conducting personal business on September 17, 1996. This first roll of "Headless Horseman" film was developed in Manhattan on September 26, and the series of daylight control shots was taken on that same day. This daylight "fun and games emporium" series of control shots was on the roll of film in the camera when your Magick Mirror correspondent traveled to the New Science Forum in Denver on October 3, 1996.

The interlinked series of transcontinental trips recorded on these two rolls of film would be hard to fake and can never be exactly duplicated. --E.Macer-Story

THE NORTH ATLANTIC BOING

""Well after World War II sonar operators and scientists had spent much of their time with headphones on, listening to the seabed and to anything else whose noises fell within humanly audible wavelengths. They gave their own nicknames to certain familiar sounds, especially those which resisted all identification. One of these became known as the "North Atlantic Boing".

""Now and again something uncanny happens which makes you wonder what's down there. We've sometimes picked up signals which aren't GLORIA's[ed: a ship equipped with sonar mapping computers] own echoes, but IMITATIONS. The electronic analysis is quite clear. They're definitely some kind of deliberate response. But what could possibly imitate a sound as complicated as a correlation signal? There are really only two possibilities: either a submarine or whatever creature produced the "North Atlantic Boing" while flirting with sonar operators. Sometimes even our other sonars--the 'fish' [ed: a nickname for a sonar device on GLORIA] for example-- provoke an almost angry response. We've had the single bleep of the ten kilohertz being answered by a double bleep, or a triple, even a quadruple, as if something's deliberately mocking it.

""You've got to remember that sound travels well in water and we're making a godawful noise down there. We're sending out four different signals powerful enough to bounce off the seabed thirty kilometers away, two of them capable of penetrating hundreds of meters into it. That's a huge amount of sonic energy, and we must be absolutely deafening, maybe even lethal, to some animal species. Certainly a whale would find us audible for hundreds of miles, perhaps a thousand.

""So who or what is the author of the "North Atlantic Boing"? What creature are we enraging or provoking to mimic us? I presume cetaceans. We haven't the first clue what goes on in a whale's mind. We don't even know what's in a parrot's mind.""

by James Hamilton-Paterson

HA!

On January 28, 1997 at nine in the evening, your correspondent had a truly weird and unexpected encounter with "meaningful computer glitch" when she attempted to rename the file yclept NEWSLTTR/tutti before copying it from the laptop disk to the C drive of the Magick Mirror computer in Manhattan.

The attempt was to rename this file NEWSLTTR/e9tutti so that the current editorial would be easier to find in the long list of newsletter articles. Instead, the computer removed all text from the new file e9tutti and rendered the previous file "tutti" unavailable.

For an hour, your correspondent attempted to find the lost file "tutti" and/or restore the text to "e9tutti"; but the Magick Mirror computer stubbornly refused to co-operate, displaying a box which notified the desperate author that an initial letter of identifying text had been lost in the rename operation.

At one point, when viewing files available on the disk drive, your correspondent was amazed to see that while all other, normal files had a lower case "a" beside them in the master listing, "e9tutti" (the text-erased file) had the additional letter "h" in the drive designation, creating the word "ha". I am aware that deceased sorcerer Aleister Crowley often punctuated his writings with the word "Ha!" but disregarded this suspicion and attempted to plunge on toward recovery of the file rationally, accessing the "h" drive, which is the host file for both "a" and "c" drives. But nowhere in the "h" facility was "e9tutti" listed.

At this juncture, author George Andrews phoned from Missouri to inform your correspondent that there was no spectacular news from that area of the country; but that an ice storm was happening outside his barn. Macer-Story informed Andrews of the peculiar "ha" drive display and got off the line, intent on overcoming this obvious "computer hex" from those ever-quirky "HaHaland" entities who might be trying to block publication of her Tutti Fruiti editorial about intelligence agency dabbling into Oriental and other systems of sorcery.

Reasoning that she might be able to reclaim "e9tutti" by discontinuing the File Manager application and entering the file directory through Word application, Macer-Story exited File Manager and entered Word application. Yet she was not able to bring up the NEWSLTTR "tutti" or "e9tutti" files by normal OPEN FILE/ READ TEXT methods.

As she was struggling with this unfruitful search, Macer-Story noticed a function on the "Word" application display which offered FIND FILE. She had never noticed this function nor used it before. The habit of this particular writer is to go through the File Manager application to create and open files because this click-on procedure is faster.

When Macer-Story touched FIND FILE with the mouse cursor, she found that the text of "e9tutti" was already installed on the notepad of this function and was available on the C drive only from this particular notepad as a text item, not a file item. In haste lest this undesignated text also vanish from the FIND FILE notepad, she copied text to another file with a different name in the NEWSLTTR directory, and thus preserved the "Tutti Fruiti" editorial without having to laboriously re-enter it from the corrected hard copy for redrafting. The original was miles away, tucked into the hard drive of the MAGICK MIRROR laptop in Woodstock.

Your correspondent interprets this "ha" glitch as a definite indication that the use of deliberate sorcery speculated upon by E. Macer-Story in the New Year 1997 editorial yclept "Tutti Fruiti" has objective reality. Her mention of the use of the "Art of War" by Sun Tzu by "intelligence agencies" both public and private has struck an interdimensional spark which has been most illuminating.

Yet the reader should be careful and clear of mind in speculating upon the exact source of this bolexing energy, which may in any one specific situation come from a variety of practitioners of several different nationalities who have become adept at the offensive use of subtle energy.

Your present correspondent also understands that "ha" in the disk drive listing may mean that the host drive (h) glitched in renaming "tutti" on the disk drive (a) and somehow shunted the un-renamed text onto the available FIND FILE notepad in the "c" drive. However, this explanation cannot account for the fact that Macer-Story was unable to copy the entire "e9tutti" as a file entity but only the reclaimed text into a file with another name.

MAGICK MIRROR speculates that if Advanced Intelligence in truth is electing to communicate interdimensionally, such Intelligence will occasionally present the recipient with a subtle communications conundrum such as the strange recovery of file "e9tutti".

The fine print following is an exact reproduction of the text of an article entitled The Misguided Missile Mentality, submitted to the MAGICK MIRROR MAGAZINE by an individual who requested to be anonymous. So it is clear that this is no Ben Franklin charade, interested experts may magnify the text and learn that this is definitely not from the Magick Mirror word machine. The first installment of this article appeared in the Fall 1996 issue.

create an interferometry zone and that these effects can also be produced at a distance, utilizing the two cerebral hemispheres acting as transmitters. A goal-oriented approach which ignores the electromagnetic potential linking mind to mind and mind to matter encounters unexplained interference. The very human, if quirky, qualities shared by many high-level psychics would only serve to enhance polarizing psychic/target links. Linking minds is a double-edged sword that is likely to create "boomerang" effects due to interference among other things.

Union

The law of conservation of energy implies the necessity of polarity. If a positive force is brought into existence, it must be accompanied by an equal, but negative force. The union of forces of different polarity is behind all creation; all action and reaction. On the human level, unity must be accompanied by emotion, and spirit. On the subatomic level, unity may be referred to as quantum resonance (waves that coincide in phase). Complete unity cannot be achieved by low-level psychic activity operating on a strictly conscious level in a mentally sterile environment devoid of emotional content.

The hidden or locked-up energy of any potential event may be infolded or trapped in a higher order/dimension of reality. Trapped EM energy eventually results in the creation of "harmonically locked bi-directional wave pairs" (Bearden). It is conceivable that a highly charged psychic in an altered state accessing multidimensional consciousness, could more readily link to a target via EM forcefields of bi-directional EM waves traveling back in time (anti-waves). And this would create an observable EM forcefield. When waves coincide or meet in phase with one another an event is created. This is because the EM energy potential would then be unlocked or released. If this is the case, the virtual reality of a premonition or psychometrically created event could unfold into the observable reality of a real event in time.

The thing to remember about targeting is that in focusing energy towards a preset target, vital peripheral information is lost or escapes. But is this an example of the second law of thermodynamics? The second law implies that everything tends toward disorder or entropy and any process that converts energy from one form to another must lose some energy as heat. But where does this energy go? Is it forever lost, transformed, or simply infolded into a deeper level of multidimensional reality? Chaos theory accepts that the second law must hold for systems evolving with order, but that the creative laws are not bound by the second law. According to the many worlds theory, all possible outcomes of any event happen in some branch of reality, but not all potential realities have existence. Existence comes about through union or quantum resonance.

An operation of psychic warfare operates in four dimensions; three involve space and one involves time, where all these dimensions are at right angles to one another. The many alternative or potential realities may reside in branched off perpendicular worlds that can only be accessed by traveling backward in time and then forward in time into a right-angle branch of reality. Conceivably, potential operational success/failure messages can return from the potential future by the waves that travel backward in time from one reality to a converging point of realities, and this convergence adds a new wave carried forward into this branch of reality.

If there is not complete quantum resonance or if there is too much interference, an interferometry zone is created, and an unexpected alteration of events will take place. The very shielding employed to safeguard psychic warfare programs is also insurance for less than successful outcomes. On the other hand, if hitting the mark is a measure of success, disastrously successful psychic/target unions have been recorded. The coming together of mind-to-mind, of psychic-to-target, opens the window of psychic access for retaliation.

Manifestation and Absorption

A psychic in an altered state accessing multidimensional consciousness becomes an electrically charged mass. The linking of this "charged" psychic to a target via bi-directional EM waves can create an EM forcefield (manifestation). This is because the EM energy potential would then be unlocked or released. If this is the case, the virtual reality of a premonition or psycho metrically created event could manifest into the observable reality of a real event in time.

Can reality be deliberately engineered at a distance? For the last few years ongoing research has been conducted in the external engineering of infolded EM involving the extraction of electrical energy from a vacuum via the atomic nucleus. And through multiwave electromagnetics, successful antigravity experiments have been recorded. Holography and interferometry is now testable and can be controlled at a distance with transmitters that effect temperatures in the target and transmitting zones. Anomalous unpredicted weather conditions have accompanied some programs of psychic detection and targeting.

Photon and antiphoton interaction effects mass potential as recoil, and recoil creates anomalies in electronics, weapons, and humans as "electronic smog" and "jamming of biological control systems". The anomalies created and experienced during the April 1986 US bombing of Libya were supposedly corrected in the Gulf War by stringent control of frequencies and communications. But the Gulf War Syndrome may be a result of this "jamming". Recoil is not just created by electronic transmitters, alone, but also by humans as psychic interference.

A most frightening aspect of EM potential is the "death photon" effect and microwave radiation. Soviet experiments have been replicated in Germany. Death, diseases, cancer, etc. have been transmitted electromagnetically from a diseased source to an environmentally shielded target! The illness that plagued the American Embassy in the Soviet Union for years was transmitted via Microwave radiation. In Europe electromagnetic machines are creating an EM version of a Homeopathic remedy. It may be only a matter of time before the proper EM frequency mix will be found for curing, or causing, diseases such as AIDs, Leukemia, and cancer.

Human Will

Many new physicists are making the astounding attempt to marry scientific engineering to spirituality. The spirit, not the brain, is hyperspatial and multidimensional. The spirit may be the master control of the EM voltages, currents and forcefields within our bodies. And if mind-body-spirit are one, it is the spirit that designs and creates psychic links. If spirit is the master control after all, then could this be one of the major reasons that the CIA and other governmental agencies have become so frustrated with their psychic mind-control projects?

Chaos

Does disorder product universality? The mathematics of Chaos theory reveals that within chaos is a great geometric regularity. Simple systems can do complicated things and complicated systems give rise to simple behavior. Randomness may have a direction of great complexity and dissipation appears to be an agent of order. When plagues the designers of psychic-warfare programs. harmonious oneness of all things. And this may be the insurmountable barrier that Universal Mind, and celestial teachings, that dissolve all duality and celebrates the humanity has a collective will to life. And sustaining this collective quantum potential of involving the mass potentials of all humanity. The collective quantum potential of collective unconscious. It is a multidimensional two-way EM communication that have unwittingly stumbled into. our universal sense of the natural order of things is turned upside-down, that is Chaos: Natural disorder with a hidden or infolded order. Why has the CIA and the Department of Energy pumped great sums into Chaos research? Mind Control experimentation may have become a victim of the stars. Irregularity and unpredictability seem to spell out a certain level of quantum chaos in all psychic experimentation. But on a larger scale, where the laws of classical mechanics hold. Chaos research may unlock the universal laws of pattern formation. Little things can be set in motion to create catastrophic effects. Chaos research may reveal the hidden dynamics of the human immune system, world-wide ecological equilibrium, epidemiology, and the spread of infectious diseases etc.

BUGHOUSE SQUARE

Closely adjacent to the Newbury Rare Book Library on the near north side of Chicago, there used to be a public park where people were allowed to stand and give speeches on any topic they pleased —so long as their presentation did not offend basic community standards of human decency. This park was called by local residents " Bughouse Square".

It is important that, in a free society, there does exist a public forum in addition to intellectual clubs and libraries which are restricted by membership fees and regulations.

The purpose of the MAGICK MIRROR WEB SITE will be to collect data on anomalous situations and supernatural occurrences, as well as UFO experiences.

You will not have to be a card-carrying member with a special code ID in order to participate.

Like the poetry readings here in New York's Greenwich Village, we will run the MAGICK MIRROR WEB SITE on voluntary donations and subscriptions to the hard copy edition of which will contain data logged into the web site "park", and also articles from other sources.
