

Sault Ste. Marie Locks, in the busy Soo Canal, lift Great Lakes carriers over a 22-foot drop city would win the honor), was a mere "sub-arctic lumber village converted by royal mandate into a political cockpit!" Yet Victoria's choice turned out to be a good one. The nation's capital occupies a magnificent site high above Ottawa's Chaudière Falls, with the Gatineau Hills in Quebec Province as a backdrop.

A master plan developed by the Paris town planner, Jacques Gréber, and the National Capital Planning Commission has produced striking results. Each spring Ottawa blossoms with miles of tulips. In summer, Sparks Street Mall—gay with potted plants and shrubs and trees—delights tourists, citizens, ambassadors, and just plain civil servants.

But to appreciate Ottawa's changing outlook one must see the new City Hall, on a green isle in the Rideau River, and meet the city's energetic mayor, Charlotte Whitton (page 96).

At 66, Miss Whitton recently was elected from distant Superior to Huron. New International Bridge links Michigan (left) and Ontario

mayor of Ottawa for the ninth year. She carries out her duties with such vigor and dramatic flair that last year a Canadian newspaper poll voted her the country's most newsworthy woman—for the sixth time.

But the evidences of the capital city's—and thus Ontario's—broadening outlook are to be found also on the national scene.

"One of the most important things that has happened to this country in recent years is the appointment of Maj. Gen. Georges P.

Vanier as Governor-General," a leading industrialist told me.

General Vanier is the second Canadian to represent Queen Elizabeth at Ottawa; the first was Ontario-born Vincent Massey, a superb success as a viceroy although not as well known as his actor-brother Raymond.

His present Excellency, a soldier and diplomat whose military bearing and crisp mustache match the best in the United Kingdom, comes from a proud Quebec family; like
