

DYING, AFTER DYING AND REINCARNATION
DIEING, AFTER DEATH AND REINCARNATION

The psychic type of person usually figures out on their own that there is no death except that suffered by the physical body. Sages have commented on this, and people who have suffered clinical death experiences even more so. But very little has actually ever been written about the ~~whole~~ dying-reincarnation experience entire.

When you die, a number of things can happen to you, and which one it will be depends a great deal on how you have considered life and death in the first place, i.e., more or less tried to prepare your mentality for the transition from one body to ~~another~~ a new one.

The first thing to bear in mind is that when you die, others are also dying at that exact moment, perhaps millions. People usually think of their death -- when they do think of it -- as a unique, individual and isolating experience. When you leave the body, you will naturally be deprived of all contacts with its physical perceptual systems -- eyes, ears, touch, etc., as well as the body's brain. If you have depended exclusively on the physical perceptual systems and have not activated any of the trans-physical psychic perceptual systems, it is most likely you will be cast into a state resembling deep dark sensationless sleep. You will have no perceptions, not even of yourself. You might then not even leave the physical body, but get buried with it and remain in the grave for a long time. until through some chance your natural psychic systems activate and you "wake up." You might hang in at the mortuary, on the ground by the grave, or in the hospital or place ~~you died~~ where the body died. All around you -- but you will not know it -- will be battalions of other "dead" life units, such as yourself, who are plastered everywhere, layers deep, without so much as a flicker of awareness.

The length of this know-nothing state is variable, and depends almost entirely on some outside energy or force that shocks you out of it at which time some (or possibly all) of your inherent psychic awareness units might activate and get you on the move again.

In the next, somewhat upward state, and in order to get another body and reincarnate, you will at least have to be perceptive of sexual flows and the vast amounts of physical energy that explode during orgasms. Fucking acts like a magnet to disembodied souls, and they gravitate to copulating couples much like leaves on a river gravitate to the center of a whirlpool and are eventually sucked into it.

very
If you have/little activated psychic awareness, you will probably just gravitate to the nearest copulating couple. Not every copulation results in a fetus, though, but you may hang around that couple waiting for/<sup>a</sup>fertilization to take place. Unfortunately, you may, in your unknowingness, enter an egg or a sperm, and get flushed away with the residue of the sex act if fertilization does not take place.

All of this is a heavy experience. If millions are dying at the same moment, so also are people copulating by the millions all over the world. The realm of sexual flows and whirlpools is enormous, and taken altogether constitutes a very difficult time. For every available and possible fertilization, there are ~~dozens~~ multitudes of souls trying for the same potential body. Often, numerous souls "claim" the same fetus at the same time. The one that will be in control of the new body is <sup>first</sup> the one whose psychic systems/integrate with the new body's forming brain plate, and thereafter have control of the rest of the anatomy.

The human being is actually a collective of souls for this reason, many of which can at times influence the ultimate <sup>resulting in</sup> behaviour of the whole. ~~This~~ is one type of split-personality.

This type of body acquisition is spiritually instinctual, and can take place without hardly any of the other more pronounced and more selective psychic awarenesses being active. But if psychic awarenesses are at a very low state, there is no guarantee that the copulation flows that attract the spiritual instincts will be human ones. Animals, insects, etc., are also copulating by the billions all over the world. These can attract low order souls who have not the activated psychic awarenesses necessary for selecting a particular species.

The average human will get outraged at any idea of getting reborn in an animal or other body. But outrage hasn't much to do with it. It happens. And to prevent it is one of the best of all reasons/for activating your overall psychic awareness systems. All of this process is automatic, and unless the individual life unit -- the You -- has highly developed psychic awareness systems, the form of the reembodiment will be quite fortuitious. and chancy.

A little upwards from this dismaying moras are the situations of those who have a strongly developed telepathic bonding with family or loved ones. Telepathic bonding is mostly spiritual in nature with only a small portion of it being psychical attraction. The ratio is about 90 percent to 10 percent.

When, during life, telepathic bonding has been strong, and there is also a strong sense of "family", the spirit will probably be able to "gravitate" to some family member, no matter where they are. This is only natural, and is one of the functions of telepathic bonding. In moments of supreme travail, all the ~~telepathic~~ telepathically bonded family members will be aware of it. In this case, telepathy is the stronger energy ~~which~~ over the mere instinctual sexual energies. The ~~dying~~ spirit leaves the dying body and leaps across space to be in the vicinity of a family member, much in the same manner that migrating birds know where to go. But once in the vicinity of a loved one, the disincarnated spirit will then "await" a copulation, if the family members are young enough to provide one.

It is in this manner that spirits flock together in a family way -- this was understood in many past cultures, especially the Chinese. One could indeed become the mother and father of a spirit who had been their parent or grandparent, or aunt or uncle, and so forth. This telepathic bonding attracting-ness knows no time or order. Spirits who had been embodied together at any given time still might maintain a vivid telepathic bonding, even though they have been apart for some generations and living in different countries. This is akin to soul mating.

Up to this point, just getting a body should be called "re-embodiement" and not reincarnation. The new brain forming in the new body is, after all, a blank, and will consist only of genetically encoded patterns. The soul will integrate with the brain plate, but unless it has sufficiently developed psychic strength will be unable to do more than that. The soul will then be formed out of the new experiences of the new body-unit. There will be no recall of past lives, and what experiences the soul had in them will not be available to the new body-spirit mix. The soul/spirit is merely re-embodied.

A "reincarnation" can not take place unless the entering soul-spirit has a psychic awareness system that is strong enough to impress its past experiences into the new brain, or least a part of them. This happens during the fetal stage, and is probably accomplished prior to birth, and thereafter may lay dormant for as much as the entire life span of the body. But, considering the ~~xxxxx~~ psychic strength necessary to make the initial impress into the ~~xxxxxxx~~ prenatal brain, it is likely that as the infant develops as a baby or child, it will manifest some parts of the previous lives. These manifestations may be traits, recall, ~~xxxxxxx~~ parts of past personalities, specific talents that once had a strong psychic component to them, and psychic aptitudes themselves. These result in child prodigies, children who remember past names, and so forth. Instances of these are not as rare as we are led to believe. But, with the exception of talents, the child is soon programmed to retire any reincarnational sequences that come to trouble the<sup>new</sup> family, and they recede to lay dormant.

It is interesting to note that when/a reincarnational sequence among children does come to light, it is one that most frequently involves a past individual whose ~~then~~ possessed a strong psychic orientation. In the same way that a non-psychic person cannot triumph in many ways during one life, neither can a non-psychic soul/spirit sufficiently impress the new brain with components of the previous lives. Thus, when a child remembers a past life, it does so because of the psychic quotient available then and now, and the life that is being remembered is one that had a strong psychic awareness system already going for it. This is one of the explanations as to why people only remember that they were famous people, because "fame" cannot be achieved without a healthy component of developed psychic awarenesses to ~~that~~ that helps the individual to rise above others. Instances of children remembering that they were low-order, hum drum people are very low.

When the re-embodiment soul/spirit can also impress the new brain plate with a large dose of "memories," a reincarnation can be said to have taken place. As mentioned above, the reincarnation can be active or lay dormant; but the sum total of the impressions that have been brought into the new brain are technically available to the new body/soul/spirit ensemble, and whether or not any of the past gained awarenesses and abilities will figure in the life depends upon the infant's environment and educational programming. The intense anti-psychoic nature of the Western equalizer also plays a significant part in all this. The West does not accept reincarnation, and it takes a great toll among children who are complete or even partial reincarnations, reprogramming them to retire their "memories" and explaining reincarnational phenomena away by many contrivances. All of this is very torturous to the child and adults involved. But it should be born in mind that "reincarnation" does not involved just "memories." These are more obvious because they become vocalized by children and people. Tendencies, traits, talents, goals, desires, and outlooks are also part of the reincarnation processes, and these seldom get verbalized like "memories" do, and so they escape direct notice.

The new body-soul-spirit ensemble is seen to be "predisposed" to a given talent, tendency, etc., and these are mitigated to a large or small extent by the new environment in which the reborn finds itself.

Moving on, the higher-order ~~developed~~ psychically developed soul/spirit can be aware of what is happening in the inbetween lives realms, especially if he or she prepared for it while in life undertaking to develop and enhance the psychic attributes. Here it is important to state again that PSYCHIC does not mean merely telepathy or clairvoyance, but ~~the~~ refers to the viewpoint of eternity and infinity that allows one to "see" through the barriers of "life" that artificially compartmentalize the whole of existence.

The highly developed psychic person will be able to activate deep and profound awarenesses as he or shee passes through the death pattern, through the inbetween lives area, and into a new body. In fact, such a person will actually have some choices in what takes place.

First of all, they need not "mindlessly" gravitate to the nearest copulation or unknowingly just get caught up in a new fortuitous body arrangement. They can select a new family or environment that will be propitious to their desires and goals. They can take a decision, perhaps, not to re-embodiy or reincarnate at all, and can stay by selection in the spirit world, providing only that their compulsive desires (if they still have any) do not drag them hypnotically and magnetically into a new re-embodied situation. All this involves the traditional esoteric idea of learning to rise above the physical desires; for, if one cannot do that psychically, the soul/spirit will yearn to join once again into those types of situations that will allow for continued experience of those desires. Here "desires" should be read to mean "lusts." How it is that these work has plenty of precedent in physical life. Even if moderately highly developed in terms of psychic awarenenses, the transiting individual soul/spirit will be unable to resist temptation, and will plunge once again into a lifespan that will enable it to resume gratification.

Liberation, when it does come about, does not come from denying lusts and cravings when you truly desire them, but from changing ~~the~~ <sup>your</sup> psychic priorities so that lusts and cravings occupy only a minimal place in your scheme of existence. Sexuality, eating, drinking -- the major physical lusts -- are not the only cravings there are. There are also the lusts of participation, the desire to take part in some human enterprise, whether of crime, creativity, making war, making peace, governing, being a slave, and so forth. All these, and many more, are conditions that take lots of people and distinctive environments for their fulfillment, and many soul/spirit life units desire to be part of them.

As mentioned earlier, the two major lusts are for power and money, for it is with these that the average human can "extend" him or herself through the human fabric. <sup>comparitively</sup> But/few that have achieved money/power use them for any good purposes. Money is usually used to gratify other desires; power to control other people, especially through establishing and supporting those illusions that are characteristic of the Equalizer.

There are some soul/spirit units that have achieved psychic liberation and are free of compulsive lustings and cravings. Some of these ~~units~~ "go on" to "works" that are quite alien to humans, but some elect to try to help humanity (or individuals) to raise its overall psychic quotient level. To do this at all, they must remain invisible to the Equalizer while at the same time effecting some positive upward changes in it, a really difficult and challenging task indeed. These soul/spirit life units are commonly called "Masters", and in occult and esoteric texts they traditionally "operate behind the scenes." The reasons for this "invisibility" has never really been understood, because the Equalizer and its methods has never been brought to light. Once the Equalizer is understood, the reasons for the anonymity and invisibility of the Masters ~~isxxxxxxxx~~ become clear. Outwitting the Equalizer is no easy task.

The major thing that governs all the death-rebirth, re-embodiment and reincarnational sequences is that ~~xx~~ the vast majority of soul/spirit life units ~~xxxxxx~~ want ~~xx~~ only to have a limited and limiting life experience. This is to say that they lust after compartmentalization. They like ~~xxxxxx~~ being a certain type of personality, whose roots and reasons for being thus and so are deeply embedded ~~xxx~~ in the psychic sub~~st~~ata of the soul/spirit life unit. When the death processes of one embodiment take place, these soul/spirit units gravitate to environments and life situations that will allow them to redramatize the major constituent ~~xxxxxx~~ characteristics of the certain type of personality they crave to ~~xxxxifxxxxxx~~ express. When these soul/spirit expressions are combined with physical lusts and cravings, the soul/spirit re-eybodies time and again in nearly identical life sequences. The soul/spirit life unit then undergoes long sequences of many lifetimes "being" essentially the same type of personality again and again and yet again.

The major reason for this is that the preferred type of
in large part personality will/fit into the Equalizer and its patterns, making the life expression relatively easy. This is actually the line of least resistance in the overall re-embodiment process. But as a result, billions of soul/spirit life units are effectively in
"trapped" and live countless lives as victims ~~of~~ the human fabric.

In the esoteric literature, this type of "living" is called the "donward path," downward because ~~xx~~ all lines of least resistance eventually piddle out and become impassable, and because it is the nature of the Equalizer to convulse at intervals, crushing everything and everyone in them. If the soul/spirit life unit -- the You -- is fixated on retreating to another line of least resistance, one will normally adopt a new life-style that appears to be acceptable within the human fabric. When the human fabric (that is to say, the Equalizer)
"governs" the direction of your history in terms of eternity and infinity, then you will be forced "downwards" towards lesser and more constricted forms of life expression.

All this is not hard to grasp. Let's say you, some time ago, liked being a mother, because families are acceptable within the Equalizer, and the mother occupied a good position. So you were a mother through several lives. But since the Equalizer is never stable for very long, and in fact two or more equalizers can come into contest with each other, war was the result. You suddenly saw your sons and husbands slaughtered, your home bombed, and yourself killed. War was now "in" in terms of the equalizers, and so, taking the line of least resistance, you became a warrior or soldier, whose lives were temporarily being valued by the equalizers. But then peace arrived, and there was no place for warriors who were "unemployable" and detested, ~~So you shifted~~ and if you, as a soldier, found yourself on ~~the opposing~~ the losing side, you were executed as a war criminal.

Executioners were now "in" and elevated to high place as judges or "repairers of the peace." So you shifted over to becoming an executioner. But too late. ~~xExe~~ The human fabric had changed again, and executioners became unemployable. Their place had now been taken by diplomats, and just as you had gotten this new life-cycle going, the Equalizer fluxed again, and diplomats became the target of terrorists, and you were blown up by one of their bombs. So you became a terrorist, perhaps for only one life, only to be yourself killed again in some skirmish or perhaps be rubbed out when your usefulness as a terrorist was no longer necessary to the powers working within the Equalizer.

But you had noticed that terrorists and the powers that control them valued women, especially prostitutes, and gave them money and cared for them. So, following this line of least resistance again, you became a prostitute. But this conflicted too deeply with the "motherhood" you had lived many lifetimes through, and you eventually suffered a psychotic break because of the conflicting soul/spiritual values that are part and parcel of your overall psychic makeup. But you found that psychotics are fed and clothed by society, and cared for to some degree, so you became an habitual psychotic for a couple of short lifetimes, up until the point when you noticed that warders of psychotics led better lives than the psychotics themselves.

So you re-embodied with the goal of becoming a warder, which meant you were eminently employable within the Equalizer which has multiple uses for all kinds of warders. Now you began a soul/spirit career that took up ten life-times, working on behalf of the Equalizer to control people. But in the tenth life-time, you re-embodied in Germany in the 1920's and because of the line of least resistance became a Nazi concentration camp adjutant, and were suddenly hung as a war criminal, and the cries that you were only following orders were of no avail.

This time, rather than reinstate the cycle by becoming an executioner of war criminals, you noticed that the victims of war crimes were being valued, and so you shiften your ~~XXXX~~ ~~XXXX~~ compartmentalization and re-embodied ~~XX~~ as a victim or potential victim in search of a victimizer. You barely reached the age of sixteen before you found one who raped and strangled you, and was shortly paroled after having spend only ~~XXXXXX~~ <sup>three months</sup> in gail. Your psychic rage as the rape and murder was so great that you had, in the disembodied state, gravitated to the body of the murder and gotten sucked into his next sex act which resulted in the pregaancy of a young girl of hhe poorest and criminally oriented class. And thus, you were born into an environment and a moral system characteristic of this life style. In this life, you were born a boy, but because there was absent in your environment any significant role models, and because you possessed a soul/spirit hatred of your father, you became a homosexual with a sadistic bent. But much to your surprise, you died of AIDS when you were but seventeen.

But not before you had begun to notice that the preachers of the moral majority were being very vocal against homosexuals and the threat of AIDS. You noticed this, of course, but because you also noticed that these people valued motherhood, and were militant, /were acting as judges. Here was a package that resembled three separate life-cycle experiences of your own. So you gravitated to one of these families, and eventually were born into the family of a notorious bigoted preacher, a family in whose bosom and environment your new brain plate will be programmed in their values. In this family you will grow up not knowing at all that the You possesses ~~all~~ a vast spectrum of conflicting past life experiences, any or all of which may manifest as your character develops. The esoteric literature calls all this "the downward path." But not because of the life experiences it involves. <sup>No guilt is to be apportioned out, because</sup> It is safe to say that every soul/spirit life unit on earth has a somewhat similar history. The wisdoms of the esoteric writers call this the downward path because it cycles around and around and creates whirlpools that automatically drag into them all soul'spirit life units who have not the psychic power to extricate themselves from them.

The "upward path" consists of breaking into this automaticity

The "upward path" consists of extricating the You from this fatal and continuing engulfment of the forces around that automatically attract your lusts and cravings. This can only be done by breaking into your own soul/spirit oversoul, the You, breaking apart your desire for compartmentalization, and stopping the soul/spirit tendency from popping back and forth between the pillars and posts of the ongoing <sup>spiritual</sup> whole life processes. And this can only come about by activating your ~~psychic~~ innate psychic capabilities, for with these you will be able to see through all the fruitless compartmentalizations that clutter your oversoul. ~~much like~~ When these compartmentalizations become transparent to your psychic awarenesses, the compulsions (i.e., the entrapped energies and forces) in them almost always just drain away. If you can eventually "see" psychically the greater scene of both your own YOU as well as the Equalizer, the fabric and the psychic structures that are holding them in place, you will begin to experience and benefit by the liberations that characterize the upward path.