

1209 00

tom 27 Aug 82.
8.31

26° 12' N
50° 38' E

I

Arising Peak.

Horizontal

A curving C

B -

A solid

B land C

A flowing way.

B water C

L/W intruder C

S-2 rocky ref.
shrine C

11

I

A curving.

B Ad. breaks.

Island.

1209 00

26° 12' N

50° 38' E

I

A curving PC
B shore PC

S-2 smooth
yellow. / PC
grainy

sandy shore line C

"

I

A rolling.
A angl.

B hill.

B buildings C

S-2? trees
cool
windy

"

I

A rising

B hill.

along Breaks.

shore line w buildings - End.

1209 00

Tom
27 Aug 82
0831

26° 12' N

50° 38' E

A flowing / waves
B water
A Solid
B land

A Rising Beck falling

A Curving

B -

S-2 Rocky CFB

Shore line

w/L

l/w pitifore C

26° 12' N

50° 38' E

7

A circling

B land

all Beck

classified

26° 12' N

50° 38' E

A Curving

B shore

S-2 Smooth

Yellow
grainy PC

Sandy shoreline C

26° 12' N

1209 00

50° 38' E

A Rolling / angle

B Hill / Building C

S-2 trees

Cool
Windy

26° 12' N

50° 38' E

A. Rising

B. Hill

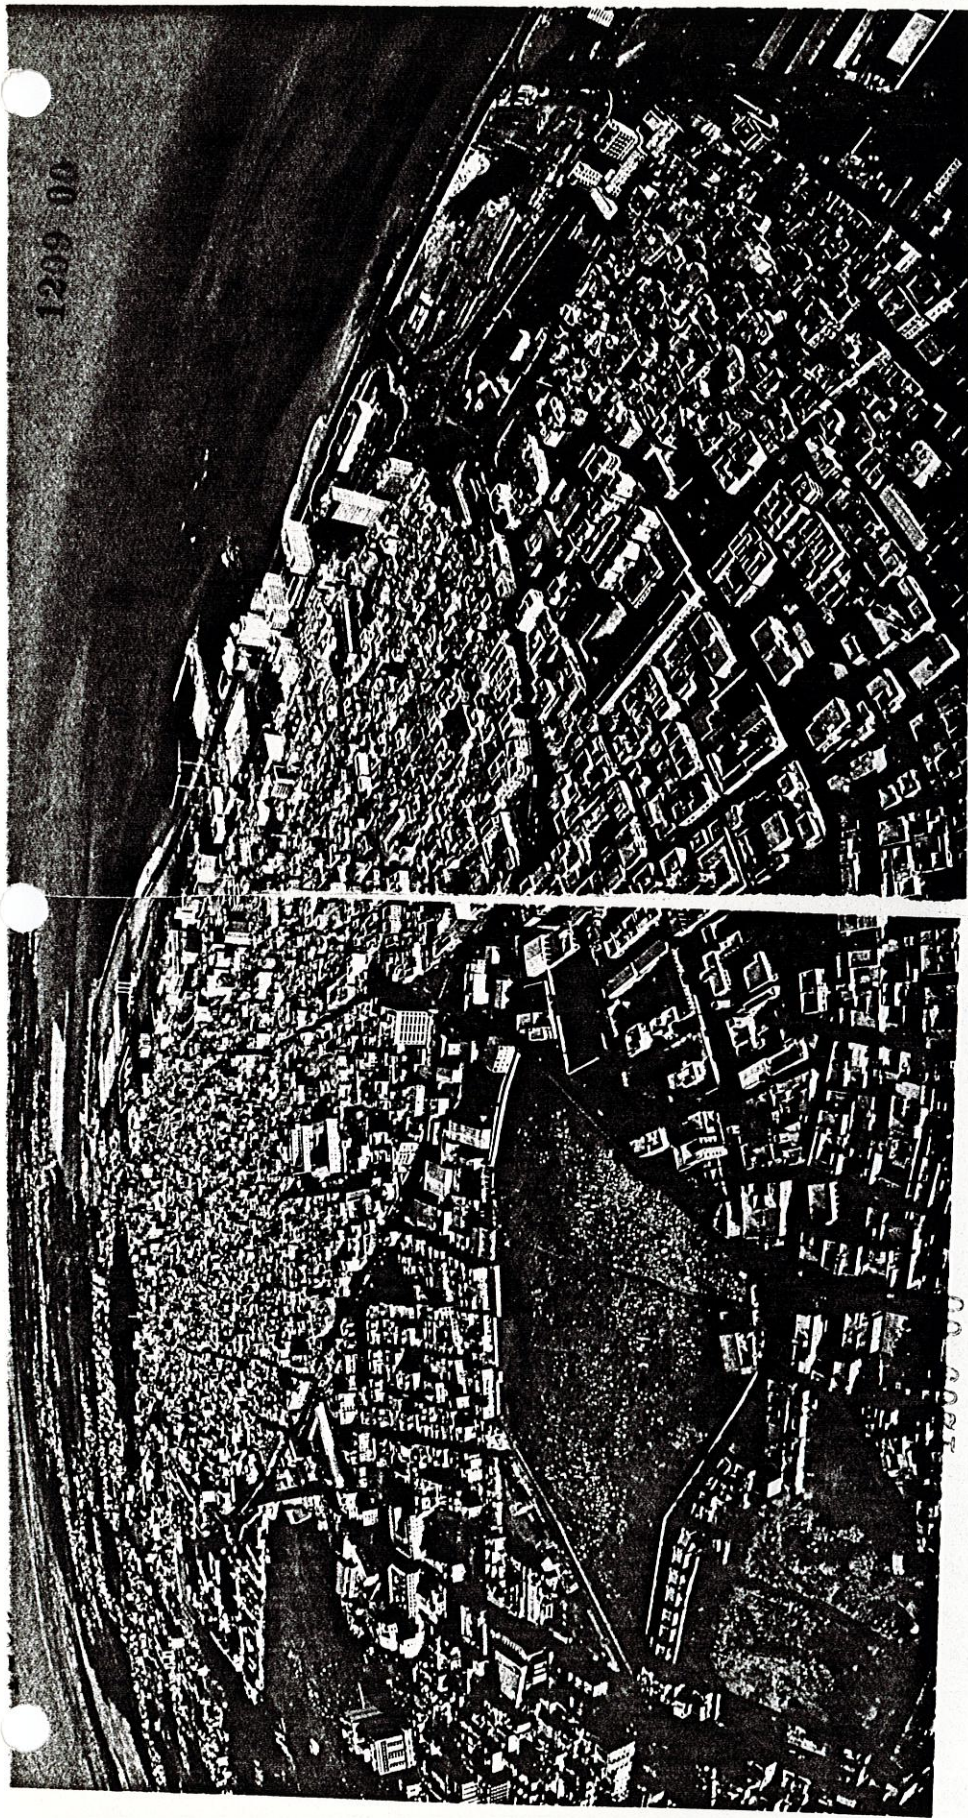

Don Break

Hill

L/W/ interface

Smooth sandy beach
w/ dune/dunes

End

SEAGIRT OASIS of city life, Bahrain centers on its capital, Manama, home of more than half the population of 341,000. Expanding south and west (above), the city engulfed luxuriant date groves; now it fills in the sea northward (right), making room for offices and luxury hotels. The causeway arrows to Muharraq Island and the international airport, where the Concorde shuttles travelers to London or Singapore in less than four and a half hours.

Since antiquity Bahrain has lured merchant sailors. Its freshwater springs provisioned cargo ships on the Mesopotamian sea-lane. From the early 1800's until 1971 it was a British protectorate. That presence plus oil—discovered in 1932—paved the way to modernity. Former date growers, fishermen, and pearl divers have become urban oil workers, merchants, and, more frequently, government employees. A massive new dry dock services super-tankers that range worldwide.

1209 00

1209 00