This text collects together, updates and extends work produced in the seven series, [illegible] newly discussion pieces in Environmental Philosophy, published by RSIII. Roughly, the text takes up all my work in that series, postponed except the [illegible] series on war and peace (which includes investigation of nuclear energy and technology), and the studies of alternative social and environmental paradigms, of the prevailing of the human population problem, and nihilism, and the meanings of life.[1]

1 All these titles studies have appeared, sometimes in revised form. More specifically ...

A much improved and extended investigation of nihilism and the meaning of life will appear, [illegible] in N Griffin and R Sylvan, Tentative Answers — to Ultimate Questions
